Lancaster Farming

Vol. 48 No. 9 | www.lancasterfarming.com | Five Sections | Saturday, December 28, 2002 | $36.00 Per Year | $1.00 Per Copy

Look what we've included in the 2003 Lancaster Farming Ag Directory this issue! We have hundreds of contact numbers for the decision-makers in regional agriculture. Something new this year for our third annual directory: several "essential contacts" pages, a quick reference for those new to farming or interested in starting a farm.

A Year To Remember

Agriculture Moves Ahead In 2002

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — As the numbers roll from 2002 to 2003 and we reflect on the past year — from the scorching, record-breaking drought of the summer to our latest Christmastime snowfall — Lancaster Farming would like to take a little time to reflect on the colorful, unforgettable year.

January

We again kicked off the year with the Farm Show.

According to Sam Hayes, agriculture secretary, the "largest indoor agricultural event in America" offered a record $315,000 in premiums to exhibitors. The event featured more than 8,000 entries, including 5,000 head of livestock, and more than 325 commercial exhibitors.

Poultry exhibits were canceled because several cases of avian influenza were discovered in Pennsylvania in December.

By the end of January, Gov. Mark Schweiker announced the 2003 Farm Show schedule would be expanded from six to eight days.

February

The Virginia Farm Show, relocated from Richmond to Fisher-

Happy voyages through the New Year! Lancaster Farming captured this scene Christmas Day at the Farmersville Road bridge in Brownstown. For the first time in more than three decades, up to a foot of snow fell in some regions of southeast Pennsylvania on Christmas. (Unofficially, Brownstown had about seven inches of snow). The staff of Lancaster Farming wishes all its readers a safe, happy, and profitable New Year.

National Organic Standards: What Do They Mean In Pa.?

PCO Annual Meeting Set

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

CENTRE HALL (Centre Co.) — New USDA organic standards should help boost sales for organic growers and marketers, according to members of Pennsylvania Certified Organic, the state's main certifying agency.

On the other hand, some smaller growers worry that the rules may cater to large-scale operations and compromise organic production methods.

The National Organic Program's new rules were released this October, specifying uniform standards across the country. PCO was recently accredited as a certifying agency under the USDA program. That means PCO-certified products are in line with national standards and eligible for a USDA Organic logo.

The new rules brought some minor changes to what Pennsylvania Certified Organic (PCO) had required of its organic growers and handlers in Pennsylvania prior to the new rules, according to Penny Sandoval, certification director at PCO.

"Some things are a little different as far as regulations go," she said. PCO is "helping farmers be aware of the changes."

One of the more significant changes under the new rules is that certified organic crops and produce must now be started from organic seeds — except in cases where organic seeds are not commercially available.

Especially relevant to poultry, beef, and lamb producers is that these products can now be certified organic.

"For years, red meat and poultry hasn't been able to be called organic," said Robert Eberly of Eberly Poultry Farms, Stevens.

Pages D25-D29 include complete Farm Show 2003 maps, exhibitor lists, schedules, and lots of information so you can plan ahead.

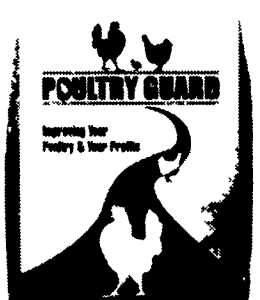
LITTER AMENDMENT

New Poultry Guard™ Litter Amendment is a unique activated clay that delivers consistent ammonia control without the handling inconvenience associated with other poultry litter treatments.

Unlike these other treatments, Poultry Guard Litter Amendment is easy and convenient to apply and needs no incorporation or activation Fewer application variables mean more consistent performance In addition, Poultry Guard can be applied up to five days before bird set, whenever it's convenient for the grower



Using Poultry Guard Litter Amendment Is As Simple As...

Apply
Simply spread over poultry litter.
- No incorporation
- No moisture activation
- No complicated instructions for heating and ventilation in conjunction with application

Bird Set
Poultry Guard can be applied when it's most convenient, up to five days before bird set
- No application timing headaches between clean out and bird set
- No last minute application after equipment has been lowered

Control Ammonia
Poultry Guard will deliver immediate and long-term ammonia control and give birds a healthier growing environment.
- No more dangerously high levels of ammonia to stunt growth

You be the judge! We are confident this litter amendment will improve your poultry and your profits.

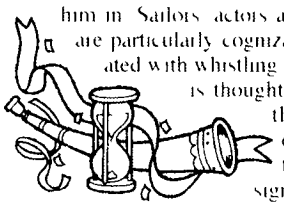
The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

DEC. 30, 2002–JAN. 5, 2003

TWELFTH NIGHT, JAN. 5

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

Among the various superstitions surrounding the advent of the new year is the nearly mandatory practice of noisemaking at midnight on New Year's Eve. Now looked upon as mere revelry, it once was considered protection against evil spirits who would be scared off by all the noise. Whistling, however, is strictly taboo; to whistle is to converse with the devil or invite him in. Sailors, actors and actresses, and miners are particularly cognizant of the ill luck associated with whistling. On board ship, whistling is thought to raise a storm. In the theatre, it is believed to close the show prematurely. For miners, it is a sign of alarm.



A whistling girl and a crowing hen,

TIP OF THE WEEK

GOOD LUCK HOPPIN' JOHN

(Eat this dish on New Year's Day for good luck all year!)

- 4 strips bacon, diced
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 2 cups cooked black-eyed peas, or 2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen
- 1 2 cup uncooked rice
- 2 cups water
- 1 4 teaspoon dried red-pepper flakes
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 8 teaspoon black pepper

Partially cook bacon in a Dutch oven, add onion and cook until bacon is crisp and onion is soft. Add black-eyed peas, rice, water and pepper flakes. Cover and simmer over low heat until rice is done, about 20 to 25 minutes. Toss with salt and pepper and serve immediately.

Makes 8 servings

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If there is no wind on New Year's Day, the summer will be dry, if there's a good breeze, there will be rain enough for a decent crop.

How's the weather where you are? Record daily local conditions in our full color Weather Journal ($14.95 + $4.95 S&H). To order call 800 895 9265 ext. 220 or visit www.almanac.com/go/WUF0212

New Solutions Are Required In 2003

Editor's note for all Guest Editorials: Please keep in mind that the opinions of the writers don't necessarily agree with the editor's. For the benefit of our diverse readership, we strive to provide a balance of opinion in Lancaster Farming.

Guest Editorial By Brian W. Snyder
Executive Director
Pennsylvania Association For Sustainable Agriculture (PASA)

Now that much of the dust has settled from the vigorous debate over Senate Bill 1413, it is time for all of us to pause and imagine where we should go from here. Already, some messages are circulating that a third incarnation of the bill will be introduced early in the next session of the legislature — many readers will recall that SB 1413 started out in life as SB 826.

My fear is that such a shortsighted and reactionary approach would only lead to more division within Pennsylvania's agricultural community, and certainly less chance of a lasting solution that supports both farmers and rural communities.

I read with great interest the account in this paper of remarks from Walt Peechatka, executive vice president of PennAg Industries Association. It was reported that Mr. Peechatka described the proponents of excessive local regulation in the state as falling neatly into the categories of environmentalists, preservationists, animal rights advocates, newcomers to country living, anti-ag activists, and/or members of other well-funded groups who know how to use e-mail.

Sadly, an understanding of the essential nature of the current debate is missing entirely in this and other attempts to pigeonhole away the very real problems facing modern agriculture. Such oversimplification serves only to fan the flames of discontent.

The fact ignored in Peechatka's remarks, and he is by no means alone in making this omission, is that a different view of agriculture is rapidly on the rise in Pennsylvania and across the country. This new perspective on agriculture is in stark contrast to the tired, old one in which farms are industrialized and must continually grow or fail. There are many differences between the old and new views of farming in this country, but for the purposes of this discussion, the identity and location of a farm's "customers" is a key.

New farms, as I describe them here, have easily identified customers that range from private individuals to buying clubs, restaurants, institutions, and/or grocery stores that are within a reasonable driving distance of the farm. Consumers of products from these farms are often able to interact directly with the farmer on a personal level, and can even visit the farm if they wish.

In contrast, the customers of industrialized farms, by which I mean those facilities that prioritize high production through animal confinement or other capital-intensive means, tend to have customers that are more difficult to discern. They include large marketing co-ops, corporate food processors and distributors, commodity markets, etc. Farmers operating by this model rarely interact personally with or get to know the people who consume their products. In fact, the current indicator of success for this model is that more and more product is exported further and further away from its source, and is mixed beyond recognition with similar products from countless other farms.

There will surely be some folks who would hope to dispute the contrasting definitions I have offered, but it is time for all of us to realize the big difference between farmers whose customers live in close proximity and are willing

Editor:

We also are members of PASA (Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture), like Paul E. Hauser of Chester County, and applaud his logic in opposing SB1413 because it does not allow communities to have a voice in their own futures. We all need clean air and water.

The problem of perchlorate contamination of water as reported recently in The Wall Street Journal could be serious. Autism is something we do not want to see in our grandchildren. We must protect the water from endocrine-disrupting chemicals.

The organic sustainable production of food movement is growing faster every year. It takes three years to get your organic certification. We hope that the farmers are preparing for this financial windfall.

Let us all oppose SB1413.

Now Is The Time

To Celebrate The New Year With Your Family

The beginning of a New Year is a great time to stop and reflect on the blessing we have enjoyed in the past year and to look ahead to the opportunities of the New Year. In the paragraphs below are some thoughts on evaluating your business and making changes. While it is specifically focused on dairy enterprises, most of the principles apply to other businesses as well, so read on even if you are not in the dairy business.

New Year's celebrations, like birthdays, are reminders of how quickly our season of life is passing. This provides a reminder to review how we are meeting life's most important goals. We may need to evaluate how to modify our business activities to make sure our work isn't crowding out other important goals. Think about how to get more time for family and faith in your activities in 2003.

Don't forget to start the New Year properly, showing your support for the livestock and horticultural industries by enjoying a hearty meal of pork, sauerkraut, and mashed potatoes. Then sit down to cheer on the Penn State Football team in the Capital One Bowl. Pork, sauerkraut, and Penn State Football on New Year's Day — it doesn't get any better than that!

To Make New Year's Resolutions For Your Business

Beth Grove, extension agent, dairy/environment in Lancaster, agrees that New Year's is a good time to reflect on the family dairy farm business and goals for the future of the operation.

Like our personal resolutions, such as getting more exercise, often our New Year's resolutions for our business don't come easily. They require hard work and discipline to achieve. In that same sense, many times it is easier on a dairy farm to keep working with your head down and not make the time to look ahead and plan for future goals on the farm.

The enormous amount of work involved in keeping the operation running on a daily basis can be overwhelming, particularly to young dairy farmers with little children, leaving little time for reflection.

The time and energy in planning for the coming year on a farm is often time well spent, however. Why not sit down with your family in the coming weeks and analyze your farm business? For example, are the sales from your operation meeting your financial needs and goals? This past year was terrible for milk prices, but were you able to keep the family and farm expenses met? Are production costs in line, or are some costs growing more rapidly than usual? What are your strengths and weaknesses on the dairy, and what might be creative ways to improve the shortcomings on your farm? Do you have enough family time, and if not, how can this be changed?

A great way to make some effective changes and gain ideas from outside sources is to create a dairy advisory team for your operation. There are many such teams already in place in the area, and they normally consist of the herd owner, a herdsman (if different from the owner), nutritionist, veterinarian, financial adviser, extension agent, and/or other farm consultants. At first thought, this may sound like something most farmers don't feel comfortable with, but these groups can be very helpful in allowing for communication between the vet, nutritionist, and other advisers on a regular basis.

Best of all, outsiders often bring experience and ideas from other farms to your doorstep, free of charge! Again, such a group takes time and effort to create, but the benefits can more than outweigh the costs.

If finances are a problem, there are qualified farm consultants available in many areas to assist with evaluating options. Since you will be preparing for taxes in the next few weeks, use a balance sheet to evaluate your costs of production. Perhaps there are places you can save money on your dairy by using available resources differently or by changing the way the cows are fed or managed. Are you better off to purchase some feeds rather than growing them? Could someone else raising your heifers free up pasture and resources to make the milking herd more profitable? If you have access to good pasture but limited cropping equipment, is grazing an option?

If you are using DHIA on your farm, this is an excellent way to evaluate the basic performance and productivity of your herd. DHIA is one of the best tools available to the dairy producer. How can you change something if you don't measure it?

There are many goals and "benchmarks" available to evaluate your herd's performance, with most based upon the economics of increasing milk quality and production while reducing the costs associated with poor reproduction. The goals are simply designed to get you started. You can ask your farm consultants or call the Lancaster County Extension office at (717) 394-6851 for more information.

Quote of The Week:

"You got to be careful if you don't know where you are going, because you might not get there."

GET READY! GET SET!

Background Scripture:
Matthew 3; 11:2-19.
Devotional Reading:John 1:1-14.

When I first saw the scripture passages for this week, I thought there must be a mistake. John the Baptist is usually treated in Advent. But then it occurred to me that (1) Christmas does not end at midnight on December 25 and (2) the message of John the Baptist is always relevant, for we have to continually prepare to receive him into our lives. Every day of our lives can and should be both an Advent and a Christmas.

"When he saw many of the Pharisees and Sadducees coming for baptism . . . (John) . . . said to them, 'You brood of vipers! Who warned you to flee from the wrath to come?'" (3:7). People were heeding his message to "Repent" and they confessed their sins and sought his baptism. But John knew that for many, repentance was more of a ritual than a spiritual reality.

Especially the Pharisees and Sadducees. This is ironic because they thought of themselves as the spiritual elite. They were proud and often arrogant concerning their religious pedigree. So when they repented, they weren't really repenting; their egos kept them from recognizing the depth of their sins.

Repent? Me?

There is nothing more difficult than to teach someone something they think they already know and just as difficult for people who think they are upstanding in their religion to really repent. Both think they are already "there" and don't realize how far they are from "there." The finest people I know are those who do not think of themselves as "righteous" — and vice versa. The higher our spiritual consciousness, the more we realize how much further we need to go.

Both John and Jesus had a simple test: tangible or visible "fruits." John proclaimed, "Bear fruit that befits repentance" (3:8). Later, Jesus said, "You shall know them by their fruits" (Mt. 7:16) and "Herein is my father glorified, that you bear much fruit" (Jn. 15:8). Still later, Paul writes, "The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance" (5:22,23).

Instead of bearing fruit, the Pharisees and Sadducees focused on their pedigree. John, however, warns them: ". . . do not presume to say to yourselves, 'We have Abraham as our father,'; for I tell you that God is able from these stones to raise up children to Abraham" (Mt. 3:9).

Today, Christians may think of themselves as children of Luther, Calvin, Knox, Wesley, and others. And in a sense, we are their children. But if we are truly their children — and therefore disciples of Jesus Christ — our lives will be fruitful. True pedigree bears fruit that befits repentance.

Really Changed!

Not that we earn our salvation with these fruits, but that the stamp of authenticity is the fruits it produces. As J.B. Phillips renders in Mt. 3:18: "Go and do something to show that your hearts are really changed." A repentance not resulting in a "change of heart" is not a true repentance. A "change of heart" that does not produce "fruits" is not a true "change of heart."

It is easy to say the words or go through the motions of repentance, but that is not what it means to be "ready" for the coming of Christ.

I have never come to the end of a day thinking that there was nothing in those 24 hours for which I needed to repent. Even when my efforts have produced some "fruits" and I have refrained from saying or doing anything injurious or unhelpful to others, I know I have not completely walked the way of Jesus. Even in my best moments, "self" gets in the way, especially when I congratulate myself for them. But there is so much more that I could do or be in every day. If that is not also true in your life, what an exalted accomplishment! But how lonely it must be standing on that higher level.

If every day is a potential Christmas for Christ to be born anew into our hearts, so it is also axiomatic that it is a day for us to "Prepare the way of the Lord, make his paths straight". Every day of our lives we need to "Get ready, get set . . ." to receive him.

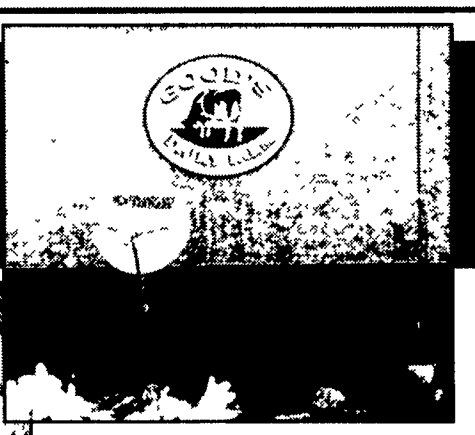
"The biggest benefit is the labor savings."



"My only regret is that I wish I had made the pit under the barn deeper."

"In my previous barn, I scraped two times a day; and I was tired of it, not to mention the danger to the cows if a cable snapped I thought I would not be able to justify the additional cost until my builder suggested a design change which brought the cost down relatively close to the original design.

The biggest benefit to me is the labor savings. Two people can handle all the chores for our herd. I save money not only on labor but also on repairs.

The cows' hooves are healthier, and they show heat better because they are not afraid of slipping. During the five years with slats, I have not lost a single heifer from slipping. The cows stay much cleaner, even with my misting system for cooling them. The water has a place to escape."

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
December 24, 2002
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb butterfat F.O B producing plants· Northeast. 1 3400-1 4517 Delivered Equivalent· Atlanta 1 3735-1 5187 mostly 1 3735-1 3959.

PRICES OF CONDFNSFD SKIM, dollars per lb wet solids, F.O B producing plants Northeast· Class II, includes monthly formula prices. 9850-1.0300; Class III - spot prices - 7000-.8700.

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA· This week. In - 0, Out 100; last week: In 51, Out 0; last year: In 0, Out 86. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week In 0, Out 0, last week: In 0, Out 0; last year: In 0, Out 0.

The base price for Class I milk for January 2003 is $10 56 per cwt., up $0.04 from December. A Class I differential specific to each pricing point (county) is added to the base price to determine the applicable Class I price. The Class II skim milk price for January is $7.37, down $0.32 from December.

A major snow storm is predicted for Christmas Day for parts of the Northeast This did give a boost to milk bottling schedules in the early part of the week. Elsewhere, milk sales were typical for a holiday week and surplus milk volumes were sharply higher

Milk production is steady to higher throughout the East Some heavy rains in the Southeast and Middle Atlantic areas did retard gains seen the past few weeks Florida's milk flow is increasing at the same time demand is slowing Their need for milk dropped and handlers had to ship milk out of the state for processing This week marks the first time since July that milk was shipped out of state Manufacturing plants are operating at near capacity levels in most of the region Reports indicate that milk is looking for homes in the Northeast, while some capacity, albeit limited, does exist here and there across the region Bottled milk sales are reported as slow to good. Because of the predicted storm in the Northeast, there was another round of panic buying at retail stores and bottlers added on to production runs on Monday and Tuesday Bottlers do, however, expect a slow down in processing later this week

The condensed skim market is mixed Some loads of Class III are reportedly moving at significantly lower prices to avoid drying. Some producers temporarily altered their formulas for Class III wet solids prices to keep product moving Class II condensed skim sales range from steady to mostly lighter

The fluid cream market is weak. Supplies are more than ample and excess volumes are increasing. More Eastern cream is moving to Midwestern butter makers, because Eastern operations are full or do not want more cream. Class II sales are slow and prices are little changed. The CME average butter prices did move about a half cent higher last week and multiples are steady to lower. Ice cream production is lighter as many operations are down for various periods of time during the holidays. Cream cheese output is about steady as some producers are taking advantage of the ample supply and lower prices. Eggnog, sour cream, bottled cream, dip production have all slowed seasonally. However, contacts expect bottled cream, sour cream, and dip production to improve after the holidays and hold through January. Churning is heavy and most Eastern producers are near capacity

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Review

St. Joseph, Mo.
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER & STOCKER Summary for week ending Dec. 20, 2002. Total Receipts: 345,900, last week 430,400 Direct 53,500; last week 62,300. Video/Internet 500, last week 33,800 Auctions 291,900, last week 334,300. This weeks reported auction volume included 38 percent over 600 lbs and 43 percent heifers

Compared to last week, feeder steers and heifers sold steady to 2.00 lower. Calf prices were uneven; Southeastern markets closed mostly lower in volatile cleanup trading but some areas reported an increase in demand for lightweights, especially in the mountain states on reputation strings Trading activity was much slower this week on lighter receipts as we approach a virtual shutdown in livestock marketing for the Christmas and New Years Holidays Most auction markets will be closed for two full weeks, including the Oklahoma National Stockyards and all of the major salebarns in the Southeast However, many markets in the Midwest are advertising special sales around New Years Day Joplin Regional Stockyards is holding another Wean-Vac Special on January 2nd. Direct trading will most definitely be slow until business gets back to normal in 2003. Although most trade members remain bullish on the fat cattle market, feedlots have lost 2.00 over the last few weeks Many feeders refused to accept the 71.00-72.00 bids this week and opted to hold out until after the holidays But, some sellers were under pressure from limited pen space or heavyweight cattle and were forced to closeout this week

The CME Live Cattle Futures made a respectable rebound late this past week with spot December contracts ending the week at 75.10. February settled at 78.97 but may not be able to hold that level next week, since Fridays cattle-on-feed report was bearish. On-feed numbers were only 92 percent of last years, but they were slightly higher than the all important average analyst guess Marketings were less than expected at 98 percent of a year ago, but the most surprising figure came from November placements. Cattle put on feed last month totaled 5 percent more than last year and far above predictions. This blindsided market watchers, considering the tight yearling supplies over the last couple of months However, there is plenty of bullish data to offset this report and most cattle producers and feeders are seeing profits and will be smiling over the holidays

All of us here at the USDA Livestock and Grain Market News Service certainly wish all of you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Professor of Agricultural Economics, Dairy Marketing and Policy
Penn State

Dec. 20, 2002
HEADING HOME FROM MOLDOVA

- Milk production slows.
- November butter and cheese inventories higher.
- Work in the village is complete!

I've finished my work in the village of Ignatei, Moldova. As I mentioned last week, I'm doing volunteer work for Citizen's Network for Foreign Affairs (CNFA). I'm helping a one-year-old dairy cooperative develop a marketing plan. I completed my assignment and the co-op board accepted my marketing plan. Now I have one more day before I head back to the good old USA!

The markets were largely neutral on reaction to USDA's Milk Production and Cold Storage reports. The November Milk Production report showed production for 20 major dairy states up 1.8 percent from a year ago. This represents a slowdown in the rate of growth in the milk supply. However, cow numbers continue to grow. States that had positive growth in cow numbers include Arizona, California, Idaho, Iowa, New Mexico, New York, and Ohio.

The November Cold Storage report also had some bad news. Butter inventories in November were up 135 percent from a year ago to 136.3 million pounds. American cheese inventories were up 8 percent from a year ago to 474.4 million pounds, and Other cheese inventories were up 10 percent in November to 200.9 million pounds. It is surprising that cheese and butter inventories can be so high given the slowdown in milk production. This is likely due to a combination of weak demand and some imports.

Life in the city of Chisinau is very modern and sophisticated. I'll be attending a Russian ballet this afternoon. There is a world-famous winery just outside of town. It is very different in the villages. There are good opportunities to help the villagers in Moldova with rural economic development. CNFA has an agribusiness program designed to help develop sustainable businesses and cooperatives.

Life in Moldovan villages became even harder after the fall of the Soviet Union. The villagers had become accustomed to life under a command economy. Now, they are supposed to think for themselves and seek out profitable alternatives. That is what the agribusiness program is trying to do, train the villagers.

Many of the older pensioners now have very little to live on. Many young people flee the village for better opportunities elsewhere. But the villages need young, enterprising, and educated farmers to jump-start the rural economy. Many would prefer to stay if they had better opportunities. The purpose of my project was to help a young cooperative develop so that they can generate hard cash to earn a living.

People in the villages are very nice and friendly. They invited me into their homes and offered me all their food and wine. I very much appreciated their hospitality. The villagers were happy to see me and they had a positive image of the U.S.

The concept of a cooperative is

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

very new to the villagers. They associate co-ops with collective farms, even though co-ops are the opposite of a collective farm. Many don't fully understand the commitment that is needed to manage the cooperative. Even more alien is the idea that all the villagers share in the profits of the enterprise.

This is the last column for my weekly dairy outlook report for 2002. I will be enjoying some time with my family. I will also be reflecting on all the positive things we take for granted living in the U.S. We assume every time we turn on the faucet, raise the thermostat, and open the refrigerator door that there is water, heat, and food.

That isn't so in much of the rest of the world. Imagine spending the entire winter with very little heat! Trust me, it's not much fun.

Let's hope we start the new year with lower dairy inventories and higher milk prices. Have a great holiday season with your families!

Pa. Cattleman's College Well Attended

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — On December 14 approximately 100 cattlemen from across the state traveled to the Toftrees Resort, State College to attend the Pennsylvania Cattleman's College

Despite a heavy ice storm the night before, an enthusiastic crowd was on hand to listen to a variety of speakers during the daylong event.

The keynote speaker was Dr. Terry Etherton, Department Head of Dairy and Animal Science at Penn State University. Etherton discussed the influence of biotechnology in animal agriculture.

"Biotechnology dates back more than 1,000 years, the first plant hybrid was developed in 1719," stated Etherton. However, the modern era of biotechnology is recognized as starting in 1973.

Dr. Etherton mentioned the numerous benefits of biotechnology ranging from improving efficiency to environmental benefits. In closing he noted, "Public perception is the key to the support and development of biotechnology in agriculture."

Following Dr. Etherton's presentation, attendees were invited to attend four of nine seminars on topics including: the livestock evaluation center, marketing purebred bulls, new products in estrous synchronization, keeping the family on the family farm, retained ownership of feeder calves, where did my checkoff dollar go, nutrient management laws, best grazing systems for PA beef cattle, or freezer beef liability and regulations

Producers also had the opportunity to attend the Pennsylvania Beef Council (PBC) Annual Meeting to learn about checkoff programs in Pennsylvania. After the day's sessions, attendees were invited to a beef and veal product reception hosted by the Pennsylvania Beef Council.

to pay higher prices, make phone calls, and even vote in such a way as to protect the source of their food, and farmers who have no such convenient reservoir of local support. This factor, I believe, made a big difference in the recent legislative debate, as I am aware that many farmers who opposed SB 1413 asked their customers to help make the case.

Denial of the contrast between old and new models of farming is pervasive, and is beginning to threaten the integrity of all farmers here and abroad. Embedded within this denial is the learned forgetfulness that industrial agriculture is only "profitable" in the context of huge government production subsidies, artificially low energy prices, and long-term environmental damage. Such are some of the hidden costs of today's food supply that bring little benefit to average farmers.

The time has come to admit what members of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives now know very well, that there are distinctly different views of agriculture being advocated across the state. Let us now initiate a statewide dialogue aimed at achieving mutual understanding and, perhaps, some common strategies for addressing important issues such as farm profitability, environmental protection, animal welfare, and the wellbeing of our rural communities.

We have a perfect opportunity for such a dialogue to begin, with a new state administration about to take office. "If not now, when? If not us, who?" . . as the saying goes. Governor Ed Rendell should make this matter a top priority of his new administration.

I challenge other farm organizations in Pennsylvania to join us in this call for meaningful dialogue in 2003 and the years ahead. Furthermore, let us agree that such dialogue must embrace not only the diversity among farmers, but also the needs and interests of rural communities and individual consumers, including those who happen also to be township supervisors, or who fit into one of Mr. Peechatka's convenient categories.

The message sent out early on Thanksgiving morning when the legislature refrained from taking action on SB 1413 is that the status quo in Pennsylvania agriculture is no longer suitable as either a voice or a vision for the future. Our lawmakers now realize that diversity within the agricultural community is as natural and desirable as is biodiversity in our fields and forests.

And what all of us should realize before it is too late for Pennsylvania's 60,000 family farms is that the next agricultural revolution will come about as a result neither of legislative action nor the development of new technology, but in response to the urgent desire of millions of consumers everywhere to be more closely connected to the sources of their food.

Cargill Animal Nutrition Nutrena To Answer Feed Questions At Farm Show

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Representatives from Cargill Animal Nutrition Nutrena will be on hand at this year's Farm Show, Jan. 11-18, to answer questions about the animal feed industry.

"We'll be there the whole week," said Bill Reed, farm store consultant.

"The reason that we go to the Farm Show is because we have the opportunity to see a lot of our customers and prospects that we normally don't get to see out at the dealership," he said.

The business has had a presence at the Farm Show since 1985, when Cargill Animal Nutrition bought Beacon Milling Company, Tioga, N.Y.

Reed has been representing the company at the Farm Show for the last 13 years.

"We get to see people that go to our dealerships and buy feed, so we can meet them and answer any questions that they might have on our products, and we also get prospects for our dealers."

Besdes giving samples of pet food to passers-by, there will also be a sign-up for a free drawing on a handmade rocking horse at the booth.

According to Reed, one of the mill supervisors will be present to answer questions about milling procedures. Also, dealers from the Harrisburg will be coming in to help. There will be between two and three people in the booth every day, he said.

"Over the last five years we have seen the number of people that were coming to the Farm Show change from the large commercial customer to the small, family farm or equine person," Reed said. This has been helpful to the poultry, rabbit, and equine aspects of the business.

"Our clientele has changed from a bulk customer to a bag customer. We're hoping that this year we'll see the return of the large commercial user with the extended days plus the amount of large equipment that's going to be demonstrated there," said Reed.

"With the emphasis put on getting the farmers to come up with the Farmer Days, we're hoping that we'll see some of our commercial customers come back."

With the return of larger-scale operators, Reed forsees perhaps bringing dairy consultants to the Farm Show to help the commercial customers.

Cargill Animal Nutrition is part of Cargill, Inc., the largest privately-owned agricultural company in the world. The business is owned by the Cargill family and employs93,000 people worldwide.

"Cargill has been in continuous agriculture business since 1865," Reed said. The business was founded by W.W. Cargill, who built grain elevators in Iowa and began buying grain, "and the company has grown from that," he said.

"Today we manufacture commercial dairy, poultry, and swine feed and forage preservatives. On our farm store side, we manufacture all types of animal feeds for all species — equine, poultry, swine, deer, rabbit, beef, dairy, and bird seed."

The Lebanon plant supplies dealers in Maryland, Virginia, southern New Jersey, Delaware, and central and eastnern Pennsylvania, who deliver feed to commercial dairy operation and farm stores.

Reed estimates there are 145 retail outlets in that area.

"We also manufacture minerals for the animal livestock industry," he said. "As far as nutrition goes, that's what we really concentrate on — the total nutrition for the animal, whether a commercial operation or a family farm."

Remaining Three Counties Lifted From Drought Emergency Status

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Gov. Mark Schweiker has lifted the drought emergency for Cumberland, Chester, and Delaware, the last three counties under drought emergency status. It marks the first time since Feb. 12 that none of Pennsylvania's 67 counties are under mandatory water restrictions. The governor also upgraded 15 other counties to drought watch and normal status. Of Pennsylvania's 67 counties, 54 are under normal status. Go to www.plna.com, the Pennsylvania Landscape and Nursery Association (PLNA) Website, for the latest drought maps and information.

The following is a summary of the current drought status in Pennsylvania. Current counts for the drought are as follows: Drought Emergency-0 counties; Drought Warning-0 counties; Drought Watch-13 counties; and Normal Status-54 counties. Counties whose drought status changed with the recent announcement are in bold print.

Drought Watch counties include: Beaver, Berks, Chester, Cumberland, Crawford, Delaware, Erie, Greene, Lancaster, Lawrence, Mercer, Washington, and York.

Normal counties include: Adams, Allegheny, Armstrong, Bedford, Blair, Bradford, Bucks, Butler, Cambria, Cameron, Carbon, Centre, Clarion, Clearfield, Clinton, Columbia, Dauphin, Elk, Fayette, Forest, Franklin, Fulton, Huntingdon, Indiana, Jefferson, Juniata, Lackawanna, Lebanon, Lehigh, Luzerne, Lycoming, McKean, Mifflin, Monroe, Montgomery, Montour, Northampton, Northumberland, Perry, Philadelphia, Pike, Potter, Schuylkill, Snyder, Somerset, Sullivan, Susquehanna, Tioga, Union, Venango, Warren, Wayne, Westmoreland, and Wyoming.

On Dec. 16 Schweiker signed House Bill 2302, statewide water management, into law. The legislation will provide the Department of Environmental Protection with accurate information on water use, which will allow the department to make better decisions regarding drought restrictions.

PLNA will continue to advocate for water management and consideration of the industry under drought situations with the new Department of Environmental Protection in the coming year.

Here at the newspaper, the challenging, exciting year served to give our 46-year-old paper plenty to report on. A few of the highlights include:

This summer the paper included 126 markets in section A, an all-time high number.

Staff reporters covered new areas such as Washington, D.C., Delaware State Fair, Centre County Grange Fair, and more extensive coverage in New Jersey and Virginia, among other areas.

Another first was the production of a several-page daily paper circulated at the National Holstein Convention, Atlantic City, N.J.

"Basically Farming," written by various extension agents, came out in June to help support beginning farmers.

In addition, Marion Bowlan began writing the "New Farmer, New Generation" column for beginning farmers early in 2002.

To gear up for the Farm Show, in July the paper introduced the "Farm Show Spotlight" articles that featured pictures and interviews with Farm Show exhibitors.

Also for the Farm Show, the "Pennsylvania Farm Show Showcase" special section was printed in December for 2003's event.

Agriculture Secretary Samuel Hayes began the "Building for the Future" column to keep readers updated about Farm Show renovations in the May 4 issue.

In October, Lancaster Farming debuted "Boarder and Trainer," a special section focused exclusively on the equine industry.

Along with that debut came "DelVal Bits," a column about the equine industry supplied by staff at Delaware Valley College.

Also in October the paper turned its attention to the beef industry throughout the month, with on-farm features and other articles designed to highlight the beef business.

Other changes included an expansion from Dairy Plus to four times a year.

In section B, the dairy recipe contest included record numbers of entries.

The Antiques Center continues to attract dedicated readers. The "You Ask, You Answer" and "Cooks Question" columns also continue to offer help to those who write in to the paper.

Thank you for your readership, and, in many cases, friendship.

The staff here at Lancaster Farming appreciates the hard-working agriculture community. We are thankful to be able to report on such an interesting industry made up of such admirable people.

Brillion To Return To Farm Show

BRILLION, Wis. — Brillion has been a familiar name to farmers for more than a century. Founded here 112 years ago, the company continues to manufacture tillage equipment for a variety of agricultural needs across the U.S.

Brillion Ironworks, Inc. had maintained a steady presence at the Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg through the middle and latter part of the century. By 1990, however, the decreasing emphasis on production agriculture at the Farm Show caused the company to withdraw from exhibiting — until now.

Visitors to the 2003 Farm Show Jan. 11-18 will again be able to look at Brillion implements on site and have their questions answered by Brillion territory manager Terry Shawver of Carlisle.

Brillion travels to farm machinery shows around the country, but Shawver said the show in Harrisburg is a one-of-a-kind event where visitors can view the whole gamut of agriculture, including lots of livestock in addition to the wide range of equipment.

> "The Pennsylvania Farm Show is unique. It's like an indoor state fair. There's no where else you can go to see this kind of thing."
> — Terry Shawver
> Brillion Ironworks, Inc.

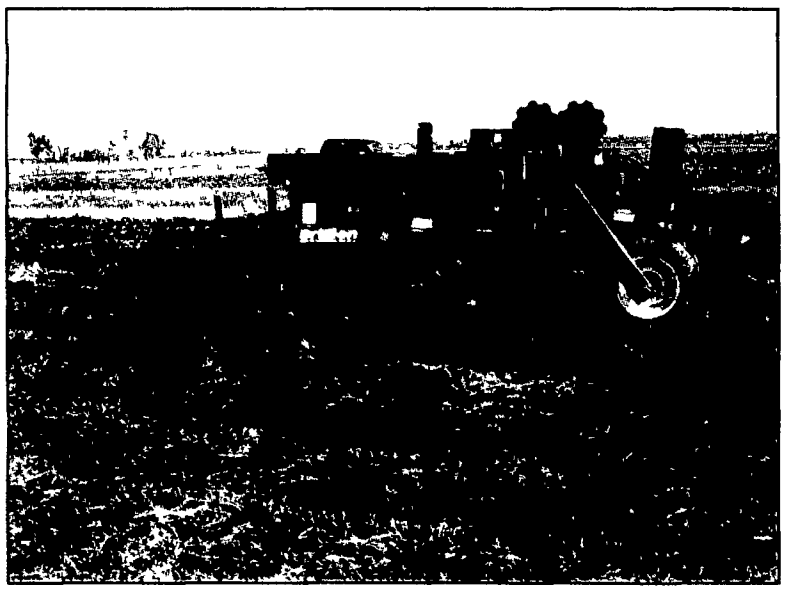
"The Pennsylvania Farm Show is unique," Shawver said. "It's like an indoor state fair. There's no where else you can go to see this kind of thing."

Tillage technology continues to adapt and create better options for farmers, Shawver said.

Included in Brillion's line-up is a series of "zone-tillage" sub-soilers designed to loosen compacted ground and promote soil life, water uptake, and aeration. Brillion has been manufacturing pulverizers, chisel plows, and a variety of other tillage implements for many years. The company also offers a series of grass seeders for the expanding turf and landscape industries.

Shawver is hopeful that the renovated Farm Show will boost his contact with farmers from throughout the region.

"The Farm Show is as good for the exhibitors as it is for visitors," he said.



Brillion Ironworks equipment will be on display at the upcoming Pennsylvania Farm Show for the first time in more than a decade.

Information Agriculture Conference Set For 2003

NORCROSS, Ga. — The sixth Information Agriculture Conference, InfoAg 2003, is scheduled for July 30 through Aug. 1, at the Adam's Mark Hotel, Indianapolis Airport.

An optional precision agriculture field day is planned for Tuesday, July 29, preceding the conference. The field day will be hosted by Purdue University and by Ag One Co-op of Wilkinson, Ind. The Ag One facility was the 2002 winner of the SiteLiner Award for precision agriculture, presented by CropLife magazine. At the Davis-Purdue Agricultural Center in eastern Indiana, researchers and cooperators are conducting a wide variety of site-specific management and remote sensing projects.

Keynote speaker for InfoAg 2003 will be Bruce Vincent, agriculture advocate known for developing positive programs and messages directed to community groups and children. One of his significant efforts has been a program called Provider Pals, which matches classes of school students with individuals in service industries, including agriculture.

As in the past, an exhibit area will feature the latest in communications technology, data management software, and other tools for precision agriculture.

More details regarding program plans, registration and exhibitor fees, and related information will be available at the Website: www.ppi-far.org/infoag.

USDA Concerned About Slow Pace Of Sign-Up For Farm Bill Programs

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA is concerned about the slow pace in which farmers are signing up for major farm programs under the 2002 Farm Bill and urged farmers to begin the process to quickly sign up in order to receive intended benefits in a timely and efficient manner.

"Ensuring timely delivery of program benefits is a top priority for USDA," said Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman. "As farmers wrap up this fall's challenges, we are hopeful that the extensive outreach, education, and training USDA has conducted throughout the country will enable producers to quickly focus on signing up for the program, which will help prevent long lines at the county offices next spring."

The USDA team has developed extensive new software, trained personnel and prepared directives for the many new and existing programs. In addition, the department developed a new Website and conducted hundreds of outreach meetings to farmers nationwide to provide information on how to comply with the new law and the required changes in program participation.

Farm and Foreign Agricultural Services Undersecretary J.B. Penn, Deputy Undersecretary Hunt Shipman, and Farm Service Agency Administrator Jim Little, along with various state farm program directors, took to the airwaves with farm broadcasters and reporters from across the country to help relay the message to producers to sign up. This is just one of many outreach efforts to accelerate sign-up and participation.

"If producers are putting forth a New Year's resolution, we hope it is to understand the importance of signing up early," said Penn. "USDA is committed to working at every level to assist producers, but it is critical they contact their local FSA office to begin processing individual program information and updates needed to participate."

According to Jim Little, reports to date from the states indicate that producer sign-up for the direct and countercyclical programs is proceeding quite slowly. He said there are several reasons to explain the slow pace, including the late harvest in many parts of the country that kept farmers in the field longer than usual.

Additionally, the complexity of the new programs requires more time for producers to gain understanding, assemble the necessary information, and make their decision, often involving several different commodities and unknown future market conditions.

"For the sign-up process to proceed smoothly, we need a steady flow of producers visiting their local county FSA office from now to the April 1 deadline," said Little. "We want to avoid a last minute crunch in the county offices. Thus, the sooner producers contact their local FSA offices and begin the sign-up process, the more our staff can be of help to them to receive their intended benefits in a timely manner."

Little also reminded producers that they can sign-up for major programs now and still make changes to their decisions any time until the April 1 closing date for base acreage and yield updating. Also, producers may visit their local FSA office multiple times to review information and discuss their decisions.

New computer-based tools also have been developed to help producers analyze the economic consequences of the new Farm Bill's updating options. USDA, in conjunction with Texas A&M University, has made available one such calculator on the FSA Website (http://www.fsa.usda.gov/). Several other land-grant universities and commodity associations have developed similar tools available to producers.

"All of us at USDA recognize the importance of the new Farm Bill to America's producers, and we remain fully committed to providing them with all the necessary information and assistance throughout the implementation process," said Penn.

For a complete list of farm bill programs, benefits, and information needed for sign-up, visit USDA's Farm Bill Website at http://www.usda.gov/ or contact your local FSA office or service center.

"Some things have been watered down to include larger farms," Fogarty-Harnish said. He pointed out that Scarecrow Hill production standards are "actually exceeding the rules.

'Some small farmers think the name 'organic' was stolen from them."

According to PCO certifier Sandoval, the increasing involvement of larger companies in the organic business should help validate the industry as a major part of the food system.

"We're hoping that consumers will see that no matter where they go, organic means the same thing," she said. "It's not just a fad anymore."

Growers, processors and handlers of organic agricultural products will gather to hear the latest on the National Organic Standards and certification program and to honor the founding directors of Pennsylvania Certified Organic

PCO will conduct its Annual Membership Meeting and Awards Banquet Jan. 22 at 4 p.m. at the Farm Show Complex, Room B, in Harrisburg.

The meeting will begin with a question and answer session on the National Organic Standards. Several speakers will address the group, including Leslie Zuck, PCO executive director; Jeff Moyer, farm manager of the Rodale Institute Farm; and Brian Snyder, executive director of Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture.

Pennsylvania Certified Organic is a nonprofit organization that educates and certifies organic farmers within the commonwealth of Pennsylvania. PCO was established in 1997 with the goal of assuring the integrity of organic products through education and certification. The organixation serves approximately 350 producers in Pennsylvania.

UM Team Reports Major Breakthrough In Protein Study

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — A team of researchers at the University of Maryland has observed for the first time how some proteins, the chains of amino acids that control every function in living cells, come together in a stepwise manner. What they saw may totally change the way scientists look at proteins.

As reported in the Dec. 13 issue of the journal Science, the Maryland team saw a protein take shape, a process called folding, in a series of steps, not one sudden motion, as had long been assumed to be the folding process.

"It's been thought that proteins had only two states, like an on-off switch," said Victor Munoz, the Maryland biochemistry professor who led the research. "Our discovery showed that there are proteins that act more like rheostats, gradually folding and unfolding."

The discovery could lead to a better understanding of how proteins assemble and work with each other and even give scientists tools to predict how proteins will act. "We know proteins fold spontaneously, without help from anything else, but we don't know the rules of how they do it. We may now be able to learn what some of those rules are," Munoz said.

"Like fuzzy logic's gray areas, or the potential power of quantum computers, these molecular rheostats go beyond traditional protein binary switches and unravel a whole new set of communication tools between proteins that might be critical for the regulation of complex networks."

The study of proteins has taken on new importance since the sequencing of the human genome. "The genome sequence tells us only what the sequence of the proteins will be," said Munoz. "DNA stores that information, but proteins do all the work in the cell. They are the nanomachines that perform most of the body's critical functions. They are the cell's policemen, firefighters, chemical factories, road builders and communication engineers.

"Proteins synchronize with each other into networks that result in complex cellular responses, like their response to hormones or other stimuli. It is in the way we understand how proteins talk to each other that our discovery may also have very important repercussions." The key to the Maryland team's discovery was their combination of theory, detailed experimentation and computer modeling, "The protein energy landscape theory predicted more than 10 years ago that some proteins could fold and unfold without crossing free energy barriers, the so-called 'downhill folding' process," said Munoz, "but it hadn't been confirmed experimentally because people didn't know how to look for this behavior."

Munoz and his team began by realizing that downhill folding should occur by a gradual unfolding process in which the different pieces of protein structure melt bit by bit. They heated a small protein of the Escherichia coli bacteria to decrease its stability at each step of the process. They then tracked the process with a combination of biophysical techniques, each one sensitive to a different property of the structure of the protein, and analyzed the data with computer models.

"It is the difference between just being able to see scattered car parts jump all at once to being a complete car and seeing the car slowly come together in each step of the assembly line," said Munoz. When the Munoz team began the research, they were actually examining a different aspect of proteins. "We were trying to create a catalog of simple proteins that could be considered as structural archetypes. This was something of a surprise," said Munoz.

Working with Munoz were Maria M. Garcia-Mira, until recently at the University of Maryland and now at the University Bayreuth, Bayreuth, Germany; Mourad Sadqi and Niels Fischer, University of Maryland; and Jose M Sanchez-Ruiz, University of Granada, Granada, Spain.

FB Urges 'Immediate Action' On EU Biotech Ban

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The American Farm Bureau Federation urged President Bush "to take immediate action" to initiate a World Trade Organization case against the European Union's continuing moratorium against new approvals of biotech crops.

AFBF President Bob Stallman, in a letter to Bush signed by the presidents of all the state Farm Bureaus attending a meeting here, said, "It is imperative that U.S. agriculture and other countries around the world understand that your administration is committed to enforcing the terms of trade agreements."

Stallman said the EU's four-year moratorium "continues unabated" and that recent actions by the EU to enact new biotech regulations have not addressed U.S. agriculture's concerns. "The regulations as approved by the European Parliament and European Council are themselves not compliant with the WTO rules of international trade," he noted. "Replacing one non-WTO compliant action with another non-WTO compliant solution is not acceptable."

He said the EU has acknowledged that the moratorium is "not based on scientific evidence" and that EU regulatory and scientific agencies "have determined repeatedly" that biotech products withheld from the European market "are safe for human consumption and pose no risk to the environment."

Stallman said the moratorium "has resulted in lost export markets for U.S. agricultural producers valued at hundreds of millions of dollars annually."

Recently, Farm Bureau and 25 other agricultural groups urged U.S. Trade Representative Robert Zoellick to go ahead with a WTO dispute settlement case. "The EU's ongoing and illegal moratorium has resulted in lost export markets for U.S. producers and exporters, a slowdown in the adoption of new technologies in the United States and other countries, and increased production and testing costs for U.S. agricultural interests," the groups noted.

APHIS Declares Great Britain Free Of FMD, Rinderpest

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Great Britain is free of foot and mouth disease (FMD) and rinderpest, two diseases that have plagued the country's livestock population over the past two years, and is relieved of certain FMD-related trade restrictions, APHIS announced in a final rule published in the Federal Register.

Great Britain consists of England, Scotland, Wales, and the Isle of Man.

Great Britain has met the standards of the Office International des Epizooties (OIE) for being considered free of FMD and can be added to the list of regions considered free of FMD, APHIS stated in the final rule. The rule became effective on Dec. 17, 2002.

Great Britain and Northern Ireland have been moved to a list denoting that certain restriction must still apply because of the countries' proximity to or trading relationships with rinderpest- or FMD-affected regions. The change in status relieves certain restrictions on the importation of ruminants and swine, fresh (chilled or frozen) meat and other products of ruminants and swine into the U.S. from Great Britain.

Dairylea, DFA Working To Stop Imports Of Raw Milk From Canada

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Dairylea Cooperative Inc. and the Northeast Council of Dairy Farmers of America, Inc. (DFA) are working on a number of initiatives at the state and federal levels to close loopholes permitting the importation of bulk raw milk from Canada.

Currently, there are reports of small volumes of milk from Canada being delivered to cheese plants in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Indiana. Dairylea and DFA are asking that all imports of raw milk from Canada be prohibited in an effort to prevent any negative effects on U.S. farm milk prices.

The importation of bulk raw milk is regulated by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) as established in the Import Milk Act of 1927. The FDA is an agency of the Federal Department of Health and Human Services. Under this act, the FDA is responsible for granting licenses for all imported milk and ensuring that necessary inspections are completed.

"Unlimited imports of Canadian milk would ultimately lower farm milk prices in the Northeast and throughout the U.S.," said Clyde Rutherford, president of Dairylea Cooperative. "Although at this time the problem is small, Canadian milk brokers have shown interest in bidding out significant volumes to U.S. buyers. The problem will only escalate."

"This milk is a part of Canada's surplus and is being dumped in our markets. This can potentially worsen our supply/demand issues," said Lewis Gardner, chairman of the Northeast Council of Dairy Farmers of America. "At a time when we are starting to see positive signals that U.S. milk prices will improve, it is critically important to eliminate a problem that could negatively impact farmer income if left unchecked."

Dairylea and DFA's Northeast Council are working on the following initiatives:

- Meeting with Tommy Thompson, secretary of the Department of Health and human Services, to discuss the negative impacts of the FDA's practice of granting licenses for imports.
- Asking Northeastern state departments of agriculture to take action to prohibit milk plants in their states from receiving Canadian milk. New York, Vermont and Ohio have already taken measures to prohibit these imports.
- Requesting Congressional support in pressuring the Department of Health and Human Services to make the appropriate administrative changes, which would prohibit raw milk imports from Canada.

Both cooperatives are also generating grassroots support from members on this issue. Members are being asked to contact their state's secretary or commissioner of agriculture and congressional leaders to make them aware of the problem.

"I believe that if dairy farmers work together to voice their concerns on this issue, we will see action," said Rutherford. "This is an instance where government officials have the ability to remedy a problem before it gets out of hand."

Farm Show History, Construction Next Issue

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Before TV, before video games, before the Internet . . . there was the Pennsylvania Farm Show. Crowds flocked here near mid-century to the Small Arena (now called the Sale Arena) to see this horseshoe contest. Read a complete history of the Farm Show Complex and learn how new construction will uplift the face of future Farm Shows, beginning in 2003, in Lancaster Farming's Farm Show Showcase section next week. This week, schedules, exhibitors, and maps of the Farm Show appear on pages D25-D29.

EPA Ruling Concerns Land O'Lakes

ARDEN HILLS, Minn. — Land O'Lakes, Inc. voiced concern that the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) new Concentrated Animal Feeding Operation (CAFO) rule, released earlier this week, will add to the financial pressure farmers are facing after an already difficult year.

While the national farmer-owned food and agricultural cooperative appreciates the importance of the new regulations, there is concern among its membership regarding the cost of compliance, according to Steven Krikava, Land O'Lakes director of government relations.

"Land O'Lakes supports programs that will provide cost-sharing and will help livestock producers comply with the new regulations," Krikava said. "We also are pleased that the United States Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) will be involved with implementation of the nutrient planning aspect of the rules."

The CAFO rule will apply generally to pork producers who feed at least 2,500 mature animals in confinement for more than 45 days per year, although in some instances smaller operations will be affected.

For dairy farms, the regulation will affect those with a herd size of 700 or more, though some smaller operations may have to acquire permits under the Clean Water Act, develop nutrient management plans, improve record-keeping and monitoring, and enhance nutrient handling activities.

The EPA worked with industry representatives like Land O'Lakes in an attempt to keep the rules realistic and workable.

"Our members are the best stewards of the land," Krikava said. "We know that they will ensure their dairy and livestock operations are not polluting our nation's environment, so we urge our producers to participate in programs like the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) in order to cushion the cost of compliance."

2003 New Holland Vegetable Day Set

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Greenhouse tomatoes, weed, insect and disease control in vegetables, and asparagus production are just a few of the more than a dozen topics to be covered at the New Holland Vegetable Day January 20, 2003.

The meeting is sponsored by the Eastern Lancaster County School District and Lancaster County Cooperative Extension.

Greenhouse flower growers will want to catch the sessions on "Perennial Production" and "Mum Varieties and Production."

A panel of local growers will talk about their experiences with using beneficial insects instead of pesticides for greenhouse tomatoes. Raspberry and strawberry production and food preservation will round out the program.

Category pesticide credits will be available at some sessions. Two core pesticide credits will be offered at the "Pesticide Safety" session.

The meeting will be Monday, Jan. 20, at Yoder's Restaurant in New Holland. Yoder's is located along Rt. 23 at the eastern edge of New Holland.

Registration begins at 9 a.m. Cost for the day is $10 per person if you preregister by Jan. 15, or $15 per person at the door. Lunch is provided.

For more information, contact Jeff Stoltzfus, (717) 354-1522. To register, send the enclosed form along with a check for the appropriate amount to Adult Farmer Program, 126 Eastern School Rd., New Holland, PA 17557.

Pa. Holstein To Offer Special Membership Rates At Farm Show

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Holstein Association will have information booths at both the Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg and the Keystone Farm Show in York. The Keystone Show runs Jan. 7-9 and the Pennsylvania Farm Show runs Jan. 11-18.

The association invites members and friends to stop by and visit them to find out what's new and happening in the association.

People who are interested in joining the Pennsylvania Holstein Association will want to consider a visit to either show as a time to join the association. Pennsylvania Holstein will be running a membership special for new members who join between Jan. 1-18. Any new member can join at that time for a base fee of $17.50 plus 33 cents per cow.

The association encourages dairy producers and other dairy industry enthusiasts interested in joining the association to stop by the booth and visit with the association about becoming a member. If you cannot attend either Farm Show, you can still send in an application by Jan. 18 to receive the new member discounts.

For more information about the Pennsylvania Holstein Association or to receive a membership application, contact the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, 839 Benner Pike, State College, PA 16801. USDA Grants Protection To 25 New Plant Varieties

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA has issued certificates of protection to developers of 25 new varieties of seed-reproduced and tuber-propagated plants. They include bean, corn, fescue, lettuce, meadowfoam, oat, sorghum, soybean, and wheat.

The 25 certificates are being issued under the Plant Variety Protection Act. The certificates require that the varieties be new, distinct, uniform, and stable. The owners will have the exclusive right to reproduce, sell, import, and export their products in the U.S. for the duration of protection.

The 25 certificates are:

• The Titan variety of garden bean, developed by Seminis Vegetable Seeds, Inc., Oxnard, Calif.

• The 01IUL6, 01DHD10, 86ISI3, 90LDC2, 91ISI4, 91ISI6, 9DZD2W, GM9215, RDBQ2 and WQDS2 varieties of field corn, developed by DEKALB Genetics Corporation, DeKalb, Ill.

• The Quatro variety of sheep fescue, developed by Cebeco Seeds, B.V., Vlijmen, The Netherlands

• The Headmaster variety of lettuce, developed by Progeny Advanced Genetics, Inc., Salinas, Calif.

• The Wheeler~ and Knowles~ varieties of meadowfoam, developed by State of Oregon, acting by and through the State Board of Higher Education on behalf of Oregon State University, Corvallis, Ore.

• The Vista variety of oat, developed by Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment Station, Madison, Wis.

• The Moraine variety of oat, developed by Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation, Madison, Wis.

• The PHKKKVJYE variety of sorghum, developed by Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., Plainview, Texas

• The MN1301~ and MN0301~ varieties of soybean, developed by Minnesota Agricultural Experiment Station, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, Minn.

• The W91-233-21, Savage~ and Cutter~ varieties of common wheat, developed by Monsanto Company, St. Louis, Mo.

• The 38247 and 38158 varieties of common wheat, developed by Virginia Tech Intellectual Properties, Inc., Blacksburg, Va.

~In the United States, seed of this variety (1) shall be sold by variety name only as a class of certified seed and (2) shall conform to the number of generations specified by the owner of the rights (84 STAT. 1542, as amended, 7 U.S.C. 2321 ET SEQ).

Dairy Stakeholders Look To The Future During Conference

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Attendees of the recent Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders annual conference listened to discussions centering on opportunities and building a future in the dairy industry

John Lord, professor of food marketing, St. Joseph's University, spoke about his ideas for the future of the industry.

The future of milk marketing, he said, can be assured by focusing on faster-growing niches (such as organic) and segmented markets (such as children, ethnic groups, and people focused on health).

Milk consumption, in general, has fallen for the past three decades, said Lord.

There has been a 36 percent decline in milk consumption among teens in the past 25 years, according to USDA studies. In fact, the milk industry loses half of the consumers during teen years.

According to Lord, demographics have been partly to blame for the decline. Smaller households and on-the-go families mean no more cereal for breakfast, for example.

Also, competitive products in the beverage industry have increased. Besides more drink offerings to the consumer, new calcium-fortified products on the market means that "dairy no longer monopolizes calcium," said Lord.

The good news is that there is significant growth in the cheese, yogurt, and sour cream avenues.

In fact, decline has stabilized overall in 2001 and has even increased among teens. Among consumers 6-12 years old, the fluid milk consumption is the highest it has been in 10 years.

Why the change? New products are now seen as "hip," according to Lord. These new products — which include new flavors — are milk in convenient, lifestyle-oriented packages that are portable. The packages are colorful, with splashy graphics.

John Lord, professor of food marketing, St. Joseph's University, spoke about his ideas for the future of the industry.

In addition, "the industry is getting the message out, building awareness, and educating consumers on the health benefits" of dairy.

A key consumer trend is that "taste is king," said Lord. The consumer is saying, "give me something a bit different. I like the total consumption experience."

"It's not the same old white milk anymore," said Lord. "We have to do something different for people who are looking for something different."

Convenience is also a factor in milk sales. The single-serving container should fit in cupholders or backpacks. Single servings not only "help to make the product more portable," but allow everyone in the household to choose their own flavor of milk, Lord pointed out.

Health is another of today's consumers concerns. "A significant issue today is calcium intake. Only 30 percent of male teens and 10-12 percent of female teens consumer enough dairy to get the calcium they need," he said.

Distribution will also be key. "One of the ways to increase milk consumption is to take it to alternative channels," he said. Vending machines or kiosks in transit terminals and other locations could make single-serving milk more accessible to the public.

"Yogurt is perfect for the modern American who is on the go, and who wants to have some health.

Changes in school, he recommended, were using plastic containers instead of cardboard, gable-topped containers, making sure the product is cold, and making the milk available not only in the cafeteria line, but also in vending machines.

In addition to Lord, three speakers combined to speak about building a successive dairy industry.

Carl Theunis, Wisconsin, discussed transitioning a business. Theunis stressed the importance of teaching family members while they are "working alongside of us," he said.

"Give your children a chance," he said. "Let them be involved in the decision-making now." Having meetings where family members decide goals or make projections, he said, is an integral part of the transition process.

The golden rule of leadership, according to Theunis, is to build people up by building their self-esteem.

It is also critical to pass on a positive attitude. "Make sure that as they're small, and growing up, that they know the importance of working in agriculture," he said.

"A winner empowers, a loser confronts," he said. "A winner sees opportunity, a losers sees problem."

Theunis, who has four sons, cited a few transition planning questions, such as, who will take responsibility? Is the business structure for change/succession? Are those stepping into responsibility ready for change?

Sharon Zimmerman, Meadowview Farms, Reinolds, is involved with a 650-cow operation that employs six full-time and nine part-time people.

The dairy recently went through a major expansion after a 3-4 year planning process.

Off-farm experience in a plant nursery helped Zimmerman, she said, learn the employee management skills she uses as she works with the dairy's employees. A motivator is willing to praise, gives employs directions, sets expectations, and measures employee results.

She also learned prioritization of tasks, such as stepping back and deciding what to focus on first. Communication skills for training, listening to, and asking questions of employees are also important in her work at the family dairy operation.

Establishing routines and meeting a budget are also important, she said. Zimmerman came back to the family, she said, to work on the challenge of expansion and to work with her family.

"Successful farming from generation to generation does not just happen. It's a process that you need to prepare for. You need to address concerns of employees and come up with a plan that is going to work for everyone," she said.

Andy Young, from Red Knob Farms, a 750-cow, 600-heifer operation that employs 25 people and includes 450 tillable acres and pasture, also discussed intergenerational family farming.

Young, a past Pennsylvania FFA president and involved with mission work, draws on his college degree and other varied experiences as he works on the farm.

Although his life's experience may have pointed him more toward the business world, he returned to the farm to enjoy the quality of life, flexibility, and time for family and service that agriculture offers.

Farming "provides challenge and fulfillment, and puts my skills to work," he said.

Although Young said that his talents are not in outdoor work, but in administrative arena, "What skill set is required to be effective in agriculture?" he asked. "Each one of us plays an important part on moving the operation forward."

Young wanted to benefit both him and the farm, and uses his skills to "put feet and legs under the ideas of the organization," he said.

"As an industry, we need to check our mindset about what a dairy farmer must look like." Red Knob Farms, he believes, has taken his talents and combined that with other employees with more traditional talents for diversity.

Karen Vines, distance education coordinator, Penn State, discussed Dairy Farm Planning, a comprehensive list of service providers and educational resources for progressive dairies.

A Website, she said, was the vehicle of choice to disseminate information, since it can be easily updated. The purpose of the site is to suggest a logical progression for changes and provide contact information.

Key sections are project planning, financial resources, construction, and operations management.

The Website address is dairydevelopment.psu.edu.

Penn State Improves Dairy Website

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State's Dairy Cattle Nutrition Group recently launched an improved version of their Website, which may be accessed at the same address as the previous site: www.das.psu.edu/dcn.

The Website features redesigned navigation bars and categorizes resources by topic to help visitors find information quickly.

With the release of the new Website, Penn State also offers several new resources, including a revised edition of the publication "Feeding the Newborn Dairy Calf" and fact sheets covering manure evaluation and free-choice mineral feeding.

These publications join more than 30 other publications that address many aspects of nutrition and feeding management, forage quality, and feeding and management of dairy heifers and calves.

The Website also provides spreadsheet tools to improve nutritional programs. These include tools to evaluate particle size and heifer growth and to calculate feed values and compare feed ingredients. In addition, videos discussing rumen function, silage fermentation, rumen development, body condition scoring, calf care, and heifer rearing can be ordered from the Website.

Other resources available on the site include information about upcoming continuing education events, links to experts, movie clips, and free cow images.

Penn State Wood Fiber-Cement Research May Yield Better Shingles

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Here in the East, where most shingles are made of asphalt and people give little thought to the advantages of shingles made of cement, the significance of Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences researcher Paul Blankenhorn's work may not be obvious.

But in places like the West — where the specter of wildfire passing from burning trees to the roofs of houses is all too common — the benefits of fireproof coverings is obvious. But until relatively recently, cement was thought to be too weak and brittle to be used for products such as shingles and siding that must be durable and at least slightly flexible.

That is changing, however, as scientists discover ways to supplement cement with additives to make composite materials that retain cement's best properties — fire resistance, water resistance and stability — while contributing elasticity and crack resistance. Blankenhorn says wood seems to hold the most promise as a cement additive, and it is the medium on which he has focused.

Over eight years, the professor of wood technology has studied the effects of adding wood fiber from recycled newspaper and kraft paper (brown paper bags) to Portland cement. He has experimented with coating the wood fibers with various water soluble polymers such as acrylics, silicates and silane before they are added to the cement. Blankenhorn's work shows how cement-wood fiber composites can make lighter, stronger, flexible, more durable shingles, siding and other products.

"In our research, we did not use wood particles, but wood fibers — the individual cells," Blankenhorn said. "That's completely different than what has been done before — using wood particles, such as sawdust, as an inert filler material. We tried to create a composite material that retained the best properties of both the cement and the wood."

According to Blankenhorn, some of the advantages wood fibers bring to cement-fiber composites include availability, high tensile strength, relatively high elasticity and the well-developed technology to easily extract the fibers for use in the composites.

"Europeans have been using cement products for shingles for years, as have the Japanese," said Blankenhorn. "The shortcoming of such cement products, obviously, is that they are brittle and break easily. We are trying to develop ways to make cement products stronger and more flexible. I think our research shows that cement products can be made stronger and more flexible if wood fiber is treated before being added to cement to make composites."

Wet Months Wipe Out Drought In Pa.

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — When Yogi Berra said "it ain't over'til it's over," obviously he wasn't talking about the most recent drought in Pennsylvania, but Bryan Swistock believes he could have been.

The water resources extension specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences is reluctant to declare that the state's water worries are over after a four-year dry spell, but he is optimistic. An unusual weather pattern that has driven a series of rainstorms up the East Coast during October and early November is "just what the doctor ordered," he said.

Although three southeastern counties — Cumberland, Delaware, and Chester — remain under a state-declared drought emergency and eight more still are listed under a drought warning, Swistock likes the rainfall trend he sees. Counties in the eastern part of the state have enjoyed rainfall two to nine inches above normal levels this fall.

"Interestingly, almost all our counties now are back to normal levels of precipitation for the year," he said. "Some counties still are under drought emergency or warning because their groundwater levels had fallen so far after four years of exceptionally dry weather. But most of the groundwater deficits have been erased."

Paradoxically, the western half of Pennsylvania has been relatively dry during the last couple months while the eastern half has been soggy. "That is just a reflection of how we have been getting coastal storms that dump rain mostly on the eastern sections," Swistock said. "You almost can draw a line at the front of the Appalachian mountains and west of that line precipitation levels have been slightly below normal for October and early November."

According to Swistock, an interesting precipitation phenomenon has developed this year and he likens it to — for lack of a better example, although it sounds a bit silly for Pennsylvania — monsoons. "Think about it. Most of our rainfall this year came during two periods — in May-June and October-November. In between, it was so dry that crops withered and wells went dry," he said.

"It's a strange pattern for us here in Pennsylvania. Normally, precipitation levels are more consistent throughout the year, with the amounts not varying too much from month to month. But 2002 has been different."

Still, as Swistock is careful to point out, there is nothing to say that Pennsylvania won't slip back into a dry weather pattern this winter and see drought return next year. Perhaps Berra put it best when he said, "The future just ain't what it used to be."

SPOTLIGHT ON FAMILIES IN ANNUAL FARM SHOW ISSUE

The new and expanded Farm Show opens to the public on Saturday, Jan. 11. And one of our largest, and best issues, is soon to hit mailboxes. The Jan. 11 issue will be Lancaster Farming's own Farm Show Issue, which highlights the newly expanded, largest indoor agricultural event in the country. Included that issue: Farm Show family highlights, Keystone Degree recipient biographies, events schedule, and maps. It's a brand-new Farm Show this year. We hope to see you there!

Lehigh County 4-H Members Honored For Accomplishments

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — Five Lehigh County 4-H Club members were named outstanding boy or girl for their 4-H club work and participation in activities at the annual 4-H Achievement Night, held recently.

Thomas Nardo of Coopersburg and Hannah Geiger of Schnecksville were named Outstanding Boy and Girl among 8- to 10-year-olds. Nardo is a member of the Southern Lehigh Helping Hands 4-H Club and worked on bicycle, computer, and woodworking projects among others last year. Geiger is a member of the Neffs Cloverettes 4-H Club. She completed a sewing project last year. Each received a scholarship to attend 4-H Camp Shehaqua next summer.

Andrew Knauss, Coopersburg, and Jennifer Rassler, Kempton, were recognized as Outstanding Boy and Girl, ages 11 to 14. Knauss worked on projects similar to those of Nardo as a member of the Southern Lehigh Helping Hands 4-H Club. Rassler is a member of both the Dairy 4-H Club and the Beef 4-H Club. She and some other youth pioneered a new project, Dairy Beef, last year. Both award recipients won student planners to help them keep track of their busy schedules.

Rachel Rennie, Center Valley, was named Outstanding Girl among 15- to 18-year-olds. She will be Lehigh County's delegate to next year's National 4-H Congress in Atlanta, Georgia. As a member of the Southern Lehigh Helping Hands 4-H Club last year, Rachel completed projects ranging from computers to sewing. She is also a member of the Teen Leadership 4-H Club and the Veterinary Science 4-H Club. Rennie was a camp counselor last summer. She also was one of two teens on the Pennsylvania delegation to the National 4-H Technology Conference in Minnesota last summer.

Club officers were recognized for their excellent work. Andrew Knauss won honors for his work as president of the club. Jennifer Rassler was recognized as an outstanding club secretary. Kristin Hulshart, Macungie, won honors for her work as treasurer of the Country Cabbits 4-H Club.

The Southern Lehigh Helping Hands 4-H Club won $25 for the best club scrapbook. The Neffs Cloverettes 4-H Club and the Equine 4-H Club each won $25 as outstanding clubs that met standards set for club work.

Adult volunteers were also recognized for their years of work as club leaders. Completing their first year as a 4-H volunteer were Kenneth Gehringer, Kutztown; Robin Rassler, Kempton; and Vicki Schantzenbach, Coopersburg, all with the Beef 4-H Club. Colleen Knauss, Coopersburg, Southern Lehigh Helping Hands 4-H Club; Renee Van Wert, Wescosville, South Paws Seeing-Eye Puppy 4-H Club; Rachel Stridsberg, Zionsville, Sheep 4-H Club; and Teresa Billig, New Tripoli, Swine 4-H Club; all completed their first year as a 4-H volunteer.

Connie McKenney, New Tripoli, and Kim Moyer, Kutztown, each completed five years as 4-H club leaders with the club at Lilliput Learning Center, Lynn Township.

Ann Mittura, Emmaus, was honored for 10 years as a sewing club volunteer, first with the Trexlertown Merry Stitchers 4-H Club and now with the Emmaus 4-H Sewing Club.

Teens received recognition for their work as teen leaders in their clubs. Leadership may be formal such as holding an office or acting as a camp counselor. Some teens teach projects to younger members. Informal types of leadership include helping younger members learn and practice a project-related skill or teaching youth one-on-one how to do a demonstration or show and tell.

First year teen leadership — Lindsay Anglestein, Fountain Hill; Liz Bleiler, New Tripoli; Katy Graffman, Allentown; David Harwick, Kempton; Andrew Knauss, Coopersburg; Jenny Lenhart, New Tripoli; Mike Moyer, Kempton; Alicia Nardo, Coopersburg; Kristen Oplinger, Wescosville; Renee Ruhe, New Tripoli; and Robyn Wirth, Orefield.

Second year teen leadership award recipients were Christian Bleiler, New Tripoli; Andrew German, Mertztown; Kelsey Gilbert, Allentown; Kristin Hulshart, Macungie; Jennifer Rassler, Kempton; and Hannah Vogels, Kempton.

Third year teen leadership awards went to Karley White and Stephanie Wolfe, New Tripoli; and Christopher Jameson, Orefield.

Katie Harwick and Suzanne Harwick, Kempton; Stacey Mangold, New Tripoli; and Rachel Rennie, Center Valley, were given fourth year teen leadership awards.

Josh Wagner, New Tripoli, earned a fifth year award. Erin Lichtenwalner, Coplay, earned a sixth year award for teen leadership.

Eastern Regional Hereford Classic Show At KILE

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Hereford breed took center stage at the 46th annual Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE) with their Eastern Regional Hereford Classic Show, exhibiting some of the best of the Hereford breed.

Rising to the top of the show was Four-L Hereford Farm hailing from Murfreesboro, Tenn. with the winning of the premier breeder and exhibitor banners.

MESHOPPEN (Wyoming Co.) — According to reliable reports from Washington, D.C., the USDA in all probability will not honor Tioga County farmers' sincere request to be eligible to receive payments under the Livestock Feed Assistance Program.

Arden Tewksbury, manager of Progressive Agriculture Organization (Pro-Ag), said, "With the severe adverse economic conditions facing most farmers, it's unbelievable the USDA will not release payments to the Tioga County farmers."

All the counties surrounding Tioga were declared eligible for the feeding programs earlier in the fall of 2002.

However, according to Tewksbury, Tioga County farmers were left "holding the bag" when the reports submitted by the Tioga County Farm Service Agency (FSA) officials to the Harrisburg office failed to qualify the Tioga County farmers for drought assistance.

For a county to be eligible for the drought assistance, local officials had to declare at least one major crop to have at least a 30 percent loss before Sept. 19, 2002.

Tewksbury claims that Pro-Ag received calls during July from farmers in Tioga County concerning dry conditions in that area.

The Drought Assistance Program was announced by the U.S. secretary of agriculture on Sept. 19, 2002. However, according to Tewksburg, "there was no grace period given to any state to update their reports to the USDA."

Sixteen U.S. Senators submitted a letter to U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Ann Veneman, urging her to reopen the drought program. In addition, U.S. Senators Arlen Specter and Rick Santorum submitted a letter to the secretary. Other key local and state officials also contacted the secretary.

Pro-Ag can be reached at (570) 833-5776.

Pa. Grange Objects To New Over-Order Premium

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The lowering of the over-order milk premium in the new year will create further hardship for Pennsylvania dairy farmers, according to a statement released by the Pennsylvania State Grange.

Arthur Zug, a dairy farmer from Juniata County representing the Grange, had testified Nov. 6 before the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) recommending that the $1.65 per hundredweight over-order premium be extended for at least a six-month period.

The over-order premium is the amount paid to Pennsylvania dairy farmers above the federally mandated price for Class I (fluid) milk produced, processed, and sold in Pennsylvania.

On Dec. 4, the PMMB issued a general order which reduces the present $1.65 per hundredweight over-order premium to $1.50 for January, $1.40 for February, $1.30 for March and $1.25 for April through June 30.

The PMMB stated that the decision to incrementally reduce the premium was made in order to prevent Pennsylvania milk processors from looking to other states for cheaper milk.

In recommending the $1.65 over-order premium extension, Zug had told the board: "Economists continue to tell us the market for milk remains tight in Pennsylvania. In fact, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service, milk production was down 0.8 percent from last year's September production."

Zug said that the total number of milk cows in the state has decreased by 9,000 head from September 2001. Dairy farmers are in financial trouble, he said. Not only are they contending with low milk prices, but the recent drought conditions have taken a toll on the dairy industry causing up to 50 percent yield loss in the past two years.

Dairymen would like a fair price for their product, instead of programs to support price levels.

"Art and dairy farmers alike must be given the opportunity to receive a fair price for their product," said Brenda Shambaugh, legislative director for the Pennsylvania State Grange.

Dairy Feeders School Planned At Mason Dixon Farms

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Mason Dixon Farms will host a Dairy Feeders School on Tuesday, Jan. 7. The Penn State Cooperative Extension Capital Region Dairy Team is conducting this program to enhance the feeding management skills of dairy farm owners, managers, and their employees. Most of the day's program will be hands-on training activities!

The morning session begins with registration at 9:30 a.m. The program will begin at 10 a.m. During the morning session, Dr. Jud Heinrichs, Penn State dairy and animal science, Dr. Arlen Mills, Capital Region dairy herd health agent and Vinton Smith, Capital Region dairy program coordinator, will discuss using dry matter, visual appraisal, and pH to evaluate silage samples. Hands-on activities will include procedures to test dry matter and what to look for when visually appraising a forage sample. Calculations to adjust rations using these measurements will be reviewed.

The afternoon program will look at particle size and the effects of mixing time on particle size of finished TMRs. Participants will then tour the bunkers and feeding system at Mason Dixon Farms. Doyle Waybright will discuss the farm's management system and answer questions about the farm operation. An optional tour of Mason Dixon Farms will be conducted at the conclusion of the session.

Cost for the training including program materials and lunch is $25

articipant. The session is limited to the first 25 people who apply. To register for the training, please call the York County Cooperative Extension at (717) 840-7408. You may also fax your registration to (717) 755-5968 or e-mail Vinton Smith at (vsmith@psu.edu). Please register by Jan. 3 so adequate materials may be prepared for the sessions.

Cornell Offers Sheep-Shearing Schools

HARFORD, N.Y. — Two sheep-shearing schools will be conducted in 2003 at the Cornell Sheep Farm on Slaterville Road off Rt. 38 near Harford, N.Y.

A beginners' shearing school is scheduled for Jan. 25 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. This course will be taught by Jim Baldwin, an experienced shearer from Ithaca.

Registration is limited. To register, contact Brian Magee at (607) 844-8367 or by email at bhm5@cornell.edu. The fee is $25 (cash or check to Jim Baldwin on the day of the school.)

A professional shearing school is set for March 8-9 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Registration is limited and the fee is $100. This course will be taught by Doug Rathke, an award-winning professional shearer from Hutchinson, Minn. The information taught in the course will include the shearing pattern, blade sharpening techniques, physical fitness, handpiece maintenance and more.

To register, contact Doug at Liberty Land & Livestock, 61231 Minnesota Highway 7, Hutchinson, MN 55350, by phone at (320) 587-6094 or by e-mail at lambshop@hutchtel.net.

AgrAbility to Exhibit At Farm Expos

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — AgrAbility for Pennsylvanians, the USDA funded project that provides assistance to farmers and farm family members who are coping with a disability or long-term illness, will be hosting an exhibit at upcoming state agricultural expositions.

Jan. 7-9 producers can find AgrAbility at the Keystone Farm Show in York. At the Keystone, AgrAbility will be sharing space with Penn State Cooperative Extension, at booths 219 and 220.

Jan. 11-18, AgrAbility staff will be found at the Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg, where they will be located with the Penn State Cooperative Extension Ag Safety and Health exhibit.

AgrAbility for Pennsylvania supports farmers and their families through the combined resources of Penn State Cooperative Extension and Easter Seals of Central Pennsylvania. The project can assist those who are struggling with arthritis, back injury, amputation, chronic pain, head injuries, hearing impairment, heart conditions, stroke, respiratory diseases, visual impairment, and many other health conditions.

Project staff helps by providing on-site assessments of farm operations and identifying the limitations of the prospective client. Staff then recommend farm equipment adaptations, home modifications, and adaptive equipment. The project refers families to local service providers and funding sources; and can also provide peer and caregiver support from other farm family members with disabilities.

Those interested in learning more about the AgrAbility program are invited to visit the display at either exhibition. To contact AgrAbility for Pennsylvanians, call toll-free within Pennsylvania at (866) 238-4434, or (814) 863-7490. Ice Cream Fun, Profit Featured At Penn State Short Course

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Ice cream usually is considered "fun food," but industry and medical developments make it serious business at the 111th annual Penn State Ice Cream Short Course, Jan. 6-16 at the Nittany Lion Inn on the University Park campus.

The course is the nation's oldest, best-known and largest educational program dedicated to the science and technology of ice cream. Seminar director Bob Roberts, associate professor of food science in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, points out that several factors make ice cream attractive to people looking to start their own business.

"Everybody loves ice cream," Roberts said. "It's just a fun product. A former Penn State professor once told me that, no matter where he went in the world, whenever he saw ice cream, he knew he was in civilization. I think, based on some of the events of the last 18 months, that people are looking for things that give them comfort and pleasure and that say, 'we're civilized.' I think ice cream is one of them. But first and foremost, ice cream is fun."

The short course provides instruction in every phase of commercial ice cream manufacture, including ingredients and flavors, manufacturing better quality frozen desserts, and nutrition and additives. The 2003 course will feature more opportunities for participants to gain hands-on experience.

Roberts sees two factors drawing entrepreneurs interested in entering into the ice cream business: organic ice cream products and nutriceuticals — foods with active medicinal properties.

"We mentioned nutriceuticals last year, and there's still a lot of interest in that," he said. "It's a way of producing a food that's good for you and good to eat. At Penn State, we're looking to develop various dairy products that incorporate omega-3 fatty acids, which are involved in the prevention of coronary heart and artery disease. Omega-3 fatty acids are found in fish oils, and we're looking for ways to stabilize the oils so that the ice cream doesn't taste fishy."

Consolidation trends have continued in the ice cream industry, Roberts says, with large companies getting larger. But there's a newer trend of small companies stepping in to fill niche ice cream markets.

"So other avenues for the entrepreneur include the potential to provide small-volume specialty flavors and organic products that the big companies aren't interested in," he said. "The other thing that I see in the industry is the introduction of new ingredients — fruit-and-ice-cream combinations, for instance."

Other developments include good-tasting low-fat products, fat substitutes and dairy-soy blends that combine the benefits of each. New speakers for the 2003 short course include Douglas Goff of the University of Guelph, who will talk about ice cream microstructure, and Carrie Fry, vice president with the International Dairy Foods Association, who will talk about the control of allergens in ice cream.

For more information on the short course, call (814) 865-8301 or visit the Web at http://conferences.cas.psu.edu or http://www.foodscience.psu.edu/.

Cedar Crest FFA Members

Recently members of the Cedar Crest FFA went to Louisville, Ky. to attend the National FFA Convention. Amber Frank, Sarah Krall, Kyle Seyfert, Tara Miller, Travils Krall, Samantha Shepler, Kevin Kreider, Jessica Rose, Rebecca Eisenhauer, Janelle Zimmerman, Heather Balsbaugh, and Mark Balmer attended and were supervised by Harold Berkheiser and Gerald Strickler.

Kyle Seyfert, Samantha Shepler, Mark Balmer, Janelle Zimmerman, Kevin Kreider, and Heather Balsbaugh competed in the Parliamentary Procedure contest at the National FFA Convention. The team placed in the silver bracket and received individual medals and a team plaque. All participants worked hard and are to be commended for their efforts.

Students from Cedar Crest also participated in other events and received other rewards. Sarah Krall and Amber Frank won second place in science fair in the environmental category. Jason Balsbaugh received the coveted American Degree at the convention. The American Degree is the highest degree a member can earn. The Cedar Crest Chapter also won a Two-Star National Rating for its activities throughout the year. This award places Cedar Crest in the top 10 percent of all FFA chapters in the nation.

They made several stops on the way to Kentucky and were able to visit the Dayton Air Force Base Museum, Indianapolis Motor Speedway, Louisville Zoo and they also had the chance to tour the Louisville Slugger Baseball Bat Factory.

Hans Herr FFA Members Attend Leadership Conference

Five members of the Lancaster Mennonite High School Hans Herr FFA Chapter attended the 2002 Fall Conference for Leadership and Professional Development at the Altoona Convention Center in Blair County.

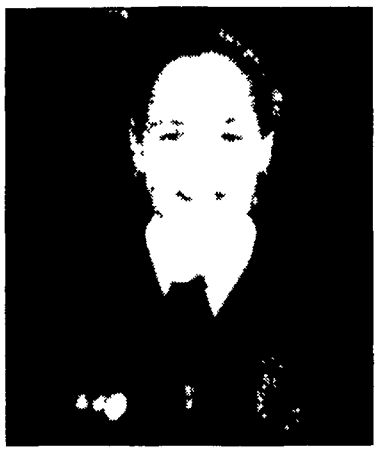
The Hans Herr freshmen are Apryl Becker, daughter of Merle and Janet Becker, Kinzers; Debra Groff, daughter of Dean and Darlene Groff, Kinzers; Linford Hershey, son of Les and Lois Hershey, Kirkwood; Rachael Ranck, daughter of James and Joan Ranck, Christiana; and Monica Keeney, daughter of John and Gail Keeney, Lincoln University. Teacher Lem Metzler served as their adviser.

West Snyder Member Named SUN Area Star Farmer

Amanda Shaffer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Shaffer of Beavertown, was named SUN Area FFA Star Farmer at the meeting, Nov. 12 at Middleburg High School. This award is presented annually to the member top member during the year they earn their SUN Area FFA Degree. The recipient must exhibit premier leadership and conduct an outstanding supervised occupational experience program.

Amanda currently serves as the reporter in the West Snyder FFA Chapter. She has earned gold medals in the area, regional, and state chapter procedure career development event; and blue ribbons in the SUN Area FFA Dairy Judging event as well as a gold medal in the State FFA Record Keeping contest. She also won the North Central Regional Outstanding Project Book Award. Her SAE projects include dairy herd, sheep finishing, and on-farm employment. She also represented West Snyder FFA at the Washington Leadership Conference this summer.

Amanda is a varsity cheerleader at West Snyder and an active member of the Pennsylvania Jr. Holstein Association. Her future plans are to become a dietitian.



Amanda Shaffer, Beavertown, SUN Area FFA Star Farmer.

Busines$ense To Tackle Data Management Challenges

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Participating in a dairy business analysis and benchmark program can shed considerable light on how efficiently a business is performing. However, the information one gets back from participating in such program is only as good as the information that is entered into it.

Transforming data into information is a complex process that involves a number of different steps. An important, but often overlooked, step in information management is data organization, which provides structure to the raw data so it can be processed, reported, and analyzed. Standardization in data organization is critical to developing uniform and useful benchmarks. Producers participating in the Busines$ense Program learn how to implement this best management practice in information management.

The lack of standardization in how data is organized is particularly prevalent in the dairy industry. While the national Dairy Herd Improvement Association has done a tremendous job in standardizing production records, financial records are another story. The Farm Financial Standards Council has done a sound job in developing guidelines for processing and reporting data for farming businesses in general. However, it has not addressed standardization of data organization for dairy businesses. The chart of accounts in accounting programs provides structure to the financial data of a dairy business.

Developing a standardized chart of accounts for dairy businesses is the initial step in developing better benchmarks. A prime example of the lack of standardization in financial records and how it can affect benchmarks is BST. Since its introduction in 1995, there has been little consistency in classifying BST expenses. Some producers classify it as feed expenses; others as vet expenses, and others as supply expenses. Other producers have set up a separate account for BST. When used as approved, BST expenses will total between $90-$100 dollars per cow per year. Vet expenses and supplies expenses often account for similar figures as BST expenses. So business owners who classify BST as vet or supplies expenses might look at a benchmark for these expenses and wonder why they are spending twice as much as other herds.

With the turn of a new year comes an opportunity to review how data is organized in your dairy accounting system. Although standardization should be approached on a national level, individuals at Penn State and Cornell Universities, in consultation with leaders from the dairy financial industry, have developed a standardized chart of accounts for dairy businesses operating in the Northeast. The standardized chart of accounts is available in several formats, including a paper copy that shows how to set the system up in any accounting program. The standardized chart of accounts is also available to users of QuickBooks and Perception accounting programs. The chart of accounts has already been set up to operate correctly in these programs. They are available on disks that can be easily restored to your computer. Paper copies and disks can be obtained by sending an email to HYPERLINK "mailto:bhilty@psu.edu" bhilty@psu.edu or by calling (717) 948-6612.

Producers participating in Busines$ense can learn how implementing better business and information management practices can help improve business performance. Busines$ense is a series of three meetings designed to progressively build the participants knowledge and use of best management practices in information and business management. Participants will analyze their dairy business using the Penn State/Cornell Dairy Farm Business Summary and a systematic approach to business analysis.

Program locations for this winter include: Lancaster County for Lancaster and surrounding counties; State College for central counties; Carlisle-Chambersburg area for Cumberland, Franklin, Adams and surrounding counties; Meadville for northwest counties; Troy for Tioga, Bradford, Sullivan and surrounding counties; and Somerset/Bedford for Somerset, Bedford and surrounding counties.

The cost of the program is $200 per producer. However, a grant from the Northeast Center for Risk Management Education will cover 50 percent of the registration fee. Additional people from the same dairy business can attend for 35 per person. Participation is limited to the first 15-16 producers who register at each location.

For additional information about Busines$ense, including dates and specific locations, or to register for a session near you, please call the Dairy Alliance Office at (888) 373-PADA or e-mail HYPERLINK "mailto:bhilty@psu.edu" bhilty@psu.edu .

4-H HAPPENINGS

Mainland 4-H Equestrian Club

The Mainland 4-H Equestrian Club recently met to discuss upcoming events in 4-H, including Horse Bowl, a game similar to Jeopardy, the 4-H Awards Night, and the club's new service project.

Club members will work on Saturdays at a therapeutic riding stable called Special Equestrians.

The club staged a "Friday Night Frolic" in early November. Members played games in the gym, and listened to the White family speak about the new model horse club, called the Tiny Trotters. The members then held a model horse gymkhana.

The Montgomery County 4-H Equine Awards Night took place Nov. 16 at the Shriner's Lu Lu Center. Every member of 4-H in Montgomery County received an award listing their points won from this year's show season. Amanda Lea Hoade won the Versatility Award for her work with training her own pony to harness and two donkeys for ground manners. Abby Hochman won awards for participating on the Junior Hippology team and attending the Agriculture Progress Day Skillathon.

Rough Riders 4-H Horse Club

The Rough Riders Club will hold its re-organizational meeting on Thursday, Jan. 2 at the Zion United Church of Christ, Winter Hill Road, New Providence, 7 p.m. Contact Debbie Anspach at 717-786-9324 or Cindy Fairchild at 717-394-5161 for more information.

For more information on joining the 4-H clubs, contact Katina Showman, 4-H agent at the Lancaster County 4-H Office, 1383 Arcadia Road, Room 1, Lancaster, PA 17601, phone (717) 394-6851.

Boots And Saddles 4-H Horse Club

The Boots and Saddles Club has scheduled its re-organizational meeting for 2003 on Friday, Feb. 21 at the Farm and Home Center, 1383 Arcadia Road, Lancaster at 7:30 p.m. Contact Rose Fellenbaum at (717) 664-5521 or Becky Miller at (717) 569-0792 for more information.

Bi-County Cabbits Club Hosts First Show

The Northampton County 4-H and Lehigh County 4-H Rabbit and Cavy Clubs have joined together and created the Bi-County Cabbits Rabbit and Cavy Club.

Saturday, Nov. 2 the Bi-County Cabbits sponsored its first annual Rabbit and Cavy Show, which took place at the Macungie Memorial Park in Macungie.

With the show beginning at nine, rabbits and cavies began to arrive by the hundreds. There were approximately 600 entries in the show.

Participants came from all across Pennsylvania, and many other states.

Participants were entered in the following shows: youth, Holland lop specialty, Dutch specialty, mini rex specialty, mini lop specialty, and pet class.

4-H members from both clubs came to help set up on Friday night, and families got involved on Saturday to make the show even more successful.

The judges were Peg Hailey, Wendy Feaga, Frank Delmastro and Bonnie Burdick. The show was a huge success, and they look forward to a great show next year.

State 4-H Horse Show Winners In Northampton County

Northampton County 4-H horse members received numerous awards at the 43rd annual State 4-H Horse Show.

First place county winners in 4-H performance classes were: Hunter seat equitation, junior-Hayley Willever, Pen Argyl; Hunter under saddle horses, senior-Sarah Whitley, Bangor.

Two Northampton County 4-H'ers Receive Leadership Awards

Northampton County 4-H members, Joel Geiger and Nicole Kondziela, have been awarded the national I Dare You Leadership Award in recognition of personal integrity, balanced living and potential for leadership. The honor was presented by Janice Martin at their award ceremonies conducted at Blue Valley Farm Show Building, Nov. 24.

Cumberland County 4-H Thanks Club Supporters

The Cumberland County 4-H club met to write thank you notes to all the people and businesses that supported our club in the past year. Some activities that were sponsored by people were the roundup and some contests that took place throughout the year.

President Brian Nailor called the meeting to order at the Second Presbyterian Church in Carlisle. Janel Zinn and Abby Haris led in the Pledge of Allegiance and Tori Fuller took roll call. A new member, Kyle Yorlets, was welcomed into the club. The minutes were approved as read.

Under old business, Tori Fuller gave the new list of officers, and Sarah Wickard and Janel Zinn reported on the fund raiser at Tractor Supply Co.

Under new business, the club moved to donate $200 to Maynard Long and his family for medical bills after his horse accident. Members will not be exchanging gifts again this year, but will donate toys to the Toys for Tots program.

Aaron Cornman gave a demonstration on BST and how it works.

Food Prices Rise In Fourth Quarter

PARK RIDGE, Ill. — Following two quarters of significant drops, retail prices for food at the supermarket rose in the fourth quarter, according to the latest American Farm Bureau Federation Marketbasket Survey.

The informal survey on the total cost of 16 basic grocery items showed an increase of 71 cents from this year's third quarter survey.

The $35.69 average paid by volunteer shoppers for the 16 items, although higher than the second and third quarter averages, is actually down 33 cents from the first quarter survey average of $36.02. While survey averages have fluctuated in 2002, food remains affordable overall. Since its inception in 1989, the AFBF Marketbasket Survey average has increased at a rate lower than other cost of living increases.

"Yes, food prices rose in the fourth quarter, but I think the key is that the average is still below first quarter levels," said AFBF Senior Economist John Skorburg. "Essentially that means food prices have remained flat to lower over the four quarters of 2002."

Of the 16 items surveyed, 11 increased, three decreased and two were unchanged in average price compared to the 2002 third quarter survey.

Sirloin tip roast showed the largest increase, up 27 cents to $3.12 per pound, followed closely by corn oil, up 21 cents to $2.39 per 32-ounce bottle. After falling 21 cents per pound in the third quarter, cheddar cheese rose 21 cents, back to $3.45 per pound.

Other items that increased in price included:

- Oat cereal, up 15 cents to $3.00 per 10-ounce box
- Bacon, up 14 cents to $2.88 per pound
- Whole fryers, up 12 cents to $1.05 per pound
- Vegetable oil, up 11 cents to $2.20 per 32-ounce bottle
- Eggs, up 7 cents to $1.12 per dozen
- Mayonnaise, up 6 cents to $3.00 per 32-ounce jar
- Ground chuck, up 6 cents to $2.09 per pound
- Whole milk, up 6 cents to $2.81 per gallon.

After being the largest gainer in price in the third quarter, russet potatoes plummeted 61 cents in the fourth quarter to $2.02 per 5-pound bag.

Two other items marked decreases in average price including all-purpose flour, down 10 cents to $1.35 per 5-pound bag; and pork chops, down 4 cents to $3 per pound.

The remaining two items, red delicious apples at 99 cents per pound and white bread at $1.22 per 20-ounce loaf, experienced no change from the third-quarter survey results.

Despite steady increases in grocery store average prices over time, the share of the average food dollar received by America's farm and ranch families has actually dropped. According to the most recent Agriculture Department statistics, America's farmers and ranchers receive merely 19 cents out of every dollar spent for food, down from 31 cents in 1980.

USDA Increases Fees For Egg, Poultry, And Rabbit Grading

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA is increasing fees for certain grading services for eggs, poultry, and rabbits, effective Jan. 1.

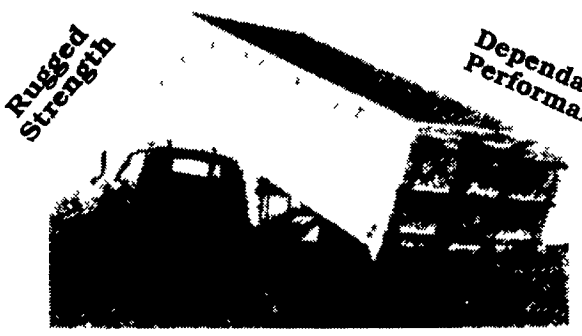
The increase will affect most processors who request egg, poultry, and rabbit grading services. The basic hourly rate for resident service, work of a grader with a regular tour of duty at a plant, will rise from the current $31.52 to $33.36. In addition, the basic hourly rate for fee service, work on an intermittent, as-needed basis, will rise from the current $54.40 to $57.68 for regular hours and from $62.76 to $66.64 for weekend and holiday work.

Additionally, for plants using resident service, the administrative fee for USDA supervision and for other overhead expenses will increase from 4.6 cents to 4.8 cents per case of shell eggs and from .036 cents to .037 cents per pound of poultry handled. For poultry and eggs, the minimum administrative fee will rise from $250 to $260 per monthly billing period, and the maximum fee will rise from $2,650 to $2,675. The minimum administrative fee for grading rabbits will remain unchanged at $260 per monthly billing period.

These grading services are made available upon request and paid for by the users. Current fees have been in effect since Jan. 1, 2002.

The grading fee increases were published in the Federal Register on Dec. 26 and may be viewed electronically at http://www.ams.usda.gov/poultry/regulations.

ALUMINUM GRAIN BODIES & ALUMINUM REPAIRS by Hewey LEBANON, PA



These ultra-light bodies are designed for strength through engineering, not strength with bulk. For example, a 16' grain body with tailgate and 48" sides weighs only 1490 lbs. complete. We'll build you any length or any side height up to 60".

Also available:

- Double swinging hay hauling tailgate
- Barn door type tailgate
- Slide out cattle chutes
- Diamond flooring
- Pull out panel tailgates
- Any size grain chute

Grape Disease Control Update

Wayne Wilcox
Dept. Plant Pathology
Cornell University
New York State
Agricultural Experiment Station, Geneva

Time for the annual review of new evelopments and various options on ie disease-control front. As always, I'd ke to acknowledge the outstanding am of grape pathologists here in Geeva, including faculty colleagues (D. adoury, R. Seem), research technians (Duane Riegel, Judy Barr), and raduate students and postdocs becomig too numerous to mention, all of hose research efforts are the bases for ost of the following.

Fungicide Changes And News

1. Benlate cancellation. As many now, Benlate is history. Worldwide anufacture halted in 2001, sale and istribution of product remaining in ie "pipeline" will be allowed through ie end of 2002. All registrations have een cancelled, although it still is legal use whatever product is on hand, cording to label directions. EPA "exects" that use of such product will end 2003, and is seeking comment on its roposal to revoke residue tolerances hereby making any residue in fruit or me illegal after a reasonable length of me). So, use what you have, but don't ockpile. Benlate is a minor fungicide r N.Y. grape producers, used primarl to protect major pruning wounds gainst Eutypa. An application to regter a closely-related benzimidazole ungicides (Topsin-M) for use on apes is currently being considered by he EPA.

2. Phyt, Aliette, and phosphorous id ProPhyt (potassium phosphite) is formulation of phosphorous acid 'A) that is now labeled by the EPA to ntrol downy mildew on grapes (N.Y. gistration is still pending, but may be rthcoming by summer). It does not ntrol any other major grape disease. arious formulations of PA have been ed for approximately 15 years to conol downy mildew in Australia, and I peatedly have gotten excellent results th several different formulations (inuding ProPhyt) in my own trials, en under very high pressure.

PA provides good post-infection conol of downy mildew, but because it is ghly mobile in the plant, the Aussies ntend that it has only a few days' rth of residual (protective) activity fore it gets shipped down into the ots Thus, they tend to spray it after infection period has occurred, tankxing with a traditional protectant ch as mancozeb or copper) to prole forward protection against the xt one In my own trials, I've applied at 14-day intervals without any sort tank mix and obtained virtually mplete control every year, even in ry wet seasons such as 2000, where arly 70 percent of the berries on unsayed vines became diseased. Howver, I haven't scrutinized these trials determine just when the various inection periods occurred with respect to he timing of applications.

PA is so popular in Australia because t is quite cheap there (just a few dollars per acre). Since ProPhyt is not yet sold in N Y , I don't know what the price will be locally (probably more than in Australia!). If they are priced right, this and other PA formulations that may come along could certainly find a place in eastern vineyards, particularly if an otherwise-desirable disease management program is weak on downy mildew control. They're worth getting some experience with, provided they make economic sense. (A note on ates The ProPhyt label that I've seen pecifies a concentration of 0.3 percent, but this assumes a sufficient water volme for complete coverage. Thus, e've used 1 2 pints per acre prebloom +(assuming a spray volume of 50 gal/A for complete coverage+) and 2.4 pints per acre postbloom +(assuming 100 gal/A spray volume+).

Aliette is a product that has been round for many years, but just reeived registration on grapes last summer. It breaks down into PA once prays have entered the plant, so basically does the same thing as PA products but at a much higher cost (about 30-50 per acre at the recommended ate for grapes) Patent issues protected Aliette against cheaper PA products in he past, but the patent has now exred

Nationally, there are additional oducts containing PA that are being ld as nutritional supplements or lant conditioners," without claims their disease control activities Of rse they're effective nevertheless ic such product that we worked with t year is Prudent Plus, a mixture of s, monopotassium phosphate (which is labeled for powdery mildew control as Nutrol), and various organic compounds that are claimed to improve plant growth and health. In our trials last year, treated vines were virtually free of downy mildew and powdery mildew control was fair to good (better than Nutrol, worse than conventional fungicides).

3. Messenger. Messenger is a unique and interesting product now registered for control of grape diseases. It is a nontoxic protein that stimulates natural defense responses in some plants, thereby providing variable levels of resistance to disease-causing organisms. The only problem is, there is no convincing evidence that this occurs in grapevines. On the contrary, such an "induced resistance" response is notoriously difficult to elicit in grapes, although many people (including a graduate student in my own program) have tried to do so using various techniques and products. Furthermore, I have obtained poor disease control in previous grape trials where Messenger has been used without additional fungicides, however, these were conducted a few years ago and it's possible that the formulation has improved by now. Results from several grower demonstrations that I helped evaluate last year in cooperation with a juice grape processor could best be described as "inconclusive " Although my experience with the product is limited, it is not consistent with some claims in recent advertising. Those interested in the product may wish to evaluate it for themselves on a limited, trial basis.

4. Serenade. Serenade is a product whose active ingredient is a soil bacterium (Bacillus subtilis), which is registered for biological control of powdery mildew and Botrytis In two trials last year (light disease pressure) we got good control of powdery mildew when Serenade was rotated with Sovran on both the hybrid variety Rosette and on Concord. In a Botrytis trial in 2000 (moderate pressure), four applications of Serenade alone (no other fungicide) provided zero control of that disease. We're continuing to evaluate it this season. Limited experience causes me to still view it as an experimental product; on a commercial crop, I'd be more comfortable experimenting to control powdery mildew rather than botrytis. A formulation being sold in N.Y is certified for organic production.

5. Other "alternative" products for powdery mildew. As discussed last year, a number of non-traditional products have been registered recently to control powdery mildew on grapes They work, to variable extents, but it helps to understand why. Powdery mildew (PM) is an unusual disease, since the fungus that causes it lives almost entirely on the surface of infected leaves and berries (the powdery stuff you see when control breaks down). Thus, it is "naked" and subject to (temporary) eradication following topical treatment with a range of products that don't affect other disease-causing fungi, which do their dirty work down inside the plant tissues where they're protected from such treatments Some such products are listed below

• Nutrol (monopotassium phosphate) We've been working with this dual purpose material (foliar nutrient plus powdery mildew fungicide) every year since 1996, with moderate results. In greenhouse tests, we've found that Nutrol provides no significant control when applied before plants are inoculated with powdery mildew spores. In contrast, it provided significant control when applied within 3-7 days after exposure to the spores, i.e., when applied directly to the developing PM colonies.

This scenario suggests that Nutrol should be more effective when applied relatively frequently (repeated knockdowns), rather than relying on residual protectant activity between sprays. Indeed, we've gotten significantly better control in two seasons of field trials when applying 4 lb/A every 7 days rather than 8 lb./A every 14 days. I strongly suspect that this same general principle (one-shot knock-down against young colonies, with little subsequent protective activity) will apply to most of the "alternative" PM control products. Thus, they may need to be applied more frequently than many traditional products.

• Kaligreen, Armicarb 100 (potassium bicarbonate). We haven't worked with Kaligreen, but Armicarb 100 has performed similarly to Nutrol in field trials. Photos in the trade press showing dead PM fungus on treated plants also is consistent with the activity we've seen from Nutrol (topical, eradicative effects with no evidence of residual protectant activity).

• Oxidate (hydrogen peroxide). Registered for control of powdery mildew and Botrytis. We haven't worked with it. I believe the claims for PM control, but doubt those for Botrytis (see above). Will probably require frequent applications.

Finally, remember that the activity of these topical materials is entirely dependent upon their contact with the PM fungus. Don't waste your time and money if you can't provide thorough coverage.

6. Strobilurin fungicides These materials (Abound, Sovran, Flint) have been discussed at length for the last two years. Thus, just a few updates and reminders:

• The "strobies" are retained primarily in the waxy cuticle of treated leaves and berries. Thus, they are excellent protectant fungicides when applied before an infection period begins but have only limited postinfection activity against most diseases (can't get down into the deeper tissues where the fungus gets established). Although they appear to have additional postinfection activity against powdery mildew (which lives mostly on the surface, remember), over-reliance upon such activity increases the risk that the fungus will become resistant to these materials.

• Resistance development is a very real and serious threat. Although nobody understands why, it appears that the risk and speed of this happening may be significantly different for different disease-causing fungi. For instance, several specific diseases on grasses and grains, cucumbers, and melons can no longer be controlled with strobies in some production regions, after only a few years of use. In contrast, similar problems have not yet surfaced with respect to control of powdery mildew on grapes, despite considerable worldwide use, although there have been some overseas reports of problems with downy mildew. These products still work for us, but there's no guarantee that will continue indefinitely. Because of their current importance to producers throughout the Northeast, they should be used conscientiously in order to reduce the probability of resistance developing, so that they will continue to be effective.

• The only sure-fire way of reducing the risk of resistance is by reducing the number of sprays applied. Use the strobies when they're really needed, but don't overdo it. The seasonal limit for wine grapes is four applications, but two or three is better. Juice grape growers may make up to three applications per season, but they should be sure to rotate with other fungicides to control the two mildews and black rot, even if they're only applying two or three such sprays in total. And trying to "put out a fire" with these materials if disease gets out of hand is just asking for trouble. This is a simple numbers game: the more fungal individuals that are present, the greater the chance of selecting a resistant one when you spray.

• In addition to the numbers game cited above, recent research suggests that resistance is more likely to develop when strobies are applied to a growing fungus (i.e., postinfection) rather than in a protectant mode which prevents spore germination and infection to begin with. Other than avoiding deliberate postinfection applications, this means that excessive spray intervals (greater than 14 days) also should be avoided. For powdery mildew, in particular, almost every day in the late spring and summer is a potential infection period (rain not necessary, temperatures very favorable). Thus, whenever a new (unsprayed) leaf emerges after a given fungicide application, the next spray will be "reaching back" to provide postinfection control of whatever mildew may have started after that leaf emerged. Thus, the longer the spray interval, the more infections that may have occurred and the longer the necessary reach back activity will be.

• Finally, consider these factors but keep them in perspective. The sky isn't falling. These materials do work. But be responsible and keep it that way.

7. Mancozeb and mites. This has been talked about quite a bit the last few years. Trials supervised by Jan Nyrop and Greg English-Loeb in the Entomology Department have consistently shown that fungicide programs that include regular mancozeb sprays will reduce the level of predatory mites (those that eat the spider mites), by an average of about 50 percent relative to programs where captan was substituted instead. In a few cases, this encouraged the buildup of spider mites, but not in the majority of trials. In an experiment last year, there was no effect on predators when mancozeb was limited to two sprays prior to bloom.

These effects are real. As with so many things, the risk (incompletely defined) and benefits (broad spectrum and economical disease control, 24 hr REI) need to be balanced. How to, specifically, is a personal decision. My feeling is that mancozeb still has a place, but that it should not be used indiscriminately. We're still working on trying to supply you more specific details than that.

We went with the Slurrystore System because of the necessity of being above the ground due to our high water table. There are other above-ground systems, but none backed by the experience of Penn Jersey.

When you put six to eight months of manure on one storage unit, you want to be confident you won't have problems emptying it.

The ability to expand the capacity of the system and the safety issues concerning stored manure also influenced our decision.

Shirley Orfanella, a regular contributor to the recipe column, pauses in a room filled with fruits and vegetables she has preserved from her garden. Of Shirley's outstanding cooking and decorating abilities, many of her friends say, "She's better than Martha Stewart (well-known food and decorating guru)."

The cookies and candy, shown at right, are made in advance and frozen until the party.

LOU ANN GOOD

Features Editor

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — When Shirley Orfanella throws a party for 150, it's a stunning affair, from the decorations to the elaborate foods prepared by her.

Almost every year for the past 30, Shirley hosts a holiday party in her home during December for an average of 125-175 guests.

"She's better than Martha Stewart," several guests remarked as they admired her artistic touches and savored the food.

"She makes Martha look sick," said another guest.

While Martha has a staff of hundreds to help her, Shirley does everything herself. During the summer months she raises a large garden and preserves food and dries flowers to be used for her magnificent party.

But the main work begins six weeks before the party, when Shirley cleans everything in the house. That in itself appears to be a year-long job. She has an extensive collection of glassware, china, and collectibles that require careful cleaning — "everything but pewter and Hummels," she said.

"My goal is to have 10 china closets," Shirley said. She has nine filled with glistening clean antique treasures.

She lives in a 3,300 square-foot Victorian-style farmhouse with a wraparound porch. The house was built in 1817. The house is decorated from top to bottom for guests to explore during the party.

Even the basement with its exposed timber beams with wooden pegs serves as a place for guests to gather. The basement features an ice house pit, which serves as a perfect spot to put a huge tree. A collection of antique ice tools hangs on the wall.

Paper snowflakes and bells hang from the basement rafters. Beverages are stored in ice in old washing machine tubs.

Each room of the house has at least one tree, from nine to 12-feet tall. Even the bathrooms have trees. Each tree is uniquely decorated, many with antique ornaments.

Two weeks before the party, Shirley makes extensive "to-do" lists for each day leading up to the party.

"No matter how late it is each night, I must get each thing on the list crossed off. You don't want to carry anything over to the next day or you'll end up with too much to do," she said.

She bakes 20 varieties of cookies and candies. She writes the recipes on index cards and tapes them to the kitchen cabinets. She mixes up each batch, places the dough in heavyduty plastic bags, and refrigerates. When all the varieties are mixed, she begins the baking marathon. Even that has a plan.

When she finishes baking one batch of cookies, she selects the next batch that is to be baked at the same temperature. When finished baking, she packs the cookies into tins and places them on her porch where the cold weather freezes them.

During the last week, Shirley concentrates on the food. She makes meatballs ahead of time and freezes them. Pasta, broccoli, and chicken salads can be made two days ahead and refrigerated in heavy duty plastic bags. That way, when serving dishes need to be refilled, another bag of salad can be opened and served.

The extensive menu includes ham, meatballs, crab soup, marinated mushrooms, hot peppers, chicken salad with grapes and cashews, broccoli, pasta salad, and much more.

Like most hostesses, Shirley fears not having enough food. Even after careful calculations, she always adds extra — and always ends up having the extra plus some from her original calculations left over.

She also fears the weather, which can play havoc with guests' ability to attend the party. One year super thick fog, like pea soup, kept many guests away.

"We had so many leftovers," Shirley said.

This year's snow the week before the party required much clearing to make room in the field around the house for guests to park their vehicles.

Shirley generally serves the same menu, but makes occasional substitutions. Until this year, she served fresh strawberries with dip. This year she saw the berries cost $50 a flat, so Shirley decided to substitute fruit salad for the berries.

"I ended up with about as much money in the fruit salad, and it didn't go over as big as the berries," Shirley said.

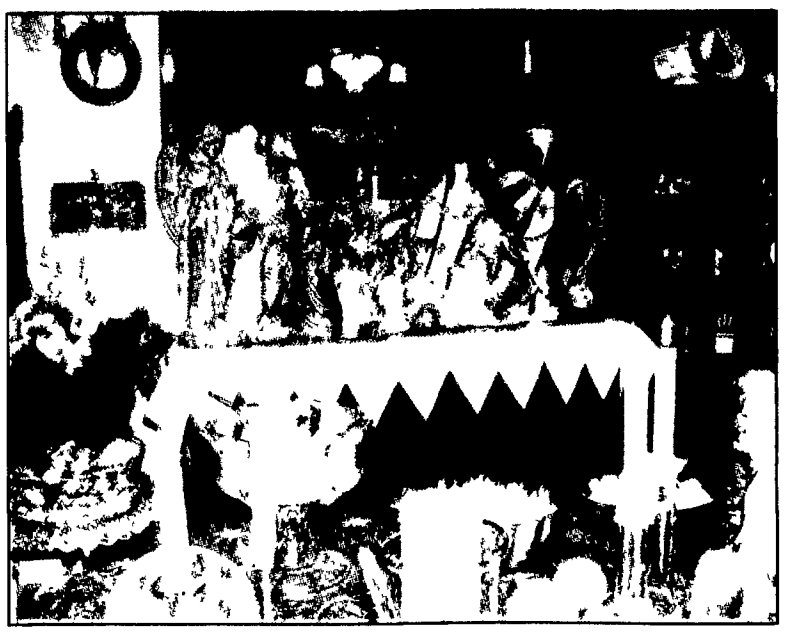
Some things are learned through trial and error. Shirley said that she learned that it is hard to keep the flame below chafing dishes lighted. So a few years ago, she invested in roaster ovens — which work much better. The first year, the roasters kept blowing fuses.

"I learned they can't be plugged into the same outlet," Shirley said.

She takes care of details — such as renting two big racks on which to hang guests' coats.

The task Shirley enjoys most is the food presentation.

"On the final day, I want nothing to do with cooking. It's time to make sure the candles are lit, the silver spoons are with each serving dish...."



These are a few of the hundreds of angels Shirley has collected and puts on display during her holiday party.

Guests often meet at the party and form lifetime friendships. Here are some guests that have been attending for many years.

As a former window dresser, Shirley revels in putting the finishing touches to the tables.

"I do this (party) because I get to decorate the tables," Shirley said.

"I use the same principle I followed when I was a waitress. I try to think if I am the guest, what will I need to eat with this? Ice? Salt and pepper? Mustard? A round or flat dish?"

Shirley said of throwing a successful party, "Organization common sense and lots of charts are the secret."

In the final countdown, Shirley vows never to do it again, but after the party, many guests write thank you notes about how much they really look forward to the annual event and how much they enjoyed it.

"So by next year, I'm ready to start over again," Shirley said.

Here are some recipes from Shirley, whom our readers will recognize as a regular contributor to this paper.

PASTA SALAD

Boil your favorite pasta shape or use vermicelli broken into fourths. Drain and rinse under cold water. Set aside.

In the meantime, dice red, yellow, and green bell peppers. Cut grape tomatoes in half — dice a couple zucchini and cucumbers with rind on, several celery ribs, minced onion, and black olives. Cut slices of pepperoni into small pieces. Add some garlic salt, poppy and sesame seeds, and mix into pasta.

Pour Italian dressing (not creamy) over all. Refrigerate. May also add good quality Parmesan grated cheese.

MEATBALLS

But a good grade of ground round beef, as much as needed. Mix with a few slices of white bread, torn into pieces and soaked in milk. Add minced onion, salt and pepper, and chopped parsley, and several eggs. When it is a nice consistency, form into small meatballs and bake in medium onion on a cookie sheet with sides, approximately 20 minutes. Drain well. In the meantime, make your favorite barbecue sauce or sweet and sour sauce. Pour over and refrigerate

Family Living Focus

Living Longer

Older Americans are living longer and feeling better as the National Institute on Aging (NIA) reports that "an overwhelming majority rate their health as good or excellent. But large numbers of older people find their health threatened by memory impairments, depression, chronic conditions, and disability, especially at very advanced ages, which can substantially diminish quality of life."

Mental decline, dementia, and Alzheimer's disease do not have to be a normal part of aging. With the continual growth in the population of older adults much research is now being conducted regarding possible connections between nutrient intake and age-related mental decline. Evidence now suggests that paying careful attention to your diet and lifestyle will help keep your mind sharp, and may even protect you from the devastating effects of Alzheimer's disease.

The Journal of the American Medical Association reported recently that "a diet rich in foods containing vitamin E may help protect some people against Alzheimer's disease." However, the study also found that vitamin E in the form of supplements was not associated with a reduction in the risk of Alzheimer's disease. Head of the Dementias of Aging Branch at the NIA, Neil Buckholtz, Ph.D. states, "It is not recommended, based on current evidence, that people take high-dose vitamin E supplements or other antioxidant pills in an effort to prevent mental decline."

Studies are underway to determine why food sources seem to be a more beneficial form of vitamin E. Other studies indicate that high dietary sources of vitamin C may also help to protect against Alzheimer's disease in certain people.

A study reported in the New England Journal of Medicine earlier this year found people with elevated blood levels of the amino acid homocysteine are twice as likely to develop Alzheimer's disease or another form of dementia as those with normal levels. Adequate intakes of folic acid, B6, and B12 have been shown to keep homocysteine levels down, and to possibly help stave off mental decline.

The NIA plans to continue to fund research on the potential dietary components of antioxidants, B vitamins, and antioxidant-rich foods to prevent age-related mental decline or perhaps to even prevent Alzheimer's disease.

So what can you do now to help reduce your risk of Alzheimer's disease? Follow these suggestions from the Weill Medical College of Cornell University, Food & Fitness Advisor, (July 2002):

• Eat more foods rich in antioxidants and B vitamins. B6 vitamin sources include chicken, fish, pork, bananas, eggs, oats, whole-wheat products, peanuts, and walnuts. B12 sources are red meat, fish, shellfish, poultry, fortified cereals, eggs, and dairy products. Vitamin C sources are citrus fruits, green leafy vegetables, potatoes. Vitamin E is found in vegetable oils, wheat germ, nuts, green leafy vegetables.

• Get at least 400 mcg of folic acid everyday. Good sources of folate include green leafy vegetables, broccoli, orange juice, dry beans, bananas, lima beans, and whole-wheat bread products.

• Stay physically active.

• Keep mentally active — read, do crossword puzzles, play cards.

• Stay socially active — invite friends over, dine together.

For more information on Alzheimer's disease contact the Alzheimer's Disease Education and Referral (ADEAR) Center at 1-800-438-4380 or at www.alzheimers.org.

at least a day. Reheat and serve. She usually makes 500-600.

EVERYBODY'S FAVORITE CHICKEN STRIPS

Boneless, skinless chicken breasts — buy as many as needed. Place between sheets of waxed paper and pound. Cut into strips, about 1-inch wide. Dip lightly in flour, shake off, and lightly fry in a deep layer of olive oil. Keep doing this until all batches are finished. As you fry the chicken strips, start layering in a plastic-covered container, sprinkling each one with garlic salt. When finished, pour Italian salad dressing over all (not creamy type) and set in refrigerator at least a day until ready to serve. Reheat.

Many Reasons For Childhood Obesity

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Why is there such an explosion of childhood obesity these days?

Research has shown what common sense might tell you: There are a lot of reasons why so many children can be classified as obese today.

According to the American Obesity Association, more than 15 percent of children ages 6 through 12 are obese. That's up from 11 percent in 1988-1994 and 7 percent in 1976-1980. Type II diabetes, asthma, high blood pressure, orthopedic complications and other physical problems can result.

Why is this happening? Researchers have identified many risk factors.

If parents are obese, children are more likely to be, too. Genetics and common eating habits are both likely causes. As with adults, a poor diet and limited amount of physical activity often add up to extra weight.

Some researchers have pointed out changes in schools' food offerings as one reason for larger school kids. Students often have unlimited access to high-calorie, low-nutrition foods as a la carte items in the cafeteria line and in vending machines. In addition, required courses in physical education also have declined, decreasing the amount of activity and exercise students have as part of their school day.

Also, some research indicates that children in families who do not eat together at the dinner table are more likely to be overweight than those who do. Paying attention to what children eat seems to help.

Another problem: Eating too many chips, candy bars and other unhealthful snacks. Sugary soft drinks also fall into this category. In fact, 12 percent of preschool-age children, 33 percent of school-age children, and more than 50 percent of adolescents average 9 ounces of soft drinks or more a day.

Other reasons:

— An inability to determine proper portion sizes.

— Eating due to stress, boredom or other reasons besides hunger.

— Eating too much fast food.

— Not participating in enough activity or exercise.

Dietitians recommend that parents, educators and health-care providers work together to make healthful foods more available and decrease access to foods with little nutritional value. Parents can help by eating together as a family as often as possible, paying attention to what their children eat and encouraging children to engage in an hour of physical activity daily.

New Jersey Crowns New Dairy Promoters

BROADWAY, N.J. — Brynn Kirby of Somerset County was crowned the 2002-2003 New Jersey State Dairy Princess on Nov. 23, at the Broadway Grange in Broadway, N.J.

Angela Lulo was chosen to serve as the first alternate New Jersey state dairy princess.

"I thank all of you for coming to the pageant tonight," said Kirby after being crowned. "I am speechless; this is an honor and something I have dreamed of since I was a little girl."

The New Jersey dairy princess program is sponsored by the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Inc., as well as the Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association. Both associations will work with the dairy princesses at upcoming events, promoting milk and dairy products throughout New Jersey.

The girls will be asked to attend such events as state conventions, state fairs and shows, dairy princess pageants, and various other promotional events sponsored by ADADC, Inc. and Mid Atlantic.

On Being a Farm Wife

Joyce Bupp

It can't possibly be.

Another year gone by.

Another year of economic flatness, incredible drought and water shortages, followed by almost record catch-up rainfall, early and extreme cold at least in our area of the country, depressed prices for farm crops.

Another year of blessings most of us casually take for granted: families and friends, plenty of food, cozy houses, warm clothes, and the freedom to take for granted our abundance of these basic thing of life.

Another year of observing what has become something of an annual office transition from the holiday rites to organizing for that gift of each new year, tax rites.

Another year of attacking the pile of miscellaneous information that has piled up on the desk and to make space for the next batch.

And in the process, we found:

• Recently reported scientific research that our brains have an "eraser," an enzyme of forgetting called protein phosphatase 1, shortened to PP1. What PP1 does, researchers suggest, is keep our brains from getting overloaded with useless trivial data. Which means our brains are perhaps cleaner than this messy desk, cluttered with information like the above. (Some days, I wonder if brain erasers can work overtime, and if mine is headed there?)

• A clipping relating the tale of an exuberant pup which shot its master in the foot. Seems a Minnesota hunter placed his loaded 12-gauge shotgun on the ground while he lined up a display of pheasants to photograph. Meanwhile, his young, and excited, English setter was frisking about and 'pawed' the trigger. Fortunately, the hunter was not seriously injured. (And how would you like to go home and explain that to your spouse?)

• Then there's a rather morbid piece, suggesting ordinary things can affect a person's length of life. Tomato paste in your diet several times weekly can earn you nearly an extra year of life, while flossing your teeth regularly can subtract several years, because of some gum bacteria it disturbs that can supposedly trigger the likes of strokes or heart problems. Run that by your dentist. Eat lots of pizza, but hold the floss?

• An e-mail printout from a forgotten source (but definitely female) listing suggested training courses for men. Titles include such topics as "Directions — It's OK To Ask," "Adventures In Housekeeping — Let's Clean The Closet," "Strange But True! — She May Not Care What Fourth Down and Ten Means," and "The Gas Gauge — Sometimes Empty Means Empty."

• A five-year-old newspaper article on the subject of "UFOs — they could be there." If they haven't shown up in five years, guess we don't need to worry.

• Another e-mail printout called Holy Humor, noting such gems as "Forbidden fruit causes many jams," and "How will you spend eternity — Smoking or Non-Smoking?"

• Yet another health-related clipping detailing how the herb rosemary — known for remembrance — contains compounds to help prevent the kind of brain breakdowns that result in debilitating memory losses. I can't remember why I've saved so many of theses pieces dealing with memory....?

• Ah, finally something I have actually been hunting: directions on how to sign up on the state's anti-telemarketer, "no-call" list. If your brain eraser was working overtime, like mine, and you originally misplaced the number, here it is: (888) 777-3406 or log onto www.nocallsplease.com. Our number is now on the list unfortunately, it take six months of lead time to be included. Maybe by then the new, national anti-marketing program will be in place.

There. A cleaner desk and a promised reduction in irritant phone calls — a positive start for 2003.

Have a blessed and happy New Year!

Two Mifflinburg H.S. Graduates Receive American FFA Degree

MIFFLINBURG (Snyder Co.) — Two Mifflinburg Area High School graduates recently received the American FFA Degree, the highest degree awarded by the National FFA Organization.

Denae Johnson and Valerie Spangler, both 2000 graduates, received the award at the recent 75th National FFA Convention in Louisville, Ky.

Johnson, daughter of Alanson and Bonnie Johnson, Lewisburg, served as Mifflinburg FFA assistant vice president and SUN Area reporter. She has also served as chairman of the citrus and FFA activities week committees, as well as a member of the banquet and exhibit and demonstration committees. Her supervised agriculture experience projects included dairy herd, corn production and swine finishing.

Johnson has received chapter proficiency in diversified livestock and small grain production, a gold award for her dairy herd and corn production record books, and a bronze award for her swine finishing record book. She also received the regional and county Northeastern Farm Credit ACA Award for excellence in record-keeping. She placed first in the state FFA agronomy contest and competed in the National Invitational Crops Contest at Purdue University.

Johnson earned the Greenhand, Chapter and SUN Area degrees and was named Union County Star Farmer in 1998. She received the Keystone degree, the highest degree granted by the Pennsylvania Association of the FFA in 2000.

Johnson attends Penn State University where she is a member of the National Agri-Marketing Association and expects to graduate in May 2004 with a bachelor of science degree in agri-business management.

Spangler, daughter of Lee and Kathy Spangler, Mifflinburg, served as Mifflinburg FFA vice president and SUN Area Union County vice president. Her supervised agriculture experience projects involved dairy production, on-farm work experience and fresh market produce.

Denae Johnson

Valerie Spangler

Spangler placed first in the 1998 Pennsylvania State Agronomy Contest. She chaired the banquet committee in 2000 and participated in many FFA conferences and leadership workshops.

At Penn State University, where she majors in agriculture and extension education, Spangler is an active member of the Penn State Collegiate FFA, is the corresponding secretary for the Block and Bridle Club, serves as the secretary/treasurer of the Poultry Science Club and is an Agriculture Advocate for the College of Agricultural Sciences. She is also a member of the honorary Agriculture Education society, Alpha Tau Alpha.

Out of approximately 460,000 FFA members nationwide, Johnson and Spangler were two of 2,556 to be recognized for this honor this year.

Caffeine, Carbs Work Differently In Body

COLUMBUS, Ohio — My sister-in-law told me she heard that apples have more caffeine than coffee. I'm suspicious — can that be true?

Um, no. I hope this doesn't cause one of those never-ending in-law squabbles, but you (and everyone else) should know that there's no caffeine in apples.

Maybe your sister-in-law heard that apples can give you a pretty good energy boost. A medium-sized apple averages 20 grams of carbohydrates — not nearly as much as in a sugary snack, but the apple would certainly be a more nutritious choice than, say, a candy bar. And this year, you could get even a bigger boost from locally grown apples: The Midwest's dry summer decreased apples' moisture content, which concentrates the sugars in each fruit, making them delightfully sweet. Who wouldn't feel refreshed munching on a crisp, sweet apple?

Still, that's not the same kind of boost people get from caffeine. They work in totally different ways.

Simply put, food boosts your energy by helping form ATP (adenosine triphosphate). Cells use ATP whenever they need energy, whether it's chemical energy to store for later use; mechanical energy used in muscle movement; electrical energy for nerve transmissions; or osmotic energy to balance sodium, potassium and other ions within the cell.

When ATP is tapped for use, it breaks down. It's in that breakdown that energy is released, from the bonds that hold ATP together. ATP continually is broken down and reformed in the body.

Coincidentally, adenosine (the "A" in ATP) also shows up in the explanation for how caffeine works. Again, simply put: When adenosine binds to receptors in the brain — as cyclic adenosine monophosphate, or cAMP, it calms nerve cell activity and makes us drowsy. Caffeine happens to be structured very much like cAMP and can bind to those receptors. When it does, it blocks cAMP and keeps us from getting tired. Other factors also play a role, but already you can see that caffeine and carbs play very different roles in energy balances in the body.

New Year's Resolutions

It's that time of year again! We reflect on our experiences of the past year and think about some goals for the coming one. In exploring ideas for this article, I began remembering significant interactions between my dad and me.

We don't always realize the long-term impact of what we say and do. Sometimes the experiences are positive ones and sometimes negative.

Here are some possible resolutions to work on this coming year for interactions between you and your child. Take those that fit, and make up some of your own.

1. Promote good nutrition. Make a healthy snack. My favorite was popcorn and chocolate milk. Most kids today do not get enough calcium. Offer lowfat milk drinks along with graham crackers or cereal. Your child's bones will thank you.

2. Exercise together. Enjoy winter activities like building a snowman, making snow angels, sledding, skating or shoveling snow. Turn off the computers and video games and get moving. You will both feel better physically and psychologically.

3. Laugh, be silly. Life can be very intense. Make it a littler lighter by acting funny. My dad would play little pranks to make life more interesting — wearing goofy eyeglasses, dressing up on Halloween. When you're trying to get the youngsters to do something, make a game out of it. Humor goes a long way in establishing and maintaining good relationships.

4. Teach cooperation, compassion. Work together as a family to make things a little easier. If mom gets stressed out, call in the troops and assign jobs to help out.

My dad called us for KP duty — kitchen police. We would divide the chores of setting the table, dishes, help with the meal or cleaning tasks. Have the family contribute to a food or toy drive, walkathon for charity or other activity that shares from the heart.

5. Praise. Your words can have a lasting impact. Choose them carefully. Dr. Phil McGraw was talking to a dad on TV and commented that — "It takes a hundred 'Atta girl!'s to make up for one putdown remark." Learn how to give constructive feedback and discipline without personally attacking. Don't communicate with your child only when something is wrong. Give regular praise for what is done right.

6. Model good values. My dad had honesty and integrity, which I then tried to follow through on. My stepchildren never forgot the time the cashier at the movie theater gave their dad $10 too much change and he went back and returned it. Teach by example in maintaining good health habits, balancing work and play, and maintaining a positive attitude.

Dad, you are one of the most important persons in your child's life. How much money you earn and your status at work will not be the determining factors in your impact on the quality of your child's life.

The time you spend with them, the good habits you impart, the comfort you give, the confidence you instill, the skills you build, the love you share will make a difference into the future.

Plan your time and priorities accordingly. When you are sitting in your rocking chair after they are grown, you'll be glad you did!

Blair County Youths Honored At Livestock Banquet

MARTINSBURG (Blair Co.) — The annual banquet of the Blair County 4-H Livestock Clubs took place Oct. 15 at the Martinsburg Memorial Park.

Diana Bigelow opened the program with the welcome and invocation. All the presidents and vice presidents led the Pledge of Allegiance and the 4-H Pledge. The officers read the names of the 4-H and FFA members, the buyers who purchased an animal and the trophy sponsors.

The presidents and vice presidents are: Beef club - Diana Bigelow and Tracy Bigelow. Goat club - David Bigelow and Danielle Bigelow. Lamb club - Sarah Dell and Wade Pearson. Pig club - Wade Pearson and Angela Mingle.

This is the 100-year anniversary for 4-H and Sarah Dell wrote the history on 4-H and had trivia questions in the program. Also David Bigelow, Danielle Bigelow, Diana Bigelow and Wade Pearson designed placemats for the tables.

Diana Bigelow reminded the buyers and sponsors how important they are to the 4-H program. She also thanked the leaders, parents, grandparents for all their help.

The awards were given by the following clubs:

Kids For Kids - The Goat club: Certificates were given to each member for their participation. High Point Award: Senior - Lila Wise-Favinger; Junior - Tara Brumbaugh; First Year - Jeremy Mock. Best Record Book: Senior - Katasha Miller; Junior - Tara Brumbaugh; First Year - Dalton Simmons. Sportsmanship: Wade Harclerode. Best Big Brother: Nick Burket. Perfect Attendance: Ryan Grealey-Nyce; Wade Harclerode, Jeremy Mock, Lila Wise-Favinger, Michelle Feathers and Kendra Grove. Most Improved First Year Member - Ryan Grealey-Nyce. Certificate of Appreciation - Andrew Brumbaugh for donating and raising the club goat.

Blair County Swine Club - The High Point award winners were: Senior - Valerie Smith; Junior - Wade Pearson; First Year - Jason Eastep.

Lamb Chops - High Point Award: Senior - Sarah Dell, first; Elizabeth Biddle, second. Intermediate - Julie Del, first; Michelle Edwards, second. Junior - Miranda Lynn, first; Wade Harclerode and Jeremy Mock, second. First Year - Lindsay Aungst, first; Caitlin Phelps, second.

Shepherds Contest: Senior - Elizabeth Biddle, first; Lila Wise-Favinger, second. Intermediate - Wade Pearson, first; Julie Dell, second. Junior - Miranda Lynn, first; Jeremy Mock, second. First Year - Loran Burbaker, first; Lindsey Phelps, second.

Weight Gain: Miranda Lynn, first; Sarah Dell, second.

EWE Award: Shawna Lynn, first; Jeremy Mock, second.

Cooking Contest: Julie Dell and Lila Wise-Favinger, first; Shawna Lynn, Caitlin Phelps and Lindsey Phelps, second.

Guess of Finished Weight: Miranda Lynn and Dakota Biddle.

Perfect Attendance: Lindsey Aungst (one year), Olivia Biddle (four years), Loran Brubaker (one year), Sarah Dell (eight years), Kody Detwiler (two years), Dalton Dowey (two years), Wade Harclerode (three years), Miranda Lynn (three years), Shawna Lynn (two years), Jeremy Mock (three years), Caitlin Phelps (one year), and Lindsey Phelps (one year).

Rate of Gain: Phil Keith, Orchard Lane Excavating, gave each member money for the weight their lamb gained.

Baby Beef Club - The High Point award winners were Senior - Andy Hileman; Junior - Jeremy Mock; First Year - Jenna Ritchey. Perfect Attendance: Jordan Baker, Diana Bigelow, Katie Bigelow, Kristy Bigelow, Tracy Bigelow, Wayne Bigelow, Andy Hileman, Bethany Hileman, Jeremy Mock, Wade Pearson, and Jenna Ritchey. Guess of Finished Weight: Wade Pearson. Weight Gain: Each member received a check from Dennie Dively and Lynn Lovell from the First Commonwealth Bank. The member received 2 cents for each pound their steer gained.

4-H'ers Honored With I Dare You Leadership Awards

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — Elizabeth Smith, Harrisburg; Amanda Platt, Camp Hill; Lynn Brandt, Middletown; and Laura Theurer, Harrisburg have been awarded the National I Dare You Leadership Award in recognition of personal integrity, balanced living and potential for leadership.

The honor was presented by Dauphin County 4-H at their award ceremonies at the Dauphin County Agriculture and Natural Resources Center, Wednesday, Nov. 6.

The I Dare You Leadership Award is presented each year by the American Youth Foundation (AYF) in cooperation with principals, counselors, county 4-H agents, church groups, and other organizations across the country. The award was first offered in 1941 by the late William H. Danforth, founder of the Ralston Purina Company in St. Louis, who challenged young people to achieve their highest potential and to influence others through lives of service.

The award takes its name from the book, I Dare You! written by Danforth, in which he commends the balanced life of mental, physical, social, and spiritual development as the backbone of leadership.

In addition to a certificate of recognition each recipient received a copy of Danforth's inspirational book, I Dare You! and a scholarship opportunity to attend AYF's Leadership Conferences located in Michigan.

Over 7,000 schools, 4-H programs and the other organizations take part in this I Dare You Leadership Award Program yearly.

Make-Ahead Appetizers Put You A Step Ahead

Take the hassle out of the holiday entertaining dilemma.

Host an appetizer party.

Sara Reddington, director of the Beef and Veal Culinary Center of the National Cattlemen's Beef Association, suggests a combination of convenient purchased items along with one or two homemade.

Choose a recipe such as Mini Holiday Beef Crescents. Make these flavorful tidbits with prepared refrigerated pie crust, cut into wedges, and then topped with a ground beef, dried tart cherry, pepper-jack cheese filling. Roll-up, bake and freeze. A quick reheating is all you need at party time.

Another time-honored party favorite is meatballs and dip, a hit with kids and adults, depending on the dip.

Reddington saves time by starting with heat-and-serve frozen beef meatballs. The biggest decision is what to dip the in. That's simple, too, because there are myriad prepared options from which to choose.

More basic choices include barbecue sauce, marinara sauce, nacho cheese sauce or ranch dressing. For more sophisticated palates choose Thai peanut sauce, blue cheese dressing or salsa.

Mini Holiday Beef Crescents

1 pound ground beef
1½ cups shredded jalapeno pepper cheese or Monterey Jack cheese
½ cup chopped dried cherries
2 tablespoons apple juice
2 teaspoons ground cumin
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
1½ packages (15 ounces each) refrigerated pie crusts (3 crusts)
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon water

Heat oven to 400 degrees Fahrenheit. Brown ground beef in 12-inch nonstick skillet over medium heat 8 to 10 minutes or until beef is not pink, breaking up into small crumbles. Pour off drippings. Stir in cheese, cherries, juice, cumin and garlic powder; set aside.

Cut each pie crust into 12 wedges. Place 1 packed, rounded tablespoon beef mixture on wide end of each wedge.

Beginning at wide ends, roll up wedges; curve ends to form crescents. Place 1-inch apart on 2 greased baking sheets.

Combine egg and water in small bowl. Lightly brush over tops of crescents. Bake in 400 degrees Fahrenheit oven 15 to 18 minutes or until golden brown. Serve warm.

Makes 36 appetizers.

Total preparation and cooking time: 1 hour.

Cook's Tip: To make crescents ahead, prepare and bake as directed; cool. Wrap tightly; freeze for up to 2 weeks. To reheat, place on lightly greased baking sheets. Bake in 350 degree Fahrenheit oven 12 to 13 minutes or until heated.

Add purchased mixed olives, seasoned nuts, cheeses, fruits, crudites with dip, marinated mushrooms and artichokes from the supermarket to round out the menu.

And, don't forget dessert. Decorated holiday cookies help carry out the festive theme. Brownie bites, dusted with confectioners' sugar will satisfy the craving for chocolate. Eggnog? Purchase it, pour into a pitcher or punch bowl, sprinkle with freshly grated nutmeg and you're set.

Finally, remember what a difference a garnish makes. Reddington says take some tips from chefs. A sprinkling of chopped parsley, chives or bell pepper does wonders to enliven a presentation. Sprinkle dip with minced chives or the rim of a crudite platter with minced parsley. Star fruit slices make a natural garnish for a fruit tray. Add a sprig of rosemary or thyme to mixed olives — you get the idea.

Most of all, plan foods that you will feel good about preparing and serving to your guests, and of course, that they will enjoy eating.

Beef Tenderloin Sandwiches with Nutty Herb-Cheese Spread and Caramelized Onion Relish add an elegant touch to a New Year's party.

Party Pointers

(NAPS) — Entertaining for large groups, be it family affairs or for friends, can be stressful. The logistics alone might be daunting. Where do I seat everyone? Do I have enough chairs? What to do with the food...do I need a buffet? How about a beverage station?

When you need that extra seating, table, or serving buffet, it can be as easy as unfolding some tables and chairs.

With this in mind, here are some of my party pointers and easy entertaining ideas that will ensure your next event will be an organized and successful affair.

Setting The Scene:

• For large parties of 20, try using two tables in a "T" pattern...great for lively conversation.

• Extra seating is a snap with folding chairs.

• The Lifetime® Adjustable Tables are perfect for a tall bar...or a low "Kiddie" table.

Easy Entertaining Ideas:

• Pick a "theme" and color to carry throughout your party. Purchase fabrics from outlets, and make your invitations on the computer using colored paper.

• Build a beautiful buffet with different heights: Use metal risers, upturned bowls or terra cotta pots — covered with cloths, to create different levels.

• For larger tables, think big for decoration: big bowls of lemons, tall vases with branches towering over the buffet, big pots of fresh herbs, fruits and flowers.

• Breads tumbling out of wicker baskets laid on their sides.

• For a sit-down affair centerpiece, bring the outdoors in...arranging branches and leaves (magnolias work great) down the center of the table, creating a garland effect, then nestle fruits, vegetables and herbs in an around the leaves.

• Place votives or tea light candles in juice glasses and tuck into garland. Great solution if you are on a budget.

• Try "dressing up" the chairs by wrapping the backs with a complementing fabric and tie the back with a "nosegay" of leaves and herbs.

• Be realistic about what you can and can't do.

If you are on a tight budget, look around you for what is seasonal and accessible. Don't be afraid to use your imagination. (A bucket of paint and some old sheets can create a wonderful table covering. Or just use giant philodendron leaves to decorate.

It doesn't have to be expensive, but rather a reflection of you having fun entertaining.

Catering For Company:

• Have a good invitation...this sets "the stage" for your party.

• Plan the menu two weeks in advance. Do easy "do-ahead" dishes, thinking about the freshest ingredients, balance of flavors and how it will all look on the plate.

• Make as much as you can ahead of time and freeze or refrigerate. (Breads, rolls, sauces, etc.)

• Find out any dietary restrictions ahead of time and try to accommodate.

• Ask someone to help you in the kitchen and with cleanup.

• Remember to have good lighting (lots of candles) and good music.

• Plan food and decoration to go with the season.

• Buffet food should be easy to eat..."Fork food."

• Have plenty of silverware and glassware.

BEEF TENDERLOIN SANDWICHES

1 center-cut beef tenderloin roast (2-3 pounds), not tied ⅓ cup sun-dried tomato spread
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
Assorted breads and rolls
Nutty herb-cheese spread (recipe follows)
Carmelized Onion Relish (recipe follows)

Heat oven to 425 degrees. Make horizontal cut through center of beef roast, parellel to surface of meat. Cut to, but not through, opposite side. Open meat so it lies flat.

Combine sun-dried tomato spread and parsley. Spread lengthwise on half of meat. Fold other half of meat over to form original shape of roast. Tie at 1½-2-inch intervals with kitchen twine; trim off excess twine.

Place roast on rack in shallow roasting pan. Insert ovenproof meat thermometer so it is centered in thickest part of beef, not resting in sun-dried tomato filling. Roast in 425 degree oven 35-40 minutes for medium rare.

Remove roast when meat thermometer registers 135 degrees. Transfer roast to carving board; tent loosely with aluminum foil. Let stand 10 minutes. (Temperature will continue to rise about 10 degrees to reach 145 degrees for medium rare). Refrigerate roast several hours or until chilled. If desired, roast can be wrapped tightly in aluminum foil and refrigerated up to 2 days. Carve roast into ¼-inch thick slices.

Assemble sandwiches as desired with breads, spread and relish. Makes 30-35 appetizer servings.

Nutty Herb-Cheese Spread:

½ cup salted shelled pistachios or slivered blanched almonds
6½-ounces garlic and herb cheese spread
Half-and-half

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Spread nuts in single layer in baking pan. Bake in 350 degree oven about 5 minutes for pistachios or 8 minutes for almonds until lightly toasted, cool slightly. Coarsely chop.

Combine cheese spread and nuts. Stir in enough half-and-half to thin to spreading consistency. Makes 1 cup.

Caramelized Onion Relish

2 tablespoons olive oil
4 cups thinly sliced onions cloves garlic, minced
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon balsamic vinegar

Heat oil in large non-stick skillet over medium heat until hot. Add onions, garlic, salt and pepper. Cook 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in brown sugar and vinegar; cook, and stir until butter has evaporated. Makes ¾ cup.

Carbon County Presents Ag Awards

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent

LEHIGHTON (Carbon Co.) — Fellowship, a good meal and presentation of awards were part of the recent annual awards banquet co-sponsored by the Carbon County Conservation District, Carbon/Monroe Farm Service Agency, Carbon/Monroe Natural Resource Conservation Service, and Penn State Cooperative Extension.

Jim Clauser, district manager of the Carbon Conservation District welcomed the guests as 4-H members Jonathan Kuehner lead the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag and Nicole Smith lead the group in the 4-H Pledge.

Robert Miller, 4-H leader and vice-chairperson of the Conservation District gave the invocation prior to the meal after which the co-sponsoring groups presented their annual awards.

Clauser presented the awards on behalf of the Carbon Conservation District. The Farmer of the Year award was presented to Paul and Linda Stoss. The Farmer of the Year award is presented to a farmer or organization who has furthered soil conservation through the establishment and maintenance of soil and water conservation management practices.

The Stoss farm, a 90-cow dairy, in East Penn Township consists of approximately 200 owned and rented acres with primary crops of corn, small grains and hay. Soil conservation practices they have adopted and maintained to ensure soil productivity and stewardship include 120 acres of contour stripcropping systems, two acres of grassed waterways, 3,400 feet of surface water control diversion channels, as well as incorporating green cover crops, conservation tillage and crop rotation.

Woody Colbert, Master of Ceremonies for the evening, then described the Conservation District's dirt and gravel road program prior to Clauser recognizing three townships for their outstanding work under the program. Colbert, a State Conservation Commission employee working out of his Penn State office and former superintendent of Hickory Run State Park, explained the history of the dirt and gavel road program in Pennsylvania. Colbert said this government program came from the bottom up with citizen interest in stream protection with a goal of having the natural ecosystem take over as if the roads weren't there.

The legislators were keenly interested in believing that local municipalities would handle the administration of this program. The first township to be recognized was Lower Towamensing, represented by Glenn Hahn, Barry Stroup and Jesse Mendez, for their work on Spruce Road. Towamensing Township was then recognized, represented by Rodney George, for their work on Forest Street. The third township to be recognized was East Penn Township, represented by Gary Kuehner and Troy Smith, for work completed on Wertman Hollow Road.

All three road projects were directly adjacent to tributaries to streams and included road, bank and swale stabilization and drainage improvements.

The Conservation District media, educator and volunteer of the year awards were presented by Susan Gallagher, Chief Naturalist and Jeannie Carl, Naturalist, of the Carbon County Environmental Education Center.

Two individuals were awarded the Volunteer of the Year awards. First was presented to a Master Falconer, Fred Wallace. Wallace, whose vast knowledge of birds of prey has been an asset to not only the staff at the Environmental Center but also to the injured birds brought there for treatment, has spent countless hours volunteering at the Center.

The second Volunteer of the Year award went to J. Randolph Arner. Arner has created a Website for the Environmental Center as well as doing photography, gardening and research for the Center.

This year's Media Conservation award was presented to Alan Gregory who through his writing has been a fearless defender and supporter of natural resources.

JoAnn Murray, a second grade teacher at Franklin Elementary School, was the recipient of the Conservation Educator award. Through her enthusiasm for nature she has brought her class to the Center for an outdoor learning experience each year, even developing a nature study trail on school property.

After a brief public meeting of the Cooperative Extension board of directors conducted by President Monroe Cressley that saw the following named to new terms on the board; Monroe Cressley, Karan VonFrisch, Karan Heffelfinger, Robin Cressley and Julie Lesitsky, Cooperative Extension Director Paul Shealer thanked outgoing board member Joyce Hinkle for having served two terms on the board.

Presenting the Rachel W. Hoffmeier 4-H Scholarship awards was Howard Gregory, president of the 4-H Development Board. This year's winners were Laura Kennedy, 18, a freshman at Lock Haven University majoring in computer information systems and Nicole Smith, 17, a senior at Lehighton High School planning to continue her education majoring in physical therapy. Also receiving a certificate of achievement and recognition was Amanda Miller, 18, a senior at Lehighton High School.

Linda Wiles, multi-county commercial horticulture agent, recognized several of her master gardeners for the hours of volunteer service they completed. Those honored were Cindy Kerschner, Ed Knittle, Leeza Fox, Carol Steigerwalt and Liz Morris.

The Laurel Wreath award is presented to an individual or group for outstanding service to the 4-H program. This year two awards were presented by the Cooperative Extension. The first went to Lester and Kathy Wentz who have been long time supporters of the 4-H program in Carbon County. They have been buyers at the annual 4-H Livestock sale for many years, have stored pens used during Roundup and the local fair and as owners of Walck's Restaurant have donated the food for the buyer's luncheon at the fair. Their children, daughter Kelly and son Cory, were active 4-H members and the couple is anxiously awaiting the start of their granddaughter's 4-H career.

The second Laurel Wreath award was presented to the Carbon County Commissioners, Wayne Nothstein, Charles Getz, and Tom Gerhard. Nothstein and Getz were presented to accept the award for their strong and continuing support of the 4-H program.

Outstanding 4-H Leaders this year were Jane Cosgrove, leader of the Buck and Bolt 4-H Horse Club of the White Haven area and Ed Knittle, leader of the Gardening Club and co-leader of the Sawmill 4-H Bee Club.

Leader recognition 10-year pins were presented to Deanna and Dennis Cunfer, Penny Kleintop and Nancy Smith. Two individuals received their 15-year pins those being Nan Cressley and Mary Hawk.

From left, Howard Gregory, president of the Carbon County 4-H Development Board, presented the Rachel W. Hoffmeier 4-H Scholarship to Nicole Smith, 17, of Lehighton. Also shown is Joan Kennedy accepting for her daughter, Laura Kennedy, 18, a freshman at Lock Haven University.

The Carbon County Cooperative Extension presented Laurel Wreath awards for outstanding support of the 4-H program to the Carbon County commissioners and Kathy and Lester Wentz. From left, Charles Getz and Wayne Nothstein, commissioners; and Kathy and Lester Wentz. Commissioner Tom Gerhard was unable to attend the event.

Ida's Notebook

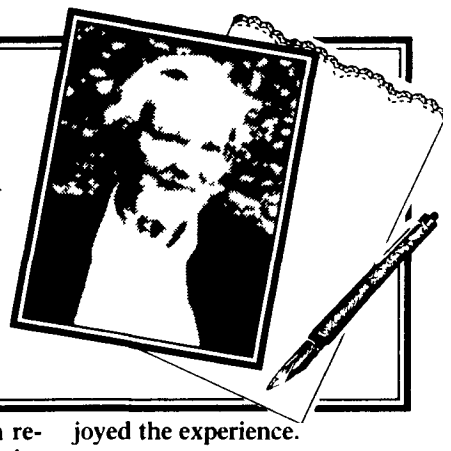
Ida Risser



When we had an ice storm recently, it brought back memories of when I had to drive to a job everyday despite the weather.

For eight years, before I was married, I drove myself and other people to their jobs. When a storm was predicted, my car was parked at a nearby garage close to a main highway. The thought was that I could walk there and get to work as the state was quite slow in opening the road past our house. Anyway, now I am able to stay home and let other people slide on the ice and snow.

However, my sisters and our husbands were able to see "Lewis and Clark" at the Whitaker Center in Harrisburg on a nice day. The IMAX theater showed breathtaking scenes of these men as they traveled west to the Pacific Ocean in 1804. Yes, my husband was able to go along. It was a tiring day, but I'm sure he enjoyed the experience.

This year instead of decorating a large Christmas tree, I decorated a Norfolk Island pine that our son gave me. He even supplied the tiny electric lights and some crystal decorations. Before I could put the tree on an old blanket chest, I had to remove a big box of family pictures that I had displayed there. It looks very pretty, but I do not like to think of all those other pretty decorations stored away in the closet.

This is written 10 days before Christmas, but already I've received a diary, a wrist watch, and a box of candy. We are having an open house the Saturday after Christmas for our extended families. If everyone came that was invited, there would be 150 people. But we know from past parties that only a fraction will come.

QUESTION — A Lancaster County reader wants a recipe to make homemade cream cheese.

QUESTION — Debbie Mullinix, Woodbine, Md., wants the exact recipe for Jell-O jigglers made with liquor.

QUESTION — Christ Stoltzfus, Narvon, wants recipes to layer the following soups in jars to give as gifts: chili, chicken corn noodle, and friendship. Editor's Note: Some of these recipes appeared in last week's issue of Lancaster Farming on pages B6-B7.

QUESTION — Carrie Sponseller, Gettysburg, wants recipes to make dips of different varieties.

QUESTION — A Narvon reader writes that she accidentally discarded two recipes, which she had clipped from this column, that her family really liked. One recipe was for waffles, and the lady who had submitted it wrote that she sold them at a stand when she was young. The other recipe was for biscuits that used cold butter cut into the flour. Anyone know to which recipes she is referring? Please send in to be reprinted.

QUESTION — Pat Elligson, Millers, Md., wants a recipe for good, moist old-fashioned fruit cake that is thick with fruit and nuts.

QUESTION — Linda Christman, Greencastle, wants a recipe for apple dumpling syrup made with the little red cinnamon heart candies.

QUESTION — June Martin, Oxford, N.J., wants a recipe to make venison hot dogs.

QUESTION — A reader wants recipes for a steak sauce or one to use as a marinade. She also wants to know how to make steaks that taste like those served at steak houses.

QUESTION — Frank Bonk, Perth Amboy, N.J., wants to know where to find fresh killed geese and goose livers.

QUESTION — Nina Biddle, Tyrone, has identical recipes for sugar cookies, one using Pillsbury flour and the other Gold Medal. Why do they taste differently if the identical ingredients are used?

ANSWER — For the reader who wanted like a recipe to make candy bars that taste similar to Nutrageous, Mrs. Christ Blank, Kinzers, sent in the following recipe.

Just-Like-Nutrageous Bars

2 cups peanut butter
1½ cups Karo
1 cup confectioner's sugar
4 cups salted peanuts

Mix everything together and chill before shaping into bars. Chill again, then dip into melted chocolate.

ANSWER — Here is another recipe for the reading who wanted one for Italian Wedding Soup. Thanks to Mildred Hess for the recipe.

Italian Wedding Soup

1 egg
¾ cup grated Parmesan or Romano cheese
½ cup dry bread crumbs
1 small onion
¾ teaspoon salt, divided
1¼ teaspoon pepper, divided
1¼ teaspoon garlic powder, divided
2 pounds ground beef
2 quarts chicken broth
1¼ cups cooked medium shell pasta
⅓ cup chopped spinach
1 teaspoon onion powder
1 teaspoon dry parsley flakes

In a bowl combine egg, cheese, bread crumbs, onion, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, and ¼ teaspoon garlic powder.

Crumble beef over mixture and mix well. Shape into one-inch balls.

In a soup kettle or Dutch oven cook the meatballs until they are no longer pink, then drain.

Add the broth, spinach, onion powder, parsley, and remaining salt, pepper, and garlic powder.

Bring to a boil, reduce heat, and simmer, uncovered, for five minutes. Stir in pasta and heat through.

Yields three quarts, or 12 servings.

ANSWER — Several readers sent us raisin-filled or raisin cookie recipes for May Eyster, Hummelstown.

These cookies are not raisin filled, but they are very good, writes the reader who sent in the following recipe.

Jumbo Raisin Cookies

2 cups raisins
1 cup water
3½ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1¾ cups sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup chopped nuts, if desired

Place raising in water in a saucepan, bring to a boil, and boil three minutes. Set aside to cool, do not drain. Cream shortening, add sugar, then eggs. Stir in raising with liquid and vanilla.

Gradually add mixture of flour, baking soda, baking powder, salt, and spices, and blend thoroughly.

Drop by teaspoon on greased cookie sheet. Bake at 375 degrees for 12-15 minutes. Makes four dozen.

Raisin Filled Cookies

Filling:

1 cup ground raisins
1 cup water
1 cup walnuts
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour

Dough:

2 cups brown sugar
¾ cup shortening
2 eggs
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ cup thick milk or buttermilk
1 teaspoon vanilla
pinch salt
4¾ cups flour

For the filing, Nancy puts the raisins in the blender with part of the water to grind them.

Mix the flour with the sugar and then put all the ingredients together and cook on the stove until thickened. Cool before using. Use about ¾ teaspoon per cookie.

For the dough, mix together the brown sugar and shortening. Add eggs and mix. Add baking soda to milk or buttermilk and add that to the first mixture, along with vanilla, salt, and flour.

Refrigerate until cold. Roll out the dough on a floured surface and cut with your favorite cookie cutters. Place one cutout on the cookie sheet, drop the filling on top, and finish with another cutout of the same shape.

Press the sides together lightly to keep the filling from cooking out while baking. Bake 10 minutes at 375 degrees.

This is wonderful dough to work with and I usually double the batch because we like them so much. You can use dates instead of raisins.

I always bake these cookies on airbake pans and they are perfect and delicious. Airbake pans keep the top of the cookie from getting wrinkled because the top cooks evenly with the bottom of the cookie.

We made them for years on the other pans and it didn't change the flavor, they just were not as pretty.

Here is a recipe from Mildred Hess

Raisin Pie

1 tablespoon cornstarch
5 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon cloves
2 cups rinsed raisins
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon butter
1½ cups water

Cook until slightly thickened, about five minutes. Pour into a pastry-lined pan. Cover with top crust or crumbs. Bake at 425 degrees for 25 minutes.

Crumb Topping

¾-1 cup flour
½ cup brown sugar
¼ cup butter

ANSWER — Here is another pie dough recipe. This one comes from Joan Hollinger, Ocala, Fla.

Pie Dough

2 cups all-purpose flour
⅔ cup shortening (Joan uses butter flavored)
¾ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon granulated sugar
6 tablespoons ice water

Mix flour, shortening, salt, and sugar together with a pastry blender. When it is in fine crumbs, add the ice water and continue to use the pastry blender.

It will start to stick to the blender, so finish with your hands until smooth. Roll out with a little flour sprinkled on your pie board. The recipe makes one two-crust pie or two single crusts. Bake according to your pie recipe.

ANSWER — For Carrie Sponseller, Gettysburg, who wanted recipes for various types of dip, here is one recipe to try.

Easy Beef Dip

1 pound ground beef
1 pound process cheese (like Velveeta), cut into cubes
16 ounce can chili without beans
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce

In a large skillet or microwave, brown ground beef, stirring until no pink remains. Drain.

Add cheese, chili, and Worcestershire sauce. Stir until melted. Or place in a slow cooker on high for one to two hours, stirring occasionally.

Serve hot with tortilla chips or over salad greens for taco salad.

Option: Use 8-ounce jar salad or picante sauce in place of chili and Worcestershire sauce.

ANSWER — Here is a recipe for a peanut butter pudding requested by a Lebanon reader. Thanks to Anna Martin, Denver, for sending in the recipe.

Peanut Butter Goodie

Crust:

1¼ cup graham cracker crumbs
½ cup sugar
¼ cup butter

Filling:

½ cup peanut butter
whipped topping
¾ cup confectioner's sugar
3½ ounce package instant pudding (any flavor)

For crust, mix together graham cracks, sugar, and butter. Reserve ¼ cup for topping. Press into bottom of 11x8x2-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes.

For filling, mix peanut butter and confectioner's sugar to make crumbs. Sprinkle on cooled crust.

Living On A Few Acres

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) - Penn State Cooperative Extension in Montgomery County is offering "Living on a Few Acres," a program designed for home owners with a few acres of land who would like to investigate options available to them for growing or raising agricultural products.

"Living on a Few Acres" is an eight week program covering fruit, wetland plants, forest management, vegetables, greenhouse production, Christmas trees, herbs, horses, field crops, beef, swine, sheep and flowers. Individuals have the option of signing up for a single class or as many of the eight that interest them. Classes begin Jan. 8 through March 12, every Wednesday evening except Feb. 5 and March 5, 6:30 p.m.

Preregistration is required. For additional information and a brochure, call the Montgomery County Cooperative Extension office at (610) 489-4315 and ask for Mary Concklin or Andrew Frankenfield.

Proceeds From Hinkelfest Awarded To Organizations

FREDERICKSBURG (Lebanon Co.) — On Dec. 3, the proceeds from the Fredericksburg Hinkelfest were presented to the Fredericksburg Community Association, Fire Company, Community Association, American Legion and Lions Club. Each local organization received a check for $4,000.

Since 1991, more than $175,000 have been donated to these five groups through community support of the annual Hinkelfest event conducted every September at the Farmer's Pride Airport in Fredericksburg.

QUESTION — A reader would appreciate if anyone has some Macomber rutabaga seeds to sell. Or is there a seed company that sells them or another variety that they have tried that taste sweeter and milder than Laurentian or American yellow or American purple-top (Golden Neckless).

ANSWER — For the person who wanted to know the history of the candy cane, here is an answer: "A candy maker in Indiana wanted to make a candy that would be a witness, so he made a Christmas candy cane. He incorporated several symbols for the birth, ministry, and death of Jesus Christ.

"He began with a stick of pure white hard candy: White to symbolize the virgin birth and the sinless nature of Jesus, and hard to symbolize the solid rock, the foundation of the promises of God.

"The candy maker made the candy in the form of a "J" to represent the precious name of Jesus who came to earth as savior. It could represent the staff of the Good Shepherd with which He reases down into the ditches of the world to lift out the fallen lambs, who, like all sheep have gone astray.

"Thinking that the candy was somewhat plain, the candymaker stained it with red stripes. He used three small stripes to show the stripes of the scourging Jesus received by which we are healed. The large red stripe was for the blood shed by Christ on the cross so that we could have the promise of eternal life."

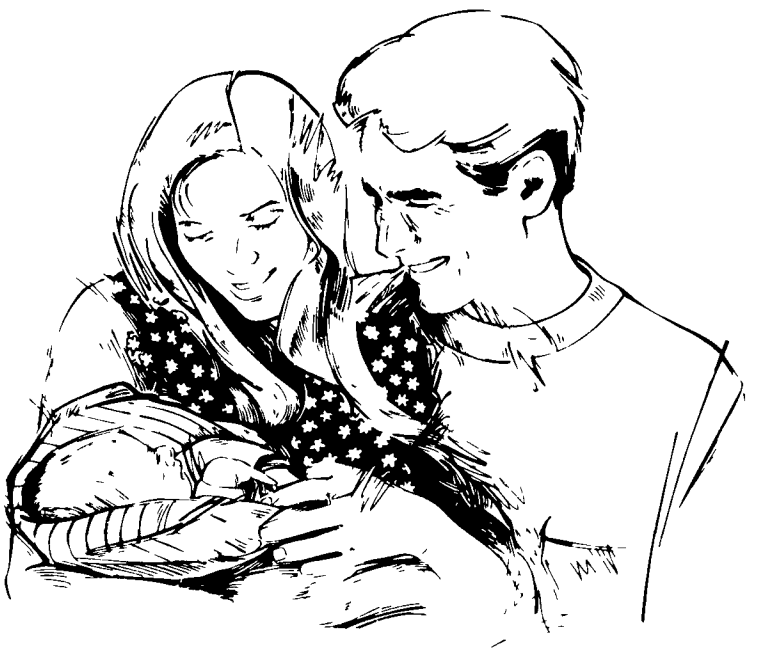
Christmas Coming Of Baby Betsy

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent



Much to the surprise of everyone, baby Elizabeth — Betsy, for short — was born at great-grandma's big farmhouse long before daylight broke on Christmas morning.

When their new sister arrived three weeks early, Billy and Becky the 10-year old twins, were sound asleep in their guest room beds.

That's because the evening before, the twins had worked hard helping their parents and grandparents trim the fresh evergreen tree for great-grandma. They had strung lights, hung ornaments, wove garlands, and dropped tinsel for a festive family gathering that would be held on Christmas afternoon. Their cousins, aunts and uncles were coming.

Then they had nibbled popcorn and sipped rich homemade cocoa. They had fallen into bed with excited exhaustion.

But, suddenly, instead of sugar plums dancing in her head, Becky came wide awake. She had a very strong sense that something unusual was going on. She couldn't imagine what it might be.

In her flannel nightie, she slid out of bed and padded to the window. Morning light was just beginning to streak the sky and during the night, more snow had fallen Christmas Day, at last! An urgent rap on the door was from Billy. 'Cmon Beck, race you to the Christmas tree," he said in a hushed whisper.

Instantly they were in flight toward the living room wishing they could have slid down the banister. But that would have destroyed its wrapping of greenery, bows, and berries.

Soon they were under the tree shifting presents left and right to find the ones with their own name on the label. Then Billy thought he heard quiet voices in the kitchen.

"Hey, Beck, listen. I hear something."

Sneaking through the dining room they pressed their ears to the dividing door.

"Well, Grandpa," they heard their grandma saying, "How do you feel now, any older? Are you surprised, you old dear?"

"Ho, ho, ho," laughed their grandpa. "It makes me feel younger, my lovely wife."

Billy and Becky screwed up their faces and giggled. Why did old folks talk so goofy?

"Oh, children, there you are," said Daddy, coming up from behind.

Startled, they faced him, guiltily.

"There's a surprise in mother's room that we want you to see," he said, kissing them each on top of the head.

"But, Pop, it's Christmas, and you said we could open..."

"No buts, Billy. Come with me. You, too, Becky."

'Daddy, can't you just tell us what it is? Can't it wait until after presents...where's Mother, anyway...Daddy, do you think I got the Barbie I wanted?" Becky said, her words almost tumbling over each other.

They had just reached the stairs when a clatter of horses, dogs and jingle bells erupted outside. They pulled back the curtains and looked through the window.

A fellow dressed in red and white was in charge of a team of horses that was pulling a sleigh. He held the reins fast while a tall passenger in a dark overcoat and leather gloves sprang to the ground from his seat. In the man's hand was a black bag.

"Daddy, who is that man and what's he doing here?" the twins asked as the fellow waded snow to the front door.

"If those were reindeer instead of horses, I would definitely say the driver is Santa Claus," their grandpa chuckled, on his way to greet the man and let him in.

"Santa Claus? Really?"

"No, but there is a special reason why we were hoping the doctor could pay us a visit, provided he could find transportation over these snow drifts."

"Doctor? Why is he here?" Billy wanted to know. "Dont tell me great-granny is sick? What about the pumpkin pies she always makes for us?"

"Is he one of our relatives Daddy?" Becky asked, with curiosity.

Just then a man's voice rang out: "Surprise, everyone...Merry Christmas...I'm here at last." The door was shut and he was stomping snow off his boots and setting them on the mat to drip dry. The twins stared while the man's overcoat was hung on the hall tree.

Just then, great grandmother, herself, appeared, demanding to know what all the racket was about. When she recognized the doctor, she said, sternly: "Oh, it's you, is it? Well, its about time..."

Daddy said: "Doctor, I am on my way upstairs with Billy and Becky. They haven't seen the surprise yet. They don't know what it is."

Suddenly, everybody stopped talking because from somewhere above them the cry of a newborn baby was heard. The twins eyes grew round with astonishment as they looked at their father for an explanation.

"Children, you have a new baby sister. Her name is Elizabeth — Betsy, for short."

'Oh, Daddy," cried Becky, with eyes that were misting over with happiness. "A baby sister?"

"Wow, that's really cool," Billy said, grinning from ear to ear.

Sweet Betsy had a tiny beautiful nose. The wee figure wrapped tightly in a pink and white flannel blanket looked so precious and peaceful.

Grow A Crystal Snowflake Overnight

1. Using a pipe cleaner cut into thirds, twist the three pieces together in the middle to form a snowflake shape. Tie a string onto one point of the snowflake.

2. In a wide-mouthed jar or bowl, dissolve borax in boiling water at the ratio of three tablespoons of borax to one cup of water. (You can also add a drop of blue food color if you wish.)

3. Tie the end of the string on the snowflake to a pencil. Suspend the snowflake into the container with the dissolved borax mixture, allowing the pencil to stretch across the opening. (Make sure there is enough liquid to cover the snowflake.) Leave the container with the snowflake suspended sitting out overnight.

When you wake up in the morning you will be surprised! These snowflakes can be displayed in your window for a sparkly winter decoration.

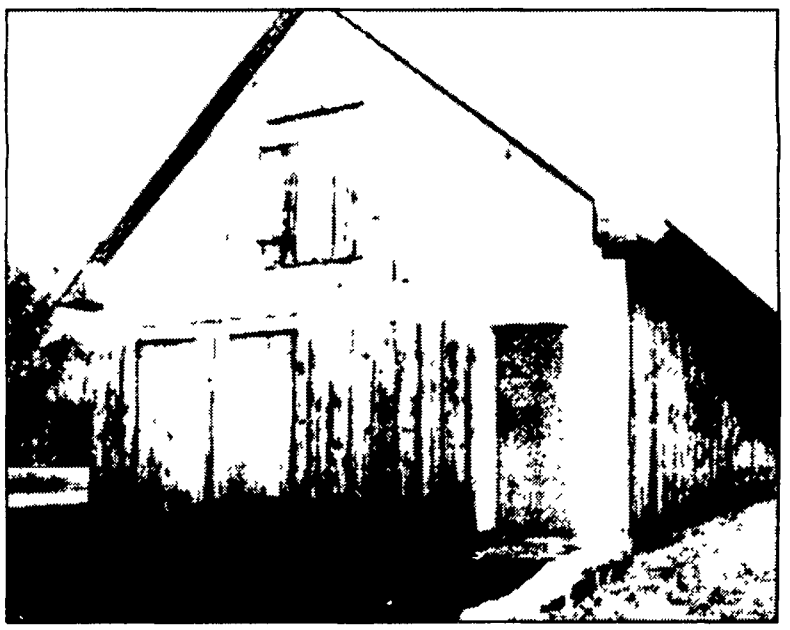
This 1840 barn was recently dismantled by Bixler, who said that he is amazed how every joint fits in craftsmanship found in barns from the 1800s.

Salvaged materials were used to restore this house.



Restoration Wood not only dismantles old barns but uses the wood for projects such as these.

"I guess I'm too much of an Old Dutchman," Bixler said of his reason for wanting to salvage old barns and buildings instead of seeing them destroyed. "I also believe we should be good stewards of the resources God has entrusted us with." Here, Bixler shows some of the interesting items he found while salvaging buildings.

Restoration Woods Salvages History

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

YORK SPRINGS (Adams Co.) — Growing up on a dairy farm in Maytown, Lee Bixler developed a love for old craftsmanship. Later, when he was dairy farming on his own, a neighbor wanted to get rid of an old barn. Bixler hated to see it destroyed.

He offered to dismantle it. He salvaged what he could, sold some pieces to others, and saved some pieces for future use.

The satisfaction of salvaging something that would have been destroyed created a desire to continue the work.

That was in 1975. By 1983, Bixler and his wife moved to Cumberland County (later to Adams County) and registered the business name Restoration Wood, under which he operates several interrelated services.

He dismantles old barns, houses, and outbuildings. He will reconstruct them or salvage parts to use in his furniture-making business.

Bixler started out part time, but by 1991 had enough to keep him busy full time with the interrelated businesses.

Joists are sometimes used in new construction, and old beams for fireplace mantels and ceiling trusses. Beams are also sawed into house flooring, hardware can be recycled, and weathered wood with original paint is in demand for crafts.

After dismantling 30 barns, 15 houses, and an assortment of outbuildings, Bixler has perfected his dismantling skills.

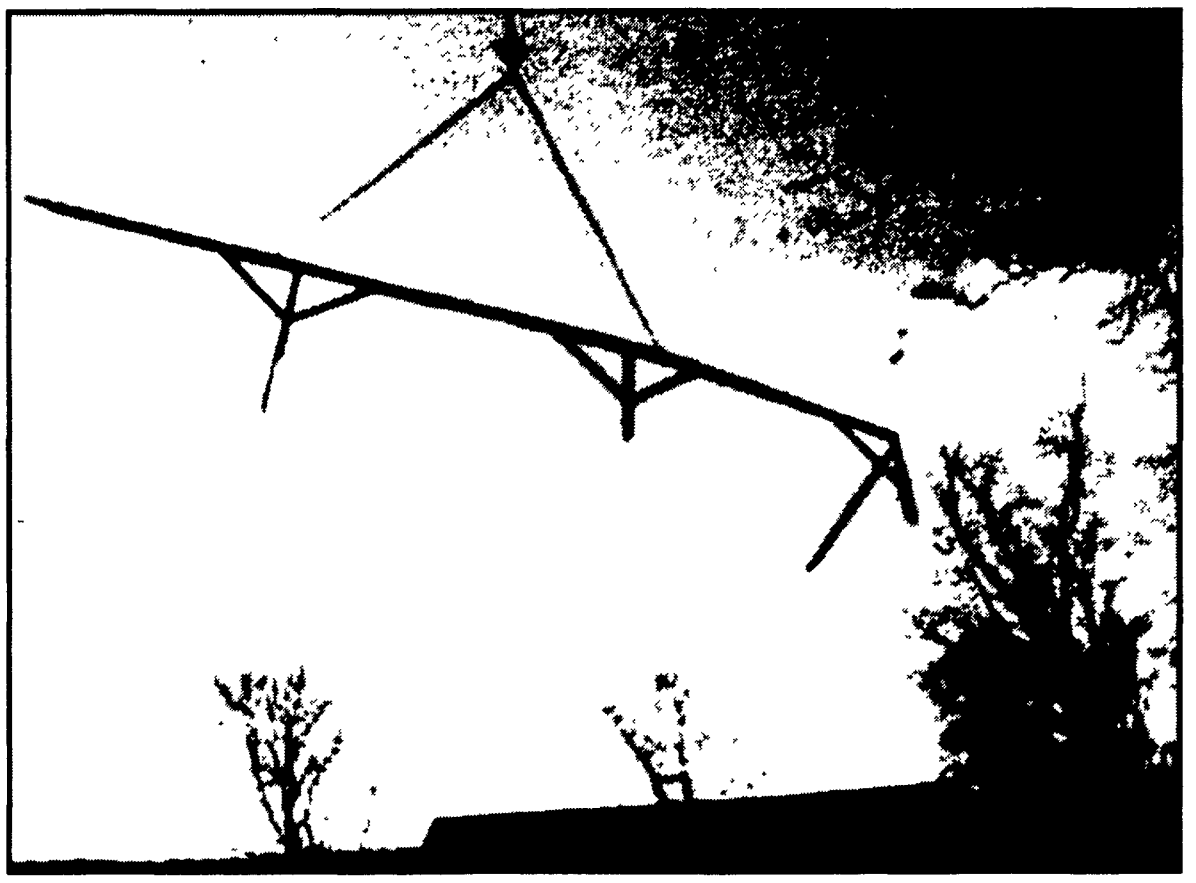
"The first time I did it, I ended up tearing too much up so that many of the pieces couldn't be reused," Bixler said. "Now I do it in steps. I take it apart the reverse of the way it was built."

"But you can't buy new handhewn barns," he said of the reason to salvage history. "I'm amazed at the craftsmanship during the 1800s. The joints fit perfectly, and details such as beading on every piece of siding are astounding.

"The new lumber isn't as nice as the old."

Bixler said it takes about three weeks to dismantle a barn and three more to haul out and clean it up.

Boards are salvaged for many different uses. Sometimes the project is reassembled on a different spot, other times recycled for other uses.



A crane is used to remove trusses and high, heavy pieces. Barns are dismantled the opposite way they were built in order to salvage as much as possible.

Bixler has removed barns throughout the state and in Virginia. He mostly works by himself, except during some stages that require an extra hand. Then he hires an independent contractor.

"But you don't find many people who want to work this hard," he said.

Bixler said dismantling barns ties up a lot of money until the material can be recycled or sold. He has a truck, skidloader, and gooseneck trailer, but needs to rent a crane for $1,500 to use in large projects.

He also needs to separate the metal, aluminum, copper, tin, and hardware and keep things in storage until he finds customers.

Environmental restrictions have increased since Bixler began the business. Bixler must fill out Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) forms. DEP checks for asbestos and other items that require special handling. Most townships do not allow any burning, which makes cleanup much more expensive.

Reconstructing barns requires extensive labor. Bixler estimates that it costs $50,000-$100,000 to rebuild a barn.

Barns used to be worth a lot more money, but costs are much higher today, and in some cases materials don't cover the costs.

Despite the difficulties, Bixler said, "I guess I'm too much of an old Dutchman. I just can't see throwing this stuff away."

Bixler and his wife Mary live in an old farmhouse that he restored. He used old barn floor beams and recycled brick in the restoration.

"I believe that we should be good stewards of the resources God has entrusted us with, and I'm trying to do this through my business," Bixler said of the many different phases that have developed from dismantling barns.

"I work just as hard or more than in dairy farming, but I do get to take a couple days off here and their to visit our kids who live out of state," Bixler said. "This work isn't like an animal that must be fed everyday."

A Website showing a list of Bixler's services and an online catalog of the furniture he makes from salvage pieces can be viewed at www.restorationwoods.biz. Phone is (717) 528-8831.

Heat with Corn!

A BETTER ALTERNATIVE
The corn burning furnace has many advantages over wood and coal heat The large storage bin holds up to 14 bushels of fuel, which is automatically fed into the combustion chamber as needed There's no need to load the furnace several times a day The use of corn also eliminates the bark mess, insects, splinters, and handling problems connected with the use of wood fuel, and the dust and dirt from coal UL Approved

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — There are no artificial trees at the home of Gwen and Joan Perce on South Richard Street.

Instead the house is filled with the pungent scent of a nine-foot Christmas tree, freshly cut at the Charles Seller's tree farm. The tree is so large, Gwen seeks the help of his neighbor Jim Davidson to complete the task.

Once the tree is in place, Gwen and Joan spend two days decorating and the tree graces the family dining room for the next month.

Decorations on the Perce evergreen date back to the late 1800s. Little paper dolls once belonged to Gwen's mother. The tree was a tradition started by Gwen's parents who cherished the holidays just as she still does.

"We lived in Washington, D.C.," Gwen, a semi-retired attorney, explains. "Every year my parents would buy a few more decorations, mostly glass balls. But, at times there were other ornaments such as a Santa on a hoop or a glass Santa."

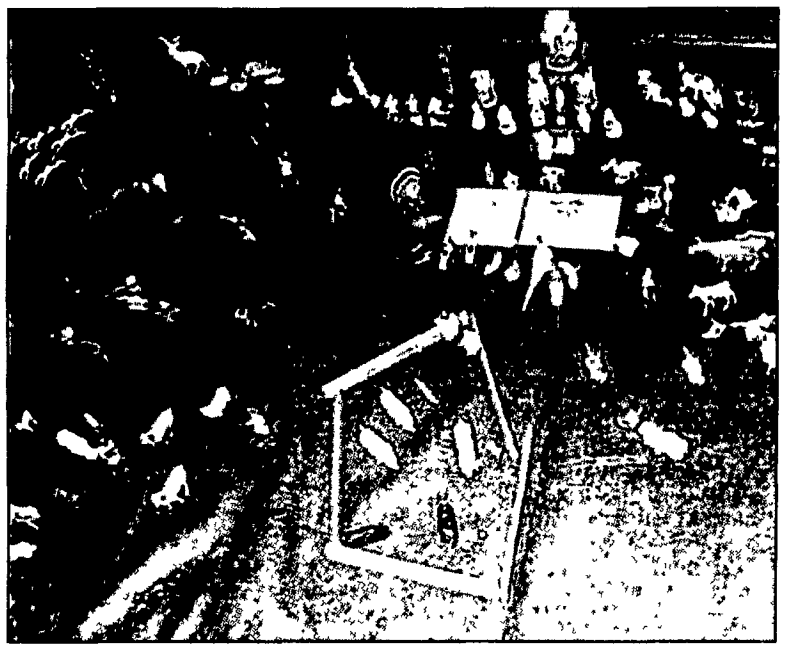
"Santa Claus always did the decorating and I don't really know how my parents did it. I was always up at 5 a.m. and they didn't start decorating until I went to bed."

There was the year that the tree feil down which Gwen remembers most clearly although it was not a good Christmas. Unfortunately, many of the decorations were broken and the collection began again.

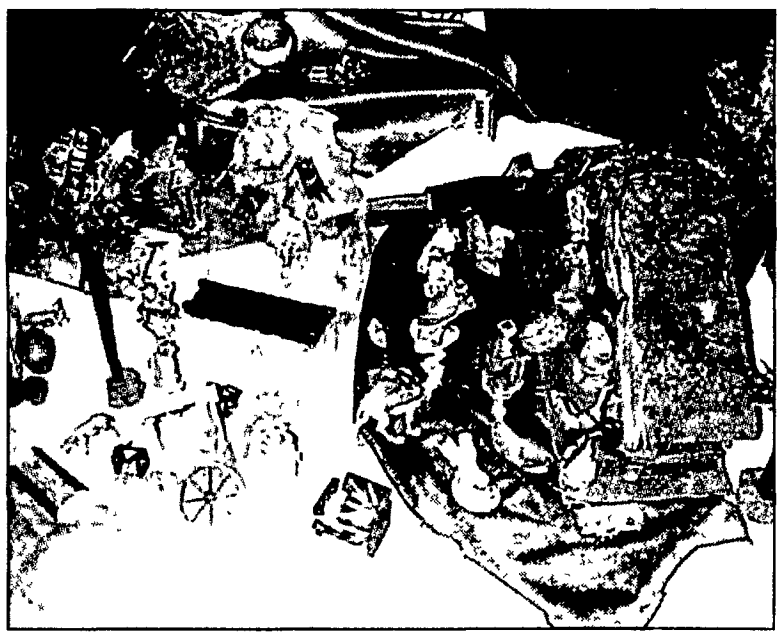
Dates of the majority of ornaments range from 1925 to 1936.

A few of the glass ball lost their luster when they were stored in the kitchen of the Washington Perce apartment and there was a natural gas stove. It caused the shiny glass to dull.

Gwen and Joan at work decorating their nine-foot Christmas tree.



The miniature farm set was Gwen's as a small child in the late 1920s.



The new nativity set is a heirloom for tomorrow complete with barns, tents, and palm trees.

A close up of the beautiful, old glass ornaments adorning the Perce tree.

Santa on a hoop, which is at least 70 plus years, and a glass Santa of about the same vintage have a spot on the tree.

Under the tree is a farm set, a childhood present to Gwen, now in his 70's. A nativity set was recently added by his wife, Joan. Joan has also added a miniature winter village to the collection.

Avid travelers, both Gwen and Joan are always on the lookout for more unusual decorations and this year added some hanging nativity pieces.

"I love the reproduction glass ornaments," Gwen says, "But many of those are so expensive, they are out of my price range."

The tree is enjoyed by Joan's grandchildren, family and friends throughout the holidays. "But mostly," Gwen says, "We enjoy it ourselves."

The Christmas village was added by Joan.

How To Recognize Old English Silver

Knowing the shape of various English silver date letters is one way to discover valuable silver.

When a pair of 18th century English sterling candlesticks can sell at auction for $4,000 or more, and an early 19th century English sterling sugar caddy spoon fetches more than $2,500 at auction, doing research can pay off for you. Not everybody is an expert on silver marks, or wants to spend the time searching for them.

Equally important is knowing the hallmarks and designs of the various periods. Is the design in keeping with the hallmark date?

CLUES: Just as in other antique categories, silver designs have been reproduced through the ages. If a candlestick has a classical Corinthian column form and a lion mark on the base, it may or may not date to the 18th century. The lion assay mark is a clue to its English origin and was used to designate solid or "sterling" silver, beginning in the year 1544.

The next clue to look for will be the Duty mark (the head of the reigning sovereign).

Hopefully you'll discover the heads of George III or IV on highly prized Georgian silver. Their profiles faced left. Silver with the heads of King George V and Queen Mary will be found on pieces commemorating their 25th anniversary on the throne. They are referred to as jubilee marks.

What if you find a candlestick with a scratched mark on the base of say 1755? This could either be a mark showing it had been repaired or was in a pawn shop.

This is not a date mark.

A third mark on English silver shows where the piece was made. A leopard's head designates a London piece; a castle or thistle were used by Edinburgh makers. The date letter identifies the exact year. Each 20 year cycle in silver uses a different alphabet design.

Either try and memorize which alphabet represents the early years or put examples in a small notebook to carry when you go antique hunting.

Names can lead you astray. Popular "name" silversmiths like Boulton, Bateman, Storr and Lameries are not only extremely expensive, but faked. Sorry to say there is nothing new about taking the hallmark from an 18-century Georgian spoon and placing it on a new silver candlestick. Don't be afraid to blow on the hallmark. If it was soldered on, and not punched, it will show.

Memorize the marks and names of some of the lesser known silversmiths. If the price is modest, and everything else points to an 18th or 19th century piece, take a chance.

Sometimes early silver pattern books are reprinted to show the variety of styles by makers. Check used book stores or dealers at shows.

There are several reference books on not only English marks, but European and American. Bradbury's Book of Hallmarks was one of the earlier ones. Another is Old Silver by Seymour Wyler.

Look for patch lines, before you pay too much. If repairs have been made and a patch inserted, this can been seen when the piece is tarnished or you breathe on it. Often a decoration that seems out of place is a clue and hiding a repair patch.

And, when marks have been applied to a reproduction, the patch lines will show up.

Fuzzy marks are also found on faked pieces.

If you are looking at old English silver as an investment, consider the following. Prices are based on age, current popularity of famous names, quality of workmanship, weight and condition.

Use Lemon Juice To Clean Brass, Copper, Much More

(NAPS) — Lemonade, marinades and salad dressing aren't the only things you can make with that bottle of lemon juice in your refrigerator; it can do a lot more.

The next time life gives you lemons, don't make lemonade. Instead, try some of these handy household cleaning tips and health-and-beauty uses that have been collected over the years. Some are true, while others may be old wives' tales, passed down from generation to generation.

Create blond highlights. Rinse your hair with one-quarter cut lemon juice and three-quarter cup water. Follow it up by sitting in the sun.

Whiten, brighten, strengthen fingernails. Soak fingernails in ReaLemon juice for 10 minutes, then brush with a mixture of equal parts white vinegar and warm water. Rinse well.

Get rid of dandruff. Apply one tablespoon lemon juice to your hair. Shampoo, then rinse with water. Rinse again with a mixture of two tablespoons lemon juice and two cups water. Repeat every other day until dandruff disappears.

Eliminate blackheads. Rub ReaLemon over blackheads before going to bed. Wait until morning to wash off the juice with cool water. Repeat for several nights until you see a big improvement in the skin.

Clear up facial blemishes. Dab lemon juice on the blemish a few times a day. After six to eight weeks the blemishes should disappear. The acidity of the juice is enough to safely peel off the upper layer of skin.

Tooth whitener. For an occasional whitener for your teeth, mix together one teaspoon baking soda and ½ teaspoon lemon juice. Apply a coat of this paste to your teeth, using a cotton swab. Brush clean with water and rinse. Be careful not to do this too often as lemon juice is very acidic and may damage tooth enamel.

Relieve constipation. Before breakfast, drink four tablespoons ReaLemon in one cup warm water. Sweeten with honey.

Deodorize a cutting board. To rid your cutting board of the smell of garlic, onions or fish, wash it with lemon juice.

Clean a microwave oven. Add four tablespoons ReaLemon to one cup water in a microwave-safe, four-cup bowl. Boil for five minutes in the microwave, allowing the steam to condense on the inside walls of the oven. Wipe clean.

Clean brass, copper and stainless steel kitchen sinks. Make a paste of lemon juice and salt; scrub gently, then rinse with water.

Eliminate odors in your humidifier. Pour three or four teaspoons of ReaLemon into the water.

Remove rust and mineral discolorations on cotton T-shirts and briefs. Use one cup lemon juice in the washer.

Remove fruit/berry stains or garlicky and fishy odors from hands. Rinse hands with lemon juice.

Relieve a cough. Mix four tablespoons ReaLemon, one cup honey and one-half cup olive oil. Heat five minutes, then stir vigorously for two minutes. Take one teaspoon every two hours.

Relieve rough hands or sore feet. Apply lemon juice, rinse, then massage with olive oil.

Write with invisible ink. Use a Q-tip as a pen to write in lemon juice on a piece of white paper. Once it dries, hold the paper near a hot light bulb. The writing will turn brown.

Remove ink spots from clothing. While ink is wet, apply ReaLemon liberally to the spot, then wash the garment on normal cycle with regular detergent in cold water, For more information and recipes, visit www.realemon.com.

CTB International Corp. Announces Agreement To Be Acquired By Berkshire Hathaway

MILFORD, Ind. — CTB International Corp. (NASDAQ CTBC), a leader in equipment for the poultry, hog, egg production and grain industries, announced it had signed a definitive merger agreement with Berkshire Hathaway Inc. (NYSE: BRK.A, BRK.B).

Under the terms of the merger agreement, CTB shareholders will receive $12.75 per share in cash. The company said the total value of the transaction, including approximately $40 million of assumed debt, was approximately $180 million. Upon completion of the transaction, CTB will become a wholly owned subsidiary of Berkshire Hathaway.

Victor A. Mancinelli, CTB's president and chief executive officer, hailed the agreement as a significant step forward for the company. "The deal enables us to find an outstanding permanent home for this business," he said. "It's good for our customers, our loyal employees and managers, and the local communities in which we operate, as well as providing an assured return on our shareholders' investments.

"As a small-capitalization, public company with limited research coverage, we were not widely followed by public market investors. Berkshire Hathaway, one of only eight AAA rated companies, will provide us improved access to capital to support our longer-term growth strategy."

Warren Buffett, chief executive officer of Berkshire Hathaway, also expressed enthusiasm for the transaction. "This is a strong company with great American values. It has an excellent franchise, strong market share in a basic industry, and top-flight management," he said.

The merger agreement is subject to approval of a majority of CTB's shareholders and to regulatory approvals. The transaction is expected to close in the fourth quarter of this year.

American Securities Capital Partners (ASCP), the Chocola family, who are descendents of CTB's founder Howard Brembeck, and certain members of management have entered into a shareholders agreement with Berkshire Hathaway pursuant to which they have agreed to vote shares under their control representing more than 55 percent of outstanding shares in favor of the transaction.

American Securities Capital Partners, a New York-based private-equity investment firm, acquired a controlling interest in CTB principally from the Brembeck family in January 1996, and assisted the company in completing an initial public offering in August 1977. ASCP currently controls 4.56 million shares, or 42 percent of the shares outstanding.

Canadian Agency Consulted On National Animal ID System

VERONA, Wis. — Several individuals from the Wisconsin Livestock Identification Consortium (WLIC) met recently with the manager of the Canadian Cattle Identification Agency (CCIA) to utilize their expertise to define system requirements for the establishment of the Consortium's animal identification system.

"The Canadians implemented a national identification program this past year," Gary Tauchen, WLIC chairperson said. "They've gained tremendous knowledge and valuable experience. We're glad they're willing to assist us so we can make more timely progress. Our initiative is gaining tremendous support and momentum and we will continue to build upon industry input."

Since April, representatives from WLIC have participated in the development of a national identification work plan. The identification work plan was recently accepted by the United States Animal Health Association, with resolutions requesting USDA to use the plan as a guide to establish a national program.

WLIC is using the work plan to ensure their efforts support a national system. The Wisconsin initiative referred to as the Animal Identification and Information (A-II) System is being designed to support a national program in the United States.

"Until basic standards are adapted, it is impossible to advance a national program," Wisconsin State Veterinarian Clarence Siroky said. "The Wisconsin project will utilize the recommended standards from the national work plan, starting with those defined for a national premises system. Premises Identification system provides the foundation of a national program. Until this current void is addressed, there's no way to make progress," Siroky, who co-chaired a National Identification Task Force Work Group, added.

The A-II system is being designed to support both regulatory functions and market-based opportunities. "WLIC supports the development of a national program for the right reasons and we want the system to enhance management capabilities of the producer," said Neil Hammerschmidt, WLIC chief operating officer. "That's why we're taking a different approach, utilizing various service providers at the farm/ranch. Such services will provide the basic 'inputs' necessary to support animal health functions that animal health officials might need. This approach has been well received by the industry."

WLIC will be initiating pilot projects to obtain more producer involvement as the systems are developed. The consortium has signed memorandums of understanding with several companies that provide management services to producers. These added-value service providers will be key participants in the projects to develop a completely integrated system.

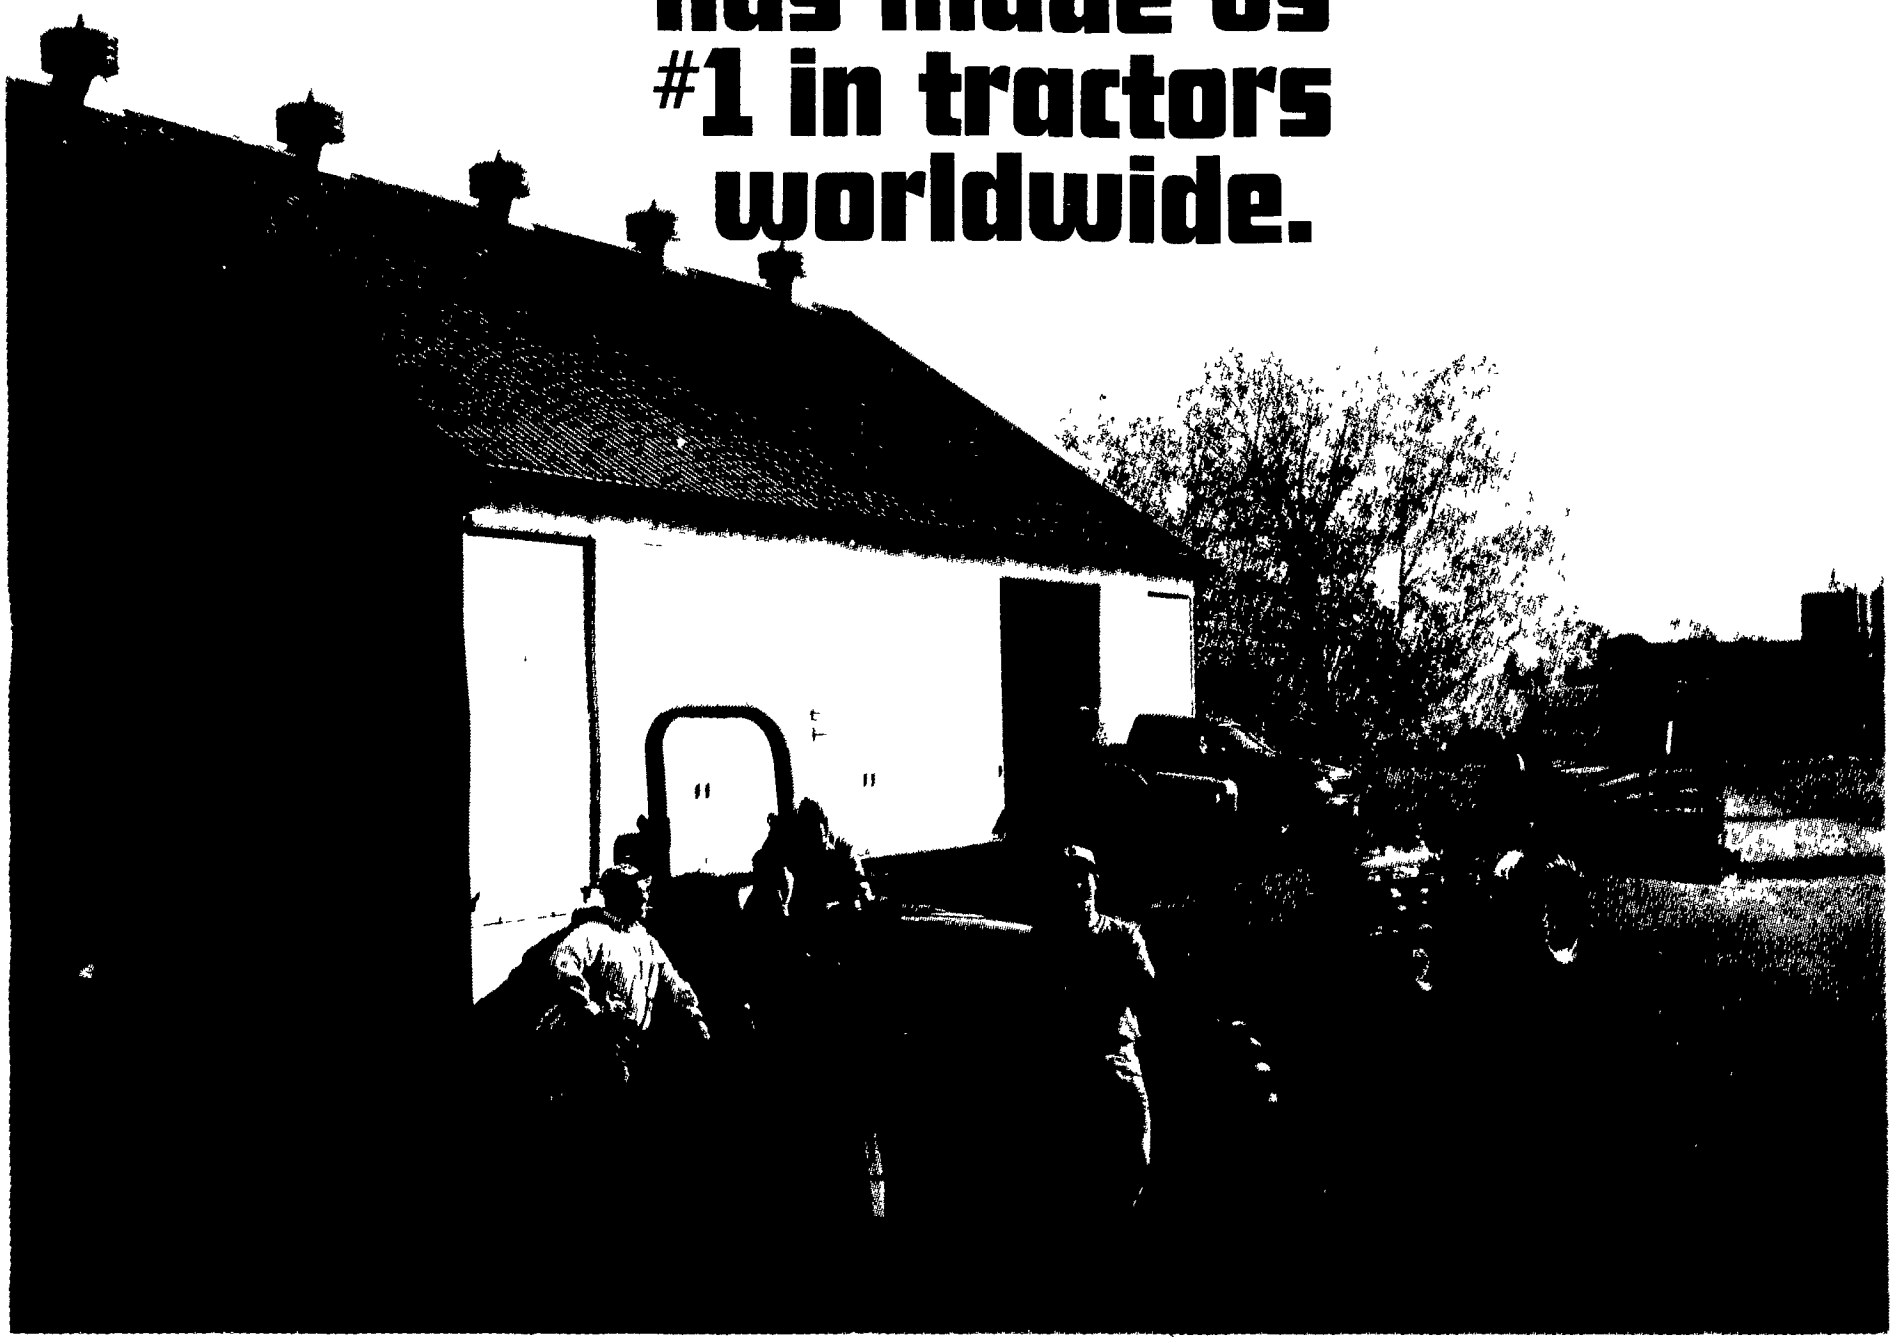
A legacy of performance has made us #1 in tractors worldwide.



We're New Holland.

From the old Ford 30 Series tractor to the "built for you" New Holland TN, generations of farmers have relied on blue tractors to power their productivity. That legacy continues.

Today, New Holland sells more tractors worldwide than any other manufacturer. Why? Because New Holland and your New Holland dealer are specialists in keeping you productive.

New Holland hasn't forgotten what made the 30 Series - or the many trusted Ford tractors before it - performance leaders So, we're working harder than ever to keep New Holland your brand of choice.

Get into New Holland blue and enjoy a whole new level of productivity. Visit your New Holland dealer today and ask about our full line of tractors from 18 to 450 hp.

Garst And BASF Announce New Program For Corn Growers

SLATER, Iowa — Garst and BASF officials have announced a new promotion designed for corn growers who are looking to combine proven Garst IT corn hybrids with the affordable and effective weed control offered with Lightning herbicide.

"We are very excited to offer Garst customers this type of cost-saving program," explains Gene Kassmeyer, crop product manager for Garst Seed Company. "With this program, corn growers can select the Garst IT corn hybrids that are right for their acres and get the cost-effective weed control that Lightning herbicide is known for."

Now growers can purchase both their Garst IT corn hybrids and Lightning herbicide with zero percent interest when they finance their seed on the Garst Gold Plan and herbicide through Farm Plan.

Growers can take advantage of the Garst Gold Plan and zero percent interest by contacting their local Garst Guy or calling 1-888-Go-Garst.

INJECTORS

Have you serviced yours?

Bad Injectors Cause:

- Excessive Fuel Consumption
- Poor Starting
- Loss Of Power
- Misfiring
- Black Smoke
- Overheating

So service them regularly!

Dear Customers & Friends:

As we pause at the threshold of a New Year, we cannot help but express our sincere gratitude for the blessings of the past. The relationships which we have been privileged to establish and cultivate over the years are the substance of which our professional lives consist. We take seriously our commitment to excellence in service to the agribusiness community. With this commitment comes a realization that the future promises some interesting challenges and opportunities. With the Grace afforded to us, we endeavor to press forward, using all our resources and energies to meet these challenges. We desire to do our part to help you in your pursuit of a successful and prosperous New Year.

Sincerely,
The Staff of Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc.

BW180, the Woods Equipment Company's new batwing cutter.

Woods Equipment Offers New Batwing Cutter

OREGON, Ill. — Woods Equipment Company has introduced the BW180, a flexible wing rotary cutter with exceptional cutting performance. It is a perfect utility machine for general cutting around farms and large estates.

The BW180 is easy to transport, and ideal for fast maintenance of waterways, pastures, or even airports. A slope top deck that sheds water and other debris, helps prevent corrosion and rusted-through deck plates, increasing the life of the machine. The deep side frame increases cut material capacity for greater productivity and cut quality.

"The newest member of the Batwing family, the BW180, is economical to own," says Matt Nisbet, product manager. "The overall shape of the BW180 is designed to cut close to obstructions, with great trimming ability."

Vermeer Introduces New Vermeer® DiscPro® Mower Conditioner

The new Vermeer MC840 DiscPro Mower Conditioner cuts a clean 10-foot six-inch swath — one of the widest conditioners in its class. It transports at 11-foot one-inch transport width — one of the narrowest in its class. And, it features — exclusively — DynaGuard Protection, a system designed specifically to help reduce damage to the cutterbar in rugged conditions.

New Vermeer MC840 DiscPro Mower Conditioner.

The cornerstone of the system is the Vermeer DynaGuard cutterhead suspension. This patent pending design combines linkage and heavy-duty springs to allow the Vermeer MC840 to pull and "lift" the header over obstacles, dramatically reducing the heavy pounding and structural fatigue caused by rocks and other obstructions. (This differs considerably from other models — using "push-type" designs — which tend to drive the cutterbar into obstacles and create undue stress on the machine.)

In addition: (a) a Torsion-Flex Drive System helps absorb the shock of high impacts to a vertical shaft which drives the cutterbar; (b) a unique, segmented hex-shaped "Tri-Shaft" driveline in the cutterbar reduces service time, repairs and costs; (c) double-wide skids eliminate pinch points where rocks often create cutter bar problems; and (d) a friction-style, over-running clutch is placed as close as possible to the very thing it's designed to protect; the cutter bar.

Tractor requirements: 75 hp; 540 rpm; two auxiliary remotes; 6 gpm minimum flow and enclosed cab with rollover protection.

Claas Of America's New Disc Mowers Provide Reliable Cutter Bar Protection

COLUMBUS, Ind. — New Claas 250, 290, 2650 and 3050 disc mowers are designed to provide reliable cutter bar protection, helping to reduce the likelihood of damage and enhancing service life.

Featuring rugged skid shoes, the Disco 250 and 290 disc mowers protect the entire cutter bar while feed drums mounted on the outer discs ensure well shaped swaths. Designed so that individual drive units can be removed from the mowing bar, the 250 and 290 are easy to service. These mowers also keep the mowing bar in suspension across its whole width, reducing friction over the ground and enabling the mower to smooth out bumps and ridges in the field.

Other features on the 250 and 290 include a swath plate that separates the swath from the standing crop, a belt drive with built in elasticity to deliver full power transfer without peaks and a break away device that protects the mowers if an obstacle is encountered. Simply back up and resume passage across the field. A 3 pt. hitch attachment with adjustable lower linkage to match the tractor width is also standard. The Disco 250 delivers an 8-foot cutting width and has six flow enhancing discs with two knives per disc. The Disco has a 9-foot 4-inch cutting width and seven flow enhancing discs with two knives per disc.

Built to deliver years of service and productivity, the heavy duty Claas Disco 2650 and 3050 Disco disc mowers cut cleanly and provide reliable cutter bar protection. A defined shear point above the satellite pinion gear allows the shaft to snap without damaging the cutter bar while a hex bolt in the pinion shaft prevents the disc from flying away. Other features include a planet/idle gear drive system that delivers smooth, quiet operation. The large planet gears on the system turn at 800 RPM, keeping the noise and wear level to a minimum and generating a disc rotation of 3200 RPM for clean cutting.

The Disco 2650 disc mower has an 8-foot 6-inch cutting width and six discs with two knives per disc. The Disco 3050 has a 9-foot 10-inch cutting width and seven discs with two knives per disc.

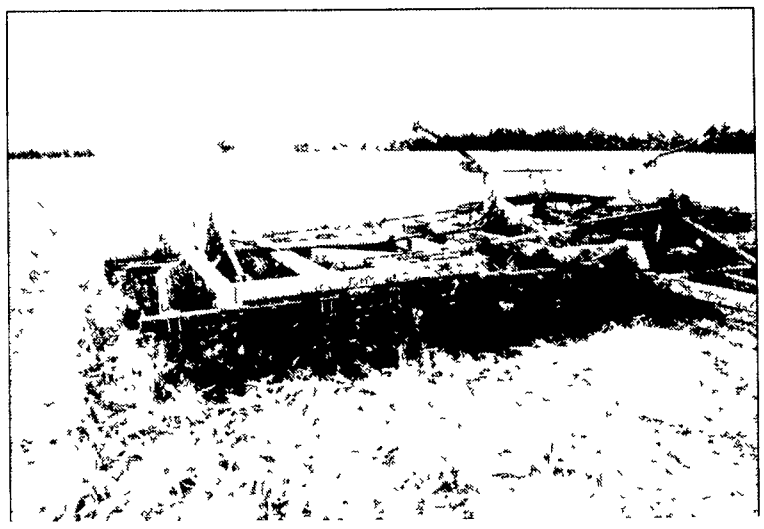
Vertical Tillage Tool Utilizes Company's 'Turbo' Coulter

SALINA, Kansas — Great Plains Manufacturing Inc. has introduced a new series of vertical tillage tools. The TurboTill™ machine gets its name from the use of two ranks of patented 20" Turbo Coulters

The angled flutes of the coulter enter the ground vertically, slicing cleanly through residue and eliminating "hair pinning" of the straw

This design also enhances the ability of the coulter to penetrate the soil. All Verti-Till™ series implements are designed to reduce or eliminate compaction layers associated with field traffic and normal horizontal tillage practices.

The Turbo Till machine can be used in the fall for residue management or in the spring to mix residue and darken the soil, enhancing seedbed warming. No-Till farmers will find a use for this implement when fields are too soggy to plant. It can also be used ahead of seeding equipment to soften the crust of hard baked soils. Min-Till/Conventional farmers will appreciate the tool's versatility in smoothing ground that was deep-tilled the fall before, as well as, spring seedbed preparation.



Great Plains Manufacturing introduces the TurboTill™ machine with patented coulters that enter the ground vertically.

MidAtlantic Farm Credit Returns Over $6.7 Million In Earnings

WESTMINSTER, Md. — MidAtlantic Farm Credit announces the payment of over $6.7 million to its member-borrowers as part of the cooperative lending organization's patronage refund program. The $6.7 million represents the revolvement of allocated surplus awarded to member-borrowers in 1996, and is in addition to $5.3 million distributed to members in cash in April

"The $6.7 million in checks we are writing to our members in December is perhaps one of the best reasons for doing business with Farm Credit — a financial cooperative owned by its member-borrowers," says Bob Frazee, president of MidAtlantic Farm Credit. "Our interest rates are competitive even without the effect of the patronage program, our loan programs are flexible and creative as any out there, and our commitment to customer service is unmatched in the financial services industry."

"We are committed to returning our earnings to the people who helped to make us successful — our borrowers," continues Frazee. "This is a good indication of the financial stability of MidAtlantic. And it's especially rewarding to me personally to be able to continue to return millions of dollars to our membership in a year of drought, low crop yields, and low commodity prices."

Case IH Products Earn Four AE50 Awards

RACINE, Wis. — Four Case IH products were recently recognized with AE50 honors for their outstanding innovation in product and systems technology in the American Society of Agricultural Engineer's (ASAE) Resource magazine.

Case IH products making the prestigious list were:

• Case IH 2500 Rip-Strip, an efficient tillage system that improves soil tilth and seed bed condition while also retaining residue.

Case IH 2500 Rip-Bed, a cost-effective, one-pass system that provides deep tillage and bed building for cotton and vegetable production.

• Case IH CPX610 Cotton Express cotton picker, a large capacity, six-row machine that uses exclusive technology to pick from both sides of the plant.

• Electronic Twine Wrapper for the Case IH RBX Series round balers, an in-cab computerized system that automates many round-baling functions.

"Our product development process begins with our customers," says Jim Irwin, vice president for the North American Case IH agricultural business. "We find out what job they want to accomplish or what problem they need to solve. Then our expert engineers go to work to develop the equipment with features these need to drive their success."

The AE50 awards recognize the best products for agriculture, food, biological and related systems that are introduced in a given year. Companies from around the world submit entries to the annual competition, and a panel of international engineering experts selects the best products.

Resource magazine sponsors the AE50 award program to highlight the crucial role new products and systems play in bringing advanced technology to the marketplace. The 2002 AE50 award winners were chosen because they demonstrated a new technology or advancement of a previous technology and the potential for broad impacts on the industry.

The judging panel of ASAE experts represents all factions of the agricultural, food and biological engineering professions and ranks entries based on the criteria of commercial impact, contribution to the agricultural and engineering industries, advancements in engineering and technological significance.

Innovative engineering has resulted in four Case IH products being awarded AE50 honors in 2002. One of the products recognized is an in-cab computerized system that automates many round-baling functions in the Case IH RBX Series balers.

Dr. Paul Kononoff Joins Renaissance Nutrition Team

ROARING SPRING (Blair Co.) — Dr. Paul Konoff was recently hired by Renaissance Nutritional, Inc. for its Renaissance Nutrition Support Team/Help Desk.

A recent graduate of Penn State, earning a Ph.D. in animal nutrition, Dr. Konoff's research focused on the effects of forage particle size in dairy rations. He was instrumental in further defining the already well-known and used Penn State forage particle separator, improving its value and utilization on farms today.

A Canadian citizen, Dr. Konoff brings to Renaissance extensive experience and understanding of dairy nutrition and agriculture, combined with outstanding people skills and a desire to help livestock producers improve the success of their operations.

Outside of his work and research in dairy science, he enjoys coaching rugby. Dr. Konoff is married and resides with his wife Mandy, in Central Pennsylvania.

Pesticides And Nematodes Combine To Create Ideal Killer

WOOSTER, Ohio — What do you get when you mix certain pesticides and insect-parasitic nematodes? The perfect killer.

According to Parwinder S. Grewal, an entomologist with the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center (OARDC), some insecticides can increase the effectiveness of entomopathogenic nematodes, which are used to control pests such as white grubs and fungus gnats.

"While some pesticides can be toxic for the nematodes, others enhance their parasitic effect," Grewal explained. "The pesticide and the nematodes act in a synergistic way."

Which means the pesticide does not turn nematodes into mutant killers, but rather works as a loyal sidekick while the nematodes combat harmful insects.

Found abundantly in the soil, nematodes are microscopic worms that kill many insect and mollusk agricultural pests. Several species have been successfully used for pest control in citrus, cranberries, mint, strawberries, mushrooms, nurseries, greenhouses and turfgrass in North America, Europe, Japan and Australia. Grapes are expected to join the list next year.

"We've been studying the compatibility of nematodes with other pest control sources over the last few years," Grewal said. "This is a very nice discovery because the lack of compatibility information has been a major impediment to further expansion of their (nematodes') use."

Together with colleagues from Rutgers University, New Jersey, and the University of California at Davis, Grewal discovered that the insecticide imidacloprid and the nematodes Heterorhabditis bacteriophora and Steinernema glaseri interact synergistically against turfgrass's biggest nemesis, white grubs.

White grubs are the root-feeding larvae of scarab beetles (such as masked chafers, the Japanese beetle, and the oriental beetle), which cause significant damage to many agricultural and horticultural plants.

One of the most widely used agents to destroy white grubs is imidacloprid, an insecticide found in products such as Admire, Conditor, Gaucho, Premier, Premise, Provado, and Marathon. However, the efficacy of this insecticide declines as the white grub develops, so it has to be applied preventatively to large turf areas that may or may not be infected.

Entomopathogenic nematodes, on the other hand, are effective against the later stages of the white grub. After entering the body cavity of insects through a variety of openings, nematodes release bacteria that multiply and kill the host within three to four days. The nematodes then feed on the dead insect, reproduce and migrate in search of new hosts.

Nonetheless, white grubs have developed a series of behavioral, morphological and physiological barriers to infection during their co-evolution with nematodes, which makes it harder for the worms to penetrate their hosts. That's where imidacloprid comes into play.

"Imidacloprid disrupts white grubs' normal nerve function, breaking down the defenses that they display in response to nematode attack," Grewal explained. "This helps the nematodes get inside the grubs and start the parasitic cycle."

Since the later white grub stages are easier to detect, Grewal suggests applying an imidacloprid-nematode mix to infected turf. This combination reduces costs and provides a safer and more environmentally friendly alternative to more hazardous agrochemicals used for turfgrass pest control.

Grewal has also studied the resistance of the nematode Steinernema feltiae to fungicides such as Nimbecidine, cynnamaldehyde (Cinnamate), Zerotol and azoxystrobin (Abound). Steinernma feltiae is used for the control of fungus gnats.

It is usually more economical to tank-mix nematodes with one or more inputs for application," Grewal said. "Nenfatodes are tolerant to short exposures of most fungicides, but in some cases these chemicals can reduce nematode viability and virulence. That's why we needed to know for sure which fungicides were safe."

Grewal concluded that Nimbecidine, Cinnamate and Zerotol were toxic to nematodes. Meanwhile, Abound and neem (the active ingredient in Nimbecidine, used in this case as pure oil without any additives) caused no harmful effect on the nematodes.

"The more we learn about the interaction of nematodes with agrochemicals, the better we are equipped to offer safer and more cost-effective insect management methods," Grewal remarked. "With this knowledge, nematodes are more likely to be accepted by growers as an effective way to fight pests."

Entomopathogenic nematodes have been mass-produced since the mid '80s and their use is becoming more popular. Florida orange growers, for instance, apply nematodes to 50,000 acres each year to help control the citrus root weevil. Unlike pesticides, nematodes continue working for quite some time after the first application — a single host can produce 300,000 to 400,000 new nematodes which then seek additional victims.

21 Teams Compete In American Royal Intercollegiate Livestock Judging

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — A total of 21 teams, which were comprised of 97 contestants, representing colleges and universities from across the United States competed for top honors in the 102nd Annual American Royal Livestock Judging Contest Oct. 26.

Student teams compete in the judging of beef cattle, sheep and swine at the American Royal, as well as the presentation of oral reasons for their placings. Winners were announced at the 55th annual awards breakfast sponsored by the Belles of American Royal (BOTAR) on Sunday, Oct. 27, at the Hilton Garden Inn hotel in Kansas City, Kan. The BOTARS have sponsored this educational event for youth in agriculture for more than 20 years.

Top team honors overall were awarded to the University of Illinois for their combined score of 4,691 points out of a possible 5,000. Students on the team were Brad Faber, Sublette, Ill.; Brian Postin, Lewistown, Ill.; Brock Tarr, Newton, Ill.; Adam Swigart, Farmers City, Ill.; and Carrie Bertelsen, Little York, Ill. The team was coached by Dan Shike.

Other teams placing in the top five in the competition included Texas Tech University, second, with a combined score of 4,679 points; Iowa State University, third, with a combined score of 4,670 points; Michigan State University, fourth, with a combined score of 4,632 points; and Oklahoma State University, fifth, scoring 4,629 points.

The top five high-scoring individuals overall in the contest were also recognized for their accomplishments. They included Jason Byrd, Fort Sumner, N.M., first; Michael Lash, Allerton, Iowa, second; Andy VanAernam, Exira, Iowa, third; Carrie Bertelsen, Little York, Ill., fourth; and Nolan Frantz, Hillsboro, Kan., fifth.

New Claas Variant® 260 Round Baler helps reduce bale spoilage.

Claas Offers New Round Baler To Reduce Spoilage

COLUMBUS, Ind. — Equipped with adjustable soft core and density control systems, the new Variant 260 variable chamber round baler from Claas of America helps reduce bale spoilage.

The soft core control allows the center core of the bale to be adjusted to meet hay conditions. In tough hay conditions, the bale core size can be increased, permitting the bale to breathe and reducing the possibility of spoilage.

Density control allows the outer wrap of the bale to be adjusted. Bale diameter on the 260 is also adjustable from 36 inches to 60 inches. Engineered to bale high moisture as well as dry hay, the versatility of the Variant 260 is unmatched in the industry.

Featuring a variable chamber design, the Variant 260 begins to roll the material as soon as it enters the chamber and continues to roll it throughout the baling process. The bale chamber rotates in a direction opposite of competitive models, enhancing the starting process and eliminating right angle turns for increased capacity and output.

Options for the Claas Variant 260 include the Claas' Roto Cut system with 14 removable knives. The Roto Cut system provides a through cut of the material as it enters the bale chamber, resulting in a bale that is processed to meet individual feeding needs. Engaged from the cab, the knives can be removed as needed, increasing cut length choices.

The Variant 260 comes with Twine tie, Rollatex Net Tie, or a combination of both. Both systems deliver positive ties, increasing daily productivity. Both systems are mounted out front of the baler for unobstructed view.

Rotary Technology Leads Case IH Axial- Flow Combine Upgrades

RACINE, Wis. — In response to the expanded capacity and productivity needs of combine operators, Case IH announces a breakthrough in rotary combine technology — the AFX rotor.

"The Case IH AFX rotor is the most advanced design in rotor technology on the market today," says Leo Bose, marketing and training manager for Case IH harvesting equipment. "Our new rotor increases throughput in a Case IH 2388 Axial-Flow combine by up to 25 percent, while improving fuel efficiency and reducing wear."

AFX rotor technology is the first piece in a new generation of single rotor combine development from Case IH. It continues to deliver the superior grain quality, grain savings, crop adaptability and simplicity that have distinguished the Axial-Flow line for more than 25 years.

"The Case IH AFX rotor takes harvesting technology to a new level," says Bose. "It will improve throughput capacity between 5 and 25 percent over the previous specialty rotor design, particularly in tough harvesting conditions."

"The Case IH AFX rotor can also be retrofitted into late model 1688, 2188 and 2388 Axial-Flow combines," he notes. "The unique ability to upgrade Case IH equipment speaks to our commitment to the needs of our customers and the simplicity and superiority of the Axial-Flow rotary system."

An upgraded rotor drive helps maintain constant rotor speed, despite varving crop conditions. The new drive has larger rotor drive pulleys, along with a spliceless rotor drive belt to improve the belt's reliability and service life.

"More and more farmers are opting to collect on-the-go yield data during harvest, and they're also correlating that information with differential Global Positioning System (GPS) data to map their fields," says Bose. "Using the updated Case IH Advanced Farming System (AFS) Universal Display Plus, combine operators can now see moisture and yield maps develop as they travel through their fields."

DPI Honors Former Delaware Secretary Of Agriculture

GEORGETOWN, Del. — Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI), the trade association for the local broiler chicken industry, recently honored former Delaware Secretary of Agriculture Jack Tarburton by presenting him with the 2002 DPI Medal of Achievement for a non-elected person.

A native Delawarean who grew up on a farm family near Dover, Tarburton graduated from Dover High School and Virginia Polytechnic Institute with a Bachelor of Science degree in agriculture. After serving in the Defense Intelligence Agency, Tarburton returned to the farm where for the next 23 years he produced grain and potatoes.

In 1993, Governor Thomas Carper appointed him Secretary of the Delaware Department of Agriculture. From 1993 to 2001, during his tenure as Secretary of Agriculture, he was an active member of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture and served as president of the association in 1997. Last year, Governor Ruth Ann Minner named him to his current position of Director of Business Development in the Delaware Economic Development Office.

A strong supporter of international trade and the establishment of new markets for local agricultural products including chicken, Tarburton has participated in trade missions to Europe, South Africa, Russia, Hong Kong, Taiwan, and the Philippines.

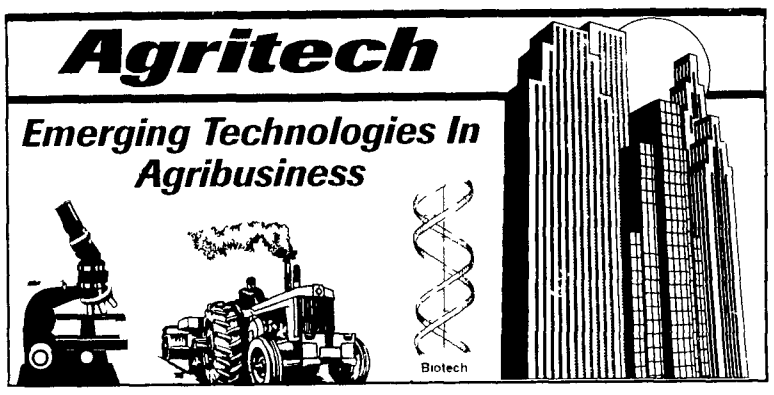
Angus Breeder Hosts Annual Production Sale

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — ErReR Hill Farms, a division of Riggs Industries, Inc., hosted its second annual Angus Production Sale, Nov. 9.

Close to 200 people attended the auction that took place at the farm in Lincoln Township. The Angus females sold at the auction were purchased by respected Angus breeders who came from 13 different states, and from as far south as Alabama and as far west as Idaho.

Prior to the start of the auction, Sidney W. Riggs, the farm's owner, was presented with an award from the Maryland Junior Angus Association. It was given to him in recognition of ErReR Hill Farms' donations and support of the Eastern Regional Junior Angus Show.

This auction was auctioneered by Steve Dorran of Canada, and by the end of the afternoon, 88 head, consisting of 61 lots including a guest consignment of four heifers from Rocking P Farm, Horner, W.Va., had been sold. The next sale event, the Fourth Performance Tested Angus Bull and Commercial Female Sale, will take place April 26, 2003.



Biotechnology Conference On 'Pharming' Set In February

COLUMBUS, Ohio — With rapid advances in the science of biotechnology coupled with swift adoption of genetically engineered seeds by today's farmers, the fundamental nature of commercial agriculture has changed.

To examine these issues, the Ohio State University Farm Income Enhancement Program and the Center for Innovative Food Technology, a division of EISC, Inc., are sponsoring the fourth annual Agricultural Biotechnology Conference.

The conference is planned for Feb. 21, 2003, in the Bromfield Auditorium at the Ohio Department of Agriculture in Reynoldsburg.

The theme for this year's conference is "Pharming," the enterprise of using genetically engineered plants or livestock to produce medically useful products for consumers.

The all-day conference will focus on the economics of pharming with emphasis on opportunities that these technologies may present for farmers, food processors and food distributors. Issues to be addressed include: why researchers genetically engineer plants to make pharmaceuticals, the advantages of this production process; and how these new products could be handled from an environmental and containment viewpoint.

The early bird registration rate of $100 expires Friday, Feb. 7.

More information on this conference is available at http://www.osuagbiotech.org or by contacting Tari Marcou in the Department of Agricultural, Environmental and Development Economics at (614) 292-0315 or marcou.3@osu.edu.

Metal Roofing & Siding

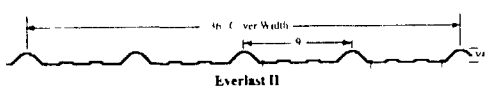
The Ultimate G-100 Process
"The Best"

1 Valspar 10S Finish Coat
2 Epoxy Primer
3 Zinc Phosphate Pretreatment
4 G 100 Zinc Coating
5 Full Hard Steel (80 000 min yield)
6 Heat formed less paint cracks



NOTE! It is more important what is under the paint than what you see on top!

1 One of the best paints, superior acid rain, cracking resistance and color retention
2 Primer coat promotes outstanding topcoat adhesion
3 Zinc phosphate pretreatment This is a very important process - if your current supplier cannot supply you with this or does not know, you should reconsider
4 G-100 Galvanized Most metal roofing has approx 40% less galvanized under the paint G-100 is more galvanized than most unpainted panels
5 Full Hard Anything less than full hard will bend easier, lower snow loads, etc
6 Heat formed Metal is painted before ribs are formed Most paint cracks at bends, heat forming greatly reduces cracks (check metal siding that is installed for 5-10 years)
7 Stronger design, superior strength, more metal per L F
8 Add Everything Together And Price Should Be $53 37 Per Square $1 69 Per L F

OUR SPECIAL PRICE ONLY
$48.32 PER SQUARE
$1.53 PER LINEAL FT.

At Susquehanna Valley Dairy we wish all our customers a Merry Christmas and a prosperous New Year Although milk prices have been low and cow prices have been high this will be our best year ever Thank you for your business

Listed below are a handful of our customers

- S Glick, Manheim, bought a herd in Canada this August In all the heat, he was shipping 81 lb per day
- R Martin, New Holland bought a herd in Canada In the heat this summer he was shipping 83 lb per day
- J Oberholtzer, New Holland bought a herd in Vermont that peaked in the high eighties
- J Esh, Spring Garden, bought a herd in Vermont that peaked at 87 lb per day
- C Petersheim, Quarryville, bought a herd in Vermont I met him at the New Holland horse sale this spring and he said his cows were averaging 97 lb per day

These are of course some of the highest producing herds, however, there are many more in the 70 and 80 lb range Another very encouraging thing is when a dairyman tells me two or three years after buying a herd that he hasn't bought a cow since

What can a dairyman learn from this difficult year? Glenn Shirk, former extension agent, said "In a difficult year, dairymen need to learn to work smarter, not harder" My dad always said a smooth sea never made a good sailor Will Rogers said "Even if you're heading in the right direction, you better keep moving or people will run over you"

Listed below are some herds currently for sale

BEST BLOOM

Now better than ever!!!

100% Pure Unprocessed Corn Oil

The Economical Coat Enhancer, With selenium and vitamin E added

A product of Log Cabin Farm
Catalog Plus

Comes in 1 gallon and 35 lb containers
Feed at least 1 oz per 500 lb of weight per day

Feed this product to Improve the health of the newborn foal (extra strength and vitality at time of birth improved resistance to infectious disease)
Improve overall temperament and energy levels
Put an outstanding shine on the hair coat
Help development bones and muscles in young horses
Reduce the possibility of Azoturia (Monday morning sickness or tying up)
Help horses shed winter coats early and be good and ready for Spring work

Many are providers are tempted to overfeed proteins and mineral The feeding program that provides 10 12 protein from grain and good roughage that is free of dust or mold is adequate in most cases Most operations will benefit greatly from using this product as in addition to an already good feeding program It will provide the extra bloom that makes horses keeping so rewarding

Attention:
Swine and Poultry Producers
Announcing
Crude Soy Oil Now Available
With the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer soybean oil as an animal nutrition product. Processing the soybeans ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!
Crude Soybean Oil
A product of Keystone's expelling process, this oil can be used in a wide variety of on farm applications. Crude soy oil is a natural alternative to animal fats and provides needed energy in various rations.
Uses of Crude Soy Oil Include:
- Use as a high energy feed ingredient in swine and poultry diets
- Especially useful in sow lactation diets, pig starter and grow/finish diets
- Used as an added energy source in broiler, turkey and layer feeds
- Can be used for dust control purposes
- Can be used as a lubricant for feeding systems
Advantages of Crude Soy Oil:
- Use as a direct replacement for animal fat
- Vegetable based product
- Holding tank does not need to be heated if temperature is above 30 degrees, which reduces storage and handling costs compared to animal fat
- Bulk delivery, partial loads available direct to farm by Keystone Mills
- Customer may pick up to save delivery costs
Other Soy Products Available:
- Keystone offers Golden Pro 46 XP which is 46% protein - 6-7% oil, Golden Meal 40 which is 40% crude protein with 18% oil
Keystone Mills Soybean Exchange Program
- We will take your soybeans in trade for Golden ProXP 46, Golden Meal 40
- Contact Keystone Mills for details on our soybean exchange program featuring these quality nutritional products

• Nutrient Management News. Craig Williams passed along this useful link, which provides a nice table of the equivalent price of high moisture corn for different shelled corn prices, done by our friends at the University of Wisconsin:

http://cdp.wisc.edu/jenny/crop/shelledc.pdf

• Leafhoppers. There are still reports of leafhopper feeding and yellowing is noted in area fields. It is highly suggested growers sweep fields to determine a final spray to really know that the leafhoppers are done for the year or still at high enough levels to treat:

http://www.ipm.iastate.edu/ipm/icm/1999/6-21-1999/potlhmang.html

• Corn earworm. We just updated the Website with the Maryland data.

http://pestwatch.cas.psu.edu/SC/default.html

• Many poisonous plants found in area fields. Dr. Arlen Mills Extension Veterinarian reports that it is good management rid poisonous plants but if the animals are offered a choice they will choose other plants to feed on. He offers this Website for more on poisonous plants and what parts are poisonous and how much the animal needs to ingest to cause problems:

http://www.vet.purdue.edu/depts/addl/toxic/cover1.htm

• Spider Mites. The following URL takes you to a complete detail of the mite and its lifecycle as well as control materials and rates.

• Fall Scouting of Corn Rootworms In particular the determination of whether a field is subject to rootworms next year is interesting. If you plant to scout or treat this fall for rootworms next year this information will help you make that decision and how to do it. Fall Rootworms Explained Weather and Crops This web link brings you directly to the page that details many crop production weather related info. It contains also the weevil forecast and stage of development.

Please bookmark so that at any time you can view the latest updated information:

• Cold Temperatures Impact on Wheat. The following article is also a good reference to the potential damage to wheat at various stages of development. The address is:

• For Soil Temperature Information in your area please visit the following Website and click on your location:

www.agfleet.net/map/pa_soilt2.php

• Rust Mites. They continue to feed and the plants show signs of drought indicating the high populations. In the plots I treated only a few days ago already there are differences between treatments. For more information and the label needed to apply the insecticide please visit the following Website:

http://www.ento.psu.edu/ extension/factsheets/ cerealrust.htm.

• The following phenology prediction maps for alfalfa weevil and corn rootworm will be functional early next week. Visit them when you get a chance:

www.ento.psu.edu/ extension/field_crops/ weather.htm.

• Winter Grain Mite. The winter grain mite is continuing to feed on many species of grass. To date it has been found in Bluegrass, Ryegrass, Orchardgrass, Wheat, Tall Fescue and probably many others. Here is a Website that does a decent job of the biological description. Dr. Ron Echloa USDA mite specialist sent studies from Rutgers (1971) detailing some research dealing with the mite. Although there is a huge amount of information contained in the articles some of the key points are as follows. Website for more info:

• Grubs are active in some area fields and are likely to have built in populations due to the mild weather conditions. Growers need understand the relationship when rotating from a sod to corn and the presence of grubs. Here are some links that better describe the relationship to manage soil borne pest populations. For general info refer tap here:

• Water Updates. This information, although not specific to your well, will allow you to observe the general trend in groundwater levels in your area. The web page for this system is:

http://pa.water.usgs.gov/durplots/well_duration.html

Once you access this page, choose the well nearest to your house and select the "30-day graph" to view the up-to-date groundwater conditions in your area. The graphs are color coded to easily show when a particular well is experiencing drought conditions and the severity of the conditions.

• You can also view up-to-date groundwater levels and other information for all 67 monitoring wells, including the water levels over the past seven days, at the following USGS Website:

http://water.usgs.gov/pa/nwis/current?type= gw Hessian Fly

For a complete factsheet on the Hessian fly has the potential to be a serious pest of wheat:

http://www.ento.psu.edu/extension/factsheets/ hessian_fly_wheat.htm

• The adult is a small, long-legged, two-winged insect that resembles a mosquito The reddish female fly is about ⅛ inch long, while the male is slightly smaller and brown or black in color. Red eggs are deposited on leaves and the newly hatched larvae or maggots are also red for four or five days before turning white:

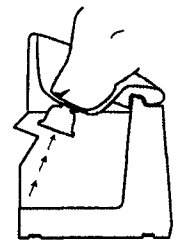
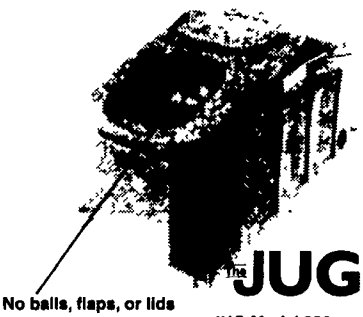
The JUG Livestock Waterer cleans itself - so you don't have to!



The JUG's Feed-Trap catches debris and keeps it out of the reservoir.



No balls, flaps, or lids to get in the way

JUG Model 202
1-hole and 4-hole models also available

The JUG'S self-cleaning design
The JUG'S Feed-Trap™ design prevents feed and other debris from entering the reservoir tank Each time the animal drinks, any debris in the Feed-Trap is removed The tank stays clean!

No Algae - No slime
Since the JUG's reservoir is light-tight, no algae will grow in it That means no slime build-up

Clean Water = productivity
You know that animals will drink more when the water is clean And more water consumption yields more productivity

Tough, long-lasting construction
The JUG is made of tough, roto-molded plastic It stands up to abuse dished out by livestock It won't chip and pit like concrete

Buy your JUG today!

WHAT MAKES THE AGRI-PLASTICS CALF NURSERY BETTER?

- Roomiest interior of any single-calf hutch on the market (overall dimensions 62"W x 98"L x 55" H) - More distance between calf and walls helps maintain the critical "comfort zone" (55-55°F) immediately surrounding calf - Better protection from wind, rain and snow rear of hutch stays warmer on cold days
- Usable for longer growth periods (extra-tall-37" high entry door) - Wider hutch provides extra stability
- No need to keep continually adding bedding as you would do in smaller hutches
- Heaviest, single-calf hutch you can buy (approx 138 lbs)
- Thick walled extra strong for longer lift
- Longer, 10-year Manufacturer's Limited Warranty
- No hard-to-clean steel tube frame around bottom required (avoids problems of manure hand-up or frame damage from skid steer)
- Resists movement from wind gusts or larger calves
- More "Standard" features including right or left hand feed doors, inside manger with built-in double pail holder, two 6 5 qt pails, two built-in bottle holders, top vent and rear vent

Gatorshield® Galvanized Steel Tubing

The Choice is Black and White

Gatorshield galvanized steel tubing is designed specifically for the high degree of strength and corrosion resistance required by a dairy operation. At a mimimum of 50,000 psi yield and 55,000 psi tensile strength Gatorshield tubing is at least 25% stronger than any competitive product. The unique, triple layer galvanizing provided by the Flo-Coat® process insures that your free stalls, gates and self-locking panels remain free from rust 5 to 10 times longer than a painted steel product.

And, the Gatorshield coating not only creates a formidable barrier between the steel and the environment, it also provides an easy-to-fabricate surface that can be readily welded, bent, flattened or powder coated — without any deformation of the coating.

So for strength, corrosion resistance, and easy fabrication, call Allied. The choice is black and white.

A Dry Cow Booster That Costs 7¢ a Day

Hoffmans Horse and Cattle Powder is an ideal tonic for cows over freshening. Feed 6 wks. before freshening. 1 Tablespoon a day. (Two weeks over freshening, feed 1 Tablespoon in the morning & 1 Tablespoon in evening)

Cows will clean better after freshening. Cows have a lower somatic cell count and will have less mastitus problems. Great for reproduction tract and cows will cycle better after freshening. Will help rumen function over freshening. Less feet problems and less stress.

This is an over-all good booster if fed to dry cows, and it will pay you big dividends.

Press for success.

Whether you've been farming for many years or just starting out, finding a lender that understands your operational needs can be difficult. MidAtlantic makes it easy to finance your growing needs. Loans are available for:

- Real Estate Purchases
- Real Estate Improvements
- Barns & Fencing
- Equipment & Vehicle Purchases
- Operating Expenses
- Leasing Options
- Livestock Purchases
- Farm start up needs

Here's something to call home about: because we're a cooperative, we can return our profits to our customers. In fact, in 2002, we returned over $17.5 million to our borrowers—and that's not pocket change.

Call us today to talk to one of our industry experts.

Lancaster Farming

The Farmer's 'Desk' Resource To Business Opportunities

Lancaster Farming is the leading Northeast and Mid-Atlantic farm newspaper. Every Saturday, the newspaper delivers news, market and commodity reports, and agribusiness information to about 50,000 farmers in Pennsylvania and surrounding states.

The premier site for news about 4-H, FFA, and fair events, Lancaster Farming reaches many ag industries, including dairy, beef, swine, sheep, goat, horse, and specialty animal buyers and sellers.

The farm newspaper includes four basic sections each week, comprising an average of 200 pages per issue. Section A is devoted to breaking news, dairy and beef news, commodity market reports, and upcoming events. This includes about 100 market reports weekly. Section B, the family section, includes mailbox markets, a special antiques center, recipes, 4-H and FFA news, and food and nutritional information for the entire family.

Sections C and D, the agribusiness center of the paper, include business news, new product information and updates, herd reports, classified news, and other information pertinent to farmers.

Special sections and booklets make up various issues of the paper. They include Corn Talk, the newsletter of the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association; Foraging Around, the newsletter of the Pennsylvania Forage and Grasslands Council; Grower & Marketer, news and information valuable to the farm market manager, produce and fruit grower, and horticulturist; Dairy Plus, a quarterly booklet for large-scale dairies; and Boarder & Trainer, a section devoted to the horse industry.

Lancaster Farming serves as a "one-stop site" for regional farm news throughout the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic.

Additionally, special books appear at different times of the year. Exclusive to Lancaster Farming, the guides include animal health and housing information and a farmer-to-business ag directory.

A yearly subscription is $36. Call for subscription rates or to advertise at (717) 626-1164 or (717) 394-3047. Lancaster Farming has a Website, www.lancasterfarming.com, with a wide array of online services. Our e-mail is farming@lancasterfarming.com.

Making a Difference for Dairy

The work we do at Dairylea Cooperative each and every day matters.

When we fight for a stronger, more beneficial Farm Bill, or drought relief aid and when we design our cost-cutting programs and services, we do so with the dairy farmer in mind. Our goal is to maximize the profitability of our members. Shouldn't you consider letting us work for you too?

GIVE'EM HELP WITH PRO-LIX

the profitable liquid feed for your cattle

PRO-LIX LIQUID FEED

They'll give it right back to you, with interest, in:

- Healthier Calves
- More Economical Production
- Better Reproduction Performance

PRO-LIX delivers the protein, vitamins and minerals your cattle need-when they need it and in the amounts they need. It increases cattle weight, fosters healthier calves and often helps to produce more calves. PRO-LIX is an extremely smart investment in the beef or milk that produces your profits-all year long.

New Reinforced Concrete
Manure Containment Structures

AG ENGINEERING SERVICE

Our agricultural engineering services include the design of livestock confinement housing, farmstead planning, manure handling systems, ventilation and mechanical design. Today's agricultural building systems must be designed to provide the highest amount of production capable per square foot of building cost. An engineer design will help you optimize your next building project.

STRUCTURAL ENGINEERING SERVICE

Our engineering services include the structural design of building components and complete building systems. We provide engineer certified plans and inspection services for manure containment structures. We also offer structural design of foundation systems, roof systems, concrete, masonry and steel design.

WORKING FOR DAIRY FARMERS

We're working hard to help our members on a number of fronts. As the largest dairy cooperative in the country, DFA can make a significant impact on the dairy industry.

Offering:

- Cost-cutting programs and services
- Long-term, secure milk markets
- A voice on legislative issues affecting dairy
- The ability to battle low milk prices with CME purchases, retail promotions, new product development and more!

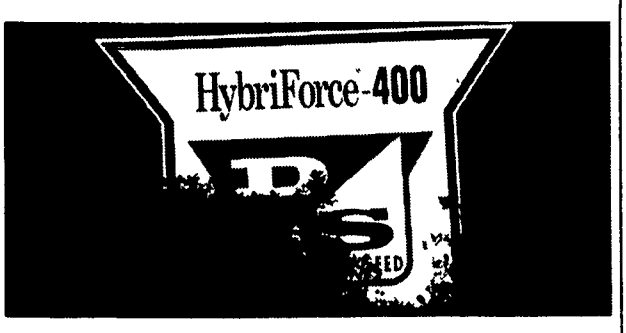
The Dedicated Team From Homestead Nutrition

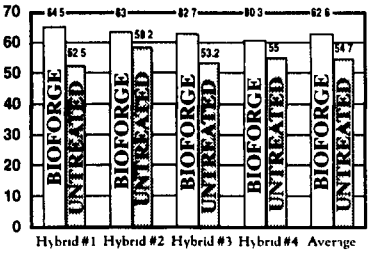
We are dedicated to helping dairy and livestock producers improve management skills and integrate farm resources for healthy soil, healthy crops, and healthy livestock.

Our greatest resource is the team you see above. Each person has a wealth of knowledge gained from his years of personal dairy experience. We urge you to let us be a resource for you. Give us a call.



We are your supplier for the World's First Hybrid Alfalfa from

Improve Your Silage



BioForge Gold has been shown to increase digestibility of corn silage. This, in the end, gives you more milk production.

VITAL Nutritional Products ...

Manage the whole cow

Her performance depends on it. Her life, your livelihood may also. Herd health and productivity benefit from a comprehensive approach that manages cow comfort and stress while providing proper nutritional support. Vital products can help.

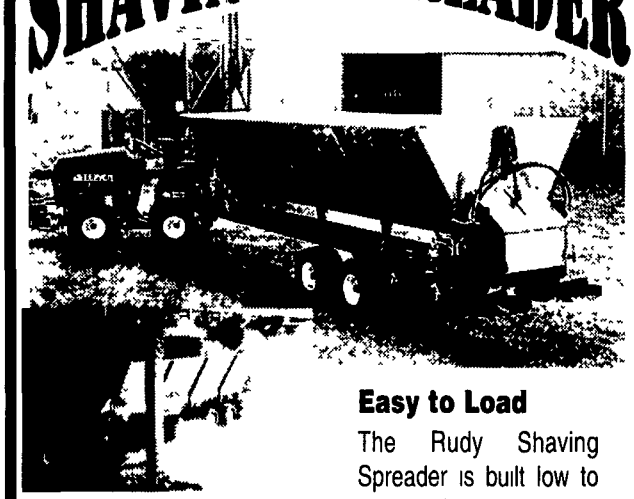
SHAVINGS SPREADER



Easy to Load

The Rudy Shaving Spreader is built low to work with any standard skid steer or tractor loader. It fills with just 3 or 4 bucket loads and holds 3 cubic yards filled level, about 4 cubic yards filled heaped.

Easy to Maneuver

Even with its large capacity the Rudy Shaving Spreader maneuvers easily in poultry houses with posts. In houses without posts, it's a breeze.

- Spreads shavings evenly any depth you desire. (even in the corners, Great for applying top coat.)
- One man operation to spread shavings, greatly reducing labor cost.
- Is pulled by a 16 to 20 H.P. Garden tractor.

The Rudy Shaving Spreader is simple, reliable and efficient. A common sense machine that will save you money for years to come.

Facts About Hot-dipped Galvanizing

- Average coating thickness of 3½-4 mil.
- Zinc solution is 838° in temp. which loosens the outer layers of steel molecules and mixes the zinc and steel together
- Product must be vented to allow zinc to coat inside & out.
- If coating is chipped off you still have a zinc & steel mixture on surface.
- Life expectancy of 30 plus yrs.
- Coating is put on after fabrication to avoid brickling from bending & welding
- All weld joints are galv. also
- Comparison — galv. sched 40 pipe has 1-1½ mil. thickness

Nutrient Management/CAFO/AFO Permitting

Our nutrient management services are as extensive as any in the industry. Our certified professional staff of specialists is capable of completing nitrogen and phosphorous based nutrient management plans including Comprehensive Nutrient Management Plans (CNMPs) and CAFO (Concentrated Animal Feeding Operations) AFO (Animal Feeding Operations) permits across the United States. TeamAg Inc. programs include:

* Soil, manure and plant sampling and analysis.
* Manure storage design and certification.
* Permit applications, renewals, reporting and record keeping.
* New facility/public relations assistance.
* Best Management Practices (BMPs) and design

Natural Resources Management

An important mission of TeamAg, Inc. is to ensure that natural resources are preserved. To fulfill this mission, we work with producers, private companies, community groups and municipalities with:

* Watershed and drinking water source assessment and protection program (wellhead protection)
* Soil and water conservation planning. (required for EQIP, CREP, loan deficiency payments and other government programs)
* Wetland identification and delineation.
* Permit applications, renewals, reporting.
* Biosolid and food processing residuals (FPR) management.
* Location of land to receive manure, biosolids and FPR.
* Yard waste and compost site management.
* Surface and ground water protection.

Engineering and Land Planning

TeamAg, Inc's engineering staff is eager to team together with our clients and contractors to provide the following services:

* Engineering site surveys with topographical information for sites for proposed farm expansions.
* Site layout and planning for dairy expansions, feedlots, swine and poultry operations.
* Erosion and Sediment Control plans for new construction.
* Engineering designs and Quality Assurance of manure storage facilities
* Engineering designs for BMPs such as barnyard runoff, silage leachate runoff, etc.
* Land Development Plans for farm expansions.
* Designs of Manure Management Systems (e.g. flushing systems)
* Computer Aided Design (CAD)
* Compost Site Design
* Township Zoning

Precision Ag Mapping

TeamAg, Inc.'s Precision Ag services use GIS (Geographic Information Systems) and GPS (Global Positioning Systems) technology along with sound agronomic principles to enhance the productivity and efficiency of progressive operations. We combine these powerful technologies in order to:

* Develop accurate, detailed and high-quality maps.
* Maintain site specific record keeping and reports. (required with Nutrient Management Plans and CAFO permits)
* Analyze yield and fertility data to identify variables that limit crop productivity.
* Manage inputs on a zone-specific basis to maximize yield and return.

We Finance Rural America.

Our representatives come from agricultural and rural backgrounds and have the financial "know how" to help make your businesses work. Our specialty is applying our knowledge to help you achieve your hopes and dreams for your farms and rural agricultural businesses.

All of our representatives work very hard at making themselves accessible to you. The best way to get to know someone's business is to go see it first-hand. That's why we spend most of our time visiting farms and rural businesses just like yours.

When you need help exploring financing alternatives, call someone with the knowledge to help you find the best way to make your enterprise successful. Call someone who will take the time to visit your operation and see it first-hand. Call someone who wants you to succeed. Your success is our success. Call Telmark.

Seed Jet II

The Seed Jet II™ is a seed handling system that delivers seed from a bulk bin to a planter or drill on a gentle stream of air. Here's how it works. A touch of a button starts an 11hp Industrial Plus Briggs & Stratton engine, which turns a powerful blower that sends a strong but gentle stream of air to the airlock Seed is introduced into the airstream from the hopper and flows down the 35', 2 1/4" stainless steel hose to a cyclone-shaped decelerator. The seed is gently swirled into a planter or drill box.

Mr. Planter Owner

Thank you for taking a minute to consider this offer

Binkley & Hurst Bros Inc is offering our annual off-season inspection and evaluation of your planter for the purpose of identifying worn, broken or malfunctioning parts Many times, seemingly insignificant wear will affect the accuracy of your planter more than you realize If nothing else, it may be time to have your finger pickup meters checked on our test stand Also, new innovations, attachments and options are constantly being introduced which may be of interest to you for installation on your planter.

Binkley & Hurst Bros Inc parts and service personnel are specifically trained and informed planter specialists, ready to examine your planter with you! If you determine that the planting proficiency of your planter could be improved with our service, we would be happy to provide that service for you A technician will return to your farm with one of our well-stocked service trucks at a later date to assist you in doing the work We encourage you to be part of the actual servicing so that any pointers or insight, which the technician may have for you with regard to planter operation, could be conveyed at that time

What does it cost?
If you set up an appointment for a planter evaluation, you will be charged a flat fee

4 or 6 row planter	$175 00
8 row planter	$200 00
12 or 16 row planter	$225 00

(Customers over 50 mile radius of Lititz, subject to mileage charge)
At time of inspection we will recommend to you any item needing attention, also at that time we will remove your seed meters to take in for testing if you so desire
Your cost of meter testing is $23 95 This includes testing, cleaning, & repair labor (Parts not included

If you have any questions, please contact the service department at 717-626-4705 or 800-414-4705.

Thank you
Kevin Smoker
